DEATH VALLEY? — It may look like the barren wastes of a desert, but this is actually the Marin Municipal Water District's Nicasio Reservoir, viewed from the Nicasio and Petaluma-Point Reyes road. The major storage lake, which has a 7.5-billion gallon capacity, is now down to less than 2 billion gallons concentrated in a pond at the spillway in the distance. District officials estimate they will be able to pump from the lake for another month, then transfer operations to another reservoir. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Fog, Cooler Air Give Hand To Forest Fire Fighters

Condors' Refuge Still Safe

Combined AP & UPI

More than 21,450 acres had been blackened by the relentless flames which have plagued the state since Tuesday.

About 371 fire fighters Thursday night won their battle to check a 1,760-acre blaze in Sonoma County which flared Thursday and gutted eight homes, 18 other structures and 10 vehicles.

A spokesman for the state Division of Forestry said winds which had gusted to 30 miles an hour died down long enough Thursday night to allow a quickly cut fire line to effectively deter the flames from spreading to other structures in the Healdsburg and Geyserville areas.

While the fire had consumed mostly brush land, a few groves of California's famed redwood trees fell victim to the blaze.

A stubborn four-day-old fire in inaccessible terrain in Los Padres National Forest, Ventura County north of Los Angeles, continued to burn out of control, despite the tireless efforts of nearly 2,000 men from several western states, including Indian crews from San Carlos, Ariz., four aerial tankers, 10 helicopters and a fleet of ground tankers and bulldozers.

The U.S. Forest Service said any estimated time for containing the 16,000-acre blaze would be premature at this time. "We're a long way from containment," a spokesman said.

Residents of the small community of Ojai were endangered for a time Thursday as the wind-whipped flames forged to within seven miles of the town's perimeter. However, a Forest Service spokesman said today that Ojai no longer was considered in a danger zone.

He said crews worked through the night to build a fire line, but by daybreak had completed only five of the 24 miles necessary to harness the fire. Most of the work had to be done by hand due to the rugged terrain, he added.

About 350 acres of the Sespe

Council Finished Budget; Mill Valley Tax Rate Cut

With the mayor and one city councilman off on vacation, the Mill Valley City Council last night adopted a budget for 1972-1973 and set a tax rate of $2.84 per $100 assessed valuation, a drop of 4 cents from last year's tax rate.

The new tax rate means property taxes on a home with an assessed value of $40,000 will be $1,136.

The council wound up its 11th budget session after midnight and the final budget total was not yet available today, but was expected to be made than $2.3 million.

For months, the council has been plodding through first and second reviews of every departmental account. Last night, in a burst of activity, the three remaining councilmen reviewed the unfinished portions of the budget in which Councilman Gerald J. Hood called, "the most productive session we've had since I've been elected."

Neither Mayor Jean S. Barnard nor Councilman Robert E. Burton were present at the meeting. Both left on vacation with the understanding that the final budget and tax rate might be adopted by the time they returned.

Highlighting the city's new expenditures are one additional police patrolman, one fireman, an assistant planner and partial

Two Water Stores At Low Levels

Two of Marin Municipal Water District's six reservoirs will be depleted below pumping level within the next month because of the past dry winter.

But Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger said the district is in no immediate danger of running out of water needed to serve its approximately 50,000 customers.

When Nicasio and Alpine lakes become too low for regular pumping, the district will transfer operations to Kent and Bon Tempe lakes, which have not yet been used this season.

"With Kent and Bon Tempe, we hope to squeeze by until the rainy season begins about the middle of October," Seeger said. Two small reservoirs, Phoenix, with 200 million gallons, and Lagunitas, with 300 million, have not been pumped and are practically full. These can be utilized in emergencies, Seeger added.

Currently, he said, Nicasio with a capacity of 7.5 billion gallons is down to 1.9 billion and should last another month before the district transfers to Kent, which presently holds 4.3 of its five billion gallon capacity.

Alpine with a capacity of 3 billion gallons is depleted to 1 billion gallons and will be accessible to district pumps for another two weeks.

At that time, customers served by Alpine will begin receiving water from Bon Tempe's 1 billion gallons.

"The last time the lakes were this low was in 1964," Seeger said.

He noted water still will remain in Alpine and Nicasio lakes even when they can no longer be pumped by perma-

Spassky Again Draws On Repetitive Move

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) —Bobby Fischer invoked the repetition-of-moves rule for the second consecutive time today and claimed and got a draw in the 18th game of his world championship match with Russian Boris Spassky to maintain his three-point lead.

Spassky, in a difficult position today, repeated one move three times and Fischer quickly called for a draw. Spassky had done the same thing in the 17th game, possibly a blunder because he then looked at the board in apparent disbelief. Today, as in past draws, the two players looked at the board, nodded and shook hands.

Grandmasters were puzzled over why Fischer claimed the second draw in two games, since he held a pawn advantage and a "winning position" from the adjourned position Thursday night. Spassky ad only hoped for a draw in today's game.

"I won't be surprised if Fischer is content to play the time out in draws," U.S. grandmaster Larry Evans said.

Fischer needs a combination of two wins or four more draws to gain the championship.

The draw means Fischer leads 10.5 points to 7.5 points and needs only two more points to become the second American world champion in history. The match consists of 25 games, and a draw counts as one half a point for each.

Fischer arrived 13 minutes late, played through five moves upon resumption of the game, then summoned arbiter Lothar Schmid just before making his own 48th move, and pointed out the move he intended to make.

Schmid nodded his head and

TERRA LINDA ANNEX ISSUE ON BALLOT

At a brief public hearing attended by about a dozen people, four letters of protest were received and no one spoke in opposition to the proposed annexation, according to County Administrator John F. Barrows.

The district board, the San Rafael City Council and the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission have approved the merger.

Supervisors John F. McInnis and Arnold M. Baptiste were absent.

South Vietnamese Retake Key Town, Fare Badly Elsewhere

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops reinforced with men flown in from Hue and Saigon today recaptured the key Que Son district capital below Da Nang only hours after their commanding officer had been fired for losing the town last Saturday.

Military sources in Saigon said the town, 30 miles south of Da Nang, was entered by a force of 500 troops who once worked for the U.S. Green Berets as mercenaries. They hauled down the Viet Cong flag which had flown there for nearly a week and hoisted the government flag.

But elsewhere in South Vietnam the government suffered sharp reverses, and the U.S. Command disclosed the loss of four more planes over North Vietnam, three of them last weekend and one of them today. Two F4 Phantom crewmen shot down today were rescued from the Gulf of Tonkin but the six lost in the North were reported as misuing, either prisoners or presumed dead.

So far the U.S. Command has reported losing 82 planes and 91 men over North Vietnam since the start of the Communist offensive last spring and the resumption of heavy bombing attacks on the North last April 6.

The worst government set-back came in an ambush 40 miles north of Saigon where North Vietnamese forces surrounded a 500-man force of elite rangers, killing or wounding 67 and leaving 75 missing in two days of fighting.

Another came in the Mekong Delta, 45 miles southwest of Saigon, where Communist troops attacking near Cai Lay cut Highway 4, the rice lifeline between Saigon and the delta. The government rushed reinforcements into the area and a battle was reported continuing eight hours later.

Fighting continued heavy in the Quang Tri city area 30 miles north of Da Nang, and South Vietnamese marines trying to recapture the city were hit by another 1,700-round artillery and mortar barrage. The North Vietnamese made more of their daily forays with tanks but were beaten back. The Saigon command said the latest fighting killed 207 Communists at a cost of 15 marines dead and 58 wounded.

Brig. Gen. Pham Hoa Hiep, the general fired during the Que Son fighting, flew in a total of 5,000 infantrymen from the threatened Hue area and a

Blackout's Source Is Cable Fault

Downtown San Rafael's power failure yesterday was traced to a piece of faulty cable underground in front of Macy's on Fourth Street.

Robert H. Williams, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., said the dud cable had "probably deteriorated due to electrolysis."

The area of the outage was bounded by Third and Fifth streets and by Lincoln Avenue and C Street. PG&E reported 142 customers were affected by the power cut.

He said PG&E troubleshooters located the fault in about 45 minutes after the outage occurred at 9:53 a.m., but the cable is still dead.

"The system is so arranged that once you have your fault isolated you can work around it. We are going to pull all that section out and put new cable in."

Technicians traced the fault, said the superintendent, by testing section after section until isolating the trouble spot.

Security All Around As Hijack $1 Million Ransom Is Returned

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Most of the 147 passengers aboard a TWA jetliner which landed at Dulles International Airport Thursday were unaware of a special cargo—two suitcases crammed with $1 million in cash.

The money in the possession of two Delta Airlines officials represented the record ransom obtained by eight skyjackers who commandeered a Delta aircraft July 31 from Detroit to Algiers.

Algerian officials impounded the money and returned it to the Delta executives in Paris after detaining the hijackers.

The Delta officials—Shelby Demant, vice president for marketing, and security officer Eugene H. Stewart—said jokingly they "thought about" spending the fortune in Paris "but we wanted to get back to Atlanta (Delta headquarters) and not to the federal prison in Atlanta."

The passengers aboard the jet which carried the Delta couriers and their money were subjected to extensive searches in Rome, where the flight originated, and Paris, a stopover point without learning about the money.

"No kidding," exclaimed Pete Avery, 22, an Arizona State University student from Phoenix. "I wondered why the guy was there with the shotgun and everything. Fabulous!"

Two other passengers were Frances (Cissy) Farenthold, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor of Texas, and her 18 year-old daughter, Emily.

Mrs. Farenthold, who was runner-up in balloting for the vice presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention, said she had "no idea what was going on."

"I was deep in a book," she said. "But I never had such a thorough search in my life. They frisked us all up and down. They took us into little cubicles about the size of telephone booths and frisked us."

Capt. Carl Dowling, pilot of the jetliner, reported that "everything was very quiet" during the transtlantic flight. "It was very uneventful. The whole flight was normal."

Demant and Stewart were joined by FBI agents at Dulles to count the money, which Stewart said was "still in its original wrappers."

Stewart said the Algerians declined to tell them what happened to the hijackers. He said the Algerians were extremely courteous, but "politely evasive" when questioned about the fate of the group.

Belfast Security Beef-Up As Bombers Target Hotels

BELFAST (UPI) — Troops stepped up security around public lodgings throughout Northern Ireland today because of a wave of hotel bombings, a security source said.

In continuing violence soldiers killed one sniper and wounded another in Londonderry. The army said the fatal shooting occurred today in the city's northern side. The other occurred Thursday night in the Creggan district, a former "no-go area."

Earlier, a soldier died and three others were injured when two landmines exploded under their vehicle near the border with the Irish Republic.

The death brought to three the number of troopers killed in the past 24 hours and raised the army's death toll in three years of violence to 117. The overall death toll in Northern Ireland for the three years of violence stands at 531.

Police Raid Wake For Terrorists

Contributing to the tension was the expiratioNstoday of the government-imposed deadline for ex-president Juan D. Peron to return from his Spanish exile if he is to run in presidential elections set for next March.

Peron, 76, who ruled Argentina from 1946 to 1955, when the army deposed him, has said he will return in October, and will be candidate of his "Justicialista" movement despite the government deadline.

Riot police used a small tank to knock down the door of "Justicialista" party headquarters Thursday night, then routed mourners with tear gas, truncheons, horse charges and trained dogs, to carry away the coffins of three guerrillas killed in a jailbreak attempt.

The coffins were taken to a graveyard for burial by the police. The Peronists had defied a mid-afternoon deadline for ending the wake—which had taken on anti-government overtones—and had announced it would last all night.

Two of the mourned guerrillas were women. They were among 16 recaptured terrorists killed by marines at Trelew Naval Air Station in southern Argentina Tuesday

Demo HQ Hearing Surprise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal judge says he wants to begin a civil trial in the alleged bugging attempt of Democratic national headquarters before the Nov. 7 presidential election to "insure the right of the public to know."

"It may be that, so far as the public is concerned, their interest might be better served by having a civil trial before the election," U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey told surprised attorneys Thursday at what they had expected to be a routine procedural hearing.

The $1 million civil suit filed by the Democratic National Committee against the Committee to Re-elect the President and five suspects in the alleged bugging stems from an attempted June 17 break-in at Democratic headquarters in the posh Watergate apartment-commercial complex.

A federal grand jury also has been investigating the case to determine whether criminal indictments are warranted. A Justice Department spokesman said Thursday that indictments may be handed down early next month.

Two Houston oil executives testified Thursday before the grand jury on GOP campaign donations linked to the break-in, according to government sources.

One of the oilmen, William C. Liedtke Jr., is Southwest regional fund-raiser for President Nixon's re-election campaign and president of Houston-based Pennzoil United, Inc. Also called as a witness was Roy J. Winchester, Pennzoil's vice president for public relations.

China Says It Would Block Bangladesh Entry To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— China told the U.N. Security Council Thursday that it would cast its first veto to block the admission of Bangladesh to the United Nations.

But there were indications that further procedural tactics by the supporters of China in the 15-nation body would delay any vote on the matter. China has not cast a veto since joining the world body last year.

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua Thursday introduced his country's resolution that would have the council postpone consideration of the Bangladesh application until such time as Pakistani prisoners of war and other civilian detainees are released.

That resolution has no chance of passage. A measure sponsored by the Soviet Union, Britian, India and Yugoslavia demanding outright recommendation of Bangladesh admission to the General Assembly is known to have the support of at least 11 council members. Among them are all the other big powers except China

Thursday's debate was terminated by a procedural vote on a motion by Sudan—one of three African countries supporting the Chinese position. The others are Guinea and Somalia.

The Sudanese proposal was to delay the vote on the issue until 3 p.m. EDT today in order to "save the situation from a fatal collision"—a possible reference to the Chinese veto.

Sudanese Ambassador Salah Ibrahim expressed the hope that in the intervening time delegations would "change their positions"—but he did not say how.

Huang, in introducing his resolution, said he was defending the "spirit of the U.N. charter" against new member states that proclaim adherence to the document but are not in fact qualified.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Abortion Ruling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women who have been unable to obtain state Medicaid to pay for abortions they want must now be granted such aid on request, a three-judge federal court ruled Thursday.

The court overruled a directive issued last year by state Social Services Commissioner George Wyman which barred Medicaid payments for abortions. The court said the directive violated constitutional rights by denying "indigent women the equal protection of the laws to which they are constitutionally entitled."

The court added that indigent women "alone are subject to state coercion to bear children which they do not wish to bear," while more affluent women "have complete freedom to make the choice."

Mexican Manhunt

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UPI) — Helicopters and small planes today combed the wild Sierra Madre mountains searching for guerrillas blamed for two ambushes in which 18 Mexican soldiers were killed this summer.

Seven soldiers were killed Wednesday on a mountain road only two miles from where 11 were killed last June 25.

McGovern Backed

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) broke a 56-year tradition yesterday and endorsed Sen. George McGovern for president.

The group, after hearing McGovern speak at midmorning, also decided to give him up to $250,000 of the AFT campaign chest.

Russ Tax Flayed

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel may demand that the United States immediately cut off trade with the Soviet Union unless the Kremlin drops the head tax imposed on college educated Jews who want to emigrate, a Tel Aviv newspaper said today.

"Political circles feel that only an American economic boycott of the Soviet Union can persuade the Kremlin to cancel the tax decree," the front-page story in Ha'Aretz said.

A Foreign Ministry source said he was not aware of any request for the United States to stop trading with the Soviets. He said the Israeli Embassy in Washington has been given no instructions to make such a request.

Casals Released

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)— Cellist Pablo Casals, 95, was released from Auzilio Mutuo Hospital Thursday after a checkup and a spokesman said he was in good condition. Casals underwent a series of examinations related to a kidney infection he had two years ago.

Rogers On Vietnam

"We are being urged by some now to quit — to refuse to give any further support, economic or otherwise — to throw up our hands — to abandon the people of South Vietnam — to forget all that we have said as a nation, and to forget all they have done as a nation," Rogers said in a speech.

"This the President will not do."

Pravda Criticizes U.S. Peace Corps

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets today called the American Peace Corps an espionage corps that failed and said no amount of reorganization could save it from total collapse.

An article in Pravda, the newspaper of the Soviet Communist Party, said 11 countries had expelled volunteers for espionage and said the number of Peace Corps workers had been halved.

Algeria Threats To Cleaver, Wife Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Kathleen Cleaver says her exiled husband, former Black Panther chief Eldridge Cleaver has received "verbal and face to face" death threats while in exile in Algeria.

The 27-year-old Mrs. Cleaver said conditions were "intolerable" for Black Panthers in Algeria and that her husband wanted to return to the United States legally.

Cleaver jumped $50,000 bail in California in 1968 and fled the country to set up the international wing of the Panther Party in Algeria.

Mrs. Cleaver said recent decisions by tha U.S. Supreme Court on the legal rights of parolees gave Cleaver hope that he could return without being tossed in prison as a parole violator.

She said the former panther leader would be happy to return and face a felony charge stemming from a shootout with policemen in Oakland.

Mrs. Cleaver said her husband's fleeing the country was "ordered" by Newton, who now says the party has put aside guns and violence to work within the system.

KATHLEEN CLEAVER
"Intolerable" conditions

"My husband had other plans on how not to return to prison," she said of the 1968 escape.

She blamed the CIA and American business interests for the threats on Cleaver's life.

"We would not put it past them to get the cooperation of reactionary forces in that area," she said. "In Algeria, politically, anything can happen."

Alioto Says City Tax Cut By 12 Cents

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has announced happily that the city tax rate will be cut 14 cents this year.

"I have some disappointing news," he told newsmen Thursday with sarcasm. "I am sorry to disappoint those local geniuses who predicted that last year's tax decrease was an election-year gimmick."

The new tax rate recommended by Controller Nat Cooper is $12.59 per $100 as compared to last year's $12.73, which in turn was a drop from the $12.82 of the year before.

The mayor also predicted that Nixon Administration programs would go to help the Haight-Ashbury and Hunters Point areas.

In his wide-ranging news conference, he also confirmed that Dr. Thomas Shaheen was indeed leaving his position after negotiating a settlement with the Board of Education.

Jane Fonda: 'Proud To Be An American'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Actress Jane Fonda joined an anti-war rally in San Francisco Thursday and told about 3,500 persons that her recent trip to North Vietnam taught her to "be proud of being an American."

She said the North Vietnamese are teaching their people "that there is a difference between us —the American people —and Richard Nixon."

Miss Fonda addressed an "unacceptance rally" at the Civic Center that was followed by a downtown march by 500 persons past the Nixon campaign headquarters.

The actress accused the president of "betraying everything we stand for," and asked for the support of Sen. George McGovern "if that will save Vietnam."

Demonstrators hoisted placards and some carried Viet Cong flags. A police car and an American flag were burned near the end of the 3½-mile march, but no arrests were reported.

Miss Fonda told the rally that "Vietnamization has failed."

She said that between April 16 and July 31 there were 150 attacks on dikes that protect the North Vietnamese peasants from floods. She said the dikes were severed in 92 places and that she personally witnessed three of the breaks.

The actress said another anti-war rally would be held Saturday at the main gate of Travis Air Force Base.

Novatans Resume Battle Against Offramp Threat

Residents are stirred up over a tentative subdivision map leaving an open stretch for a potential De Long Avenue extension "behind their homes," reported Barbara Stahlbaum, secretary of Gnoss Estates Homeowners Association.

"That is the "G" route which was unanimously rejected by the Novato City Council Dec. 9, 1969," she said.

Under the present Highway 101 bypass construction, the east end of the De Long Avenue interchange will be "stubbed off," but residents are worried about a potential extension to the east.

"We don't oppose a single family subdivision" but "we don't want an offramp behind the homes in Gnoss Estates," Mrs. Stahlbaum said.

Petitions are being circulated asking that the subdivision plan by Kaehler-Timmer "be modified to conform" to the council decision to eliminate the "G" route, she said.

Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps and Planning Director Brian W. Mattson aren't following the council's decision and "Temps has been pushing this offramp," Mrs. Stahlbaum said.

The "G" route which would extend to Olive Avenue near Rita Court, should have been marked off city plans and the developer should have been told that route wasn't open, she said.

Residents are scheduled to protest when the Novato Planning Commission holds a hearing on the tentative plan by Kaehler-Timmer for Valley Oaks Estates at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The firm plans 83 single family homes on 42.3 acres south of Olive Avenue and north of the Novato Sanitary District property. If a De Long avenue extension is constructed.

Mrs. Stahlbaum said she doubted there was a need for an extension, claiming there would be ample access to the Highway 101 bypass from the Gnoss Estates area without it.

McGovern Ready To Unwrap Welfare Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George S. McGovern today told a cheering group of his labor supporters that he plans to make unemployment "issue No. 1" of his campaign against President Nixon.

McGovern told the union officials who make up the National Labor Committee for McGovern-Shriver that his tax and welfare proposal to be unveiled Tuesday "will put people back to work, place the number one emphasis on providing a job for everyone who is able to work."

The committee, which includes officials of 29 AFL-CIO unions who disregarded president George Meany's order of neutrality and the independent United Auto Wrokers announced a $250,000 budget to aid McGovern in his contest against Nixon.

Earlier in the day, in a question and answer session with managers of rural electric cooperatives, McGovern hinted he might propose a system of direct subsidies to farmers to partially replace price supports.

McGovern indicated he had made no decision on the subsidy plan but if passed by Congress, it could increase farm income without boosting the prices paid at the supermarkets.

McGovern received an enthusiastic reception from the union leaders and was cheered lustily when he criticized Nixon for permitting the unemployment rate to increase from a little over 3 per cent to 5.5 per cent.

"Unemployment — 5 and a half million or I suspect maybe six and a half or seven million people, walking the streets looking for jobs —that's issue No. 1," he said.

Earlier, McGovern issued a statement accusing Nixon of turning the nation's economy into "a palace for the privileged few."

"But we Democrats had a lot to do with building that structure in the first place," he said. "And we're tired of Richard Nixon turning it into a place for the privileged few."

The theme of the statement was seconded by a full-page advertisement in the Washington Post bought by the labor unions which have shunned AFL-CIO President George Meany's neutrality edict and endorsed McGovern.

"Working people can no longer afford the Nixon administration," the advertisement said.

In a statement to a meeting of managers and editors of statewide associations of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in his Senate office, McGovern pledged full backing of government programs to provide electricity to the nation's farms.

"When I become President of the United States, I intend to see to it that REA (Rural Electrification Administration) and the rural electric cooperatives will be able to have the resources and the backing they need to fully meet the challenges they face," he said.

He said Nixon blonked three attempts by Congress to increase REA loan funds.

Hitchhiker's Tip Spurs Two Arrests

Two men from British Columbia arrested in Marin Wednesday after a hitchhiker told sheriff's deputies the pair had "shot speed" six times while he rode with them were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on drug charges.

Leroy Glenn Jeffery, 19, of Vancouver, and Harry Woodford Swingler, 19, of Surry were to return to court today to enter pleas to charges of possessing dangerous drugs, needles and a syringe.

Sheriff's deputies said an informant called them Wednesday afternoon to say the two were headed sough into Marin on Highway 101. The informant told officers he had ridden from Coos Bay, Ore. to Santa Rosa with the two men and they not only had injected drugs six times but also had a stolen credit card and improper license plates.

He said the men were keeping the drugs in a refrigerator in a towed housetrailer. The informant also said he thought one man was an Army deserter and the other a parole violator from Mississippi.

Deputies stoped them on Highway 101 and found six bundles of white crystalline powder in the refrigerator along with needles and syringe. A stolen credit card was found in the back seat of the deputies' patrol car after the men had been placed there, they said.

funding of a planning study of the entire city.

While the city's budget rose this year, a 10 per cent increase in the assessed value of property in Mill Valley increased the take in tax revenue, allowing the rate to drop by 4 cents. The current assessed value of property in the city stands at about $50.4 million.

group of rangers from the Saigon area. He had ordered his 10,000-man force to capture Que Son today but his troops were a mile away at the time and the prediction appeared premature.

But by the time his troops had carried out the order, Hiep had been officially relieved of command by an executive order issued by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

His firing followed by one day the arrest of the regimental commander whose troops fled Que Son and nearby Ross Aug. 19. Hiep was overall commander of the 2nd Infantry Division and of all troops in the Que Son area.

The general was replaced by Col. Tran Van Nhut, chief of Binh Long Province north of Saigon and considered one of the heroes of the government stand at An Loc province capital. Nhut stayed in An Loc throughout the heavy fighting in April and May and personally destroyed one Communist tank with an anti-tank weapon.

New Truck Missing From Agency's Lot

A brand new orange pickup truck was reported stolen from Campbell Bishop Chevrolet, at 5880 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera police said today.

Sales manager John Saia said the truck was parked on the lot without keys, and was stolen some time between Aug. 18 and 22. It had no license number.

CHESS

Fischer held out his hand to Spassky for the handshake. Then Bobby stood up, took a sip of water and walked out.

"There must have been danger in the air, otherwise Bobby would not have offered a draw," Yugoslav Grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric said.

The enforced repetition-of-moves rule followed a similar draw in the 17th game in which Spassky held the advantage but had to settle for a draw when Fischer pointed out three moves in which the position had not changed on the board. The rule, a basic chess rule taught in every chess primer, says that if the same position occurs three times during a game with the same player to move, it is a draw should one of the players make the claim.

The three repetitions came on the 45th through the 47th moves in a maneuver between the two over their queens.

nent pumps. He said the district has portable emergency pumps which could be used on the low reservoirs should a critical shortage occur before the rains come.

During the past winter, unusually low rainfall filled the district's reservoirs to only 75 per cent of their 17 billion gallon capacity. While the district watershed normally produces an annual firm yield of 30,000 acre feet, it produced only 21,000 acre feet this year.

Trial Set For Pair On Burglary

Paul Brent Caldwell, 25, of Sonoma, and Danny Ray Pyles, 23, of San Rafael, are to be tried the week of Oct. 24 in Marin Superior Court on charges of robbery and conspiracy.

They are accused of being two of four persons who robbed a 79-year-old invalid in his San Rafael home on July 11.

Police said they went to the home of Ralph D. Hoy on the pretext of needing television repair service which he conducts in his home.

Police said the assailants held a toy gun at Hoy's head and took his wallet containing $300.

A 13-year-old boy believed to be one of the four was turned over to juvenile authorities and another man is still sought by police.

Woman Charged In Fairfax Check Case

A Lagunitas woman arrested Wednesday in Fairfax was charged yesterday in Marin Municipal Court with three felony counts of possessing checks with intent to defraud.

Cathleen Vedder, 29, was to return to court today to enter pleas to the charge that she cashed $192 in forged checks at the Cala Market.

Homeowners Nab Suspect In Break-In

A 24-year-old man who reportedly had tried to break into a house trailer parked in front of a Terra Linda residence early this morning was captured and held by the homeowner and his son.

Sheriff's deputies said they were called to the Gerald R. Kerby residence at 1020 Las Gallinas Avenue shortly after midnight.

Kerby told the officers he had gone outside after his wife was awakened by the sound of broken glass. He said he found the front window of his trailer broken and Jacobs outside.

Jacobs was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of attempted burglary as well as possessing narcotics paraphernalia after officers found he had a plastic bag containing a teaspoon, needle and syringe with him. He was held to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

OBITUARIES

John W. Glenn, Veteran Golf Player, Dies At 90

Funeral for John W. (Jack) Glenn, past president of the Meadow Club will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Glenn, who was 90, died Wednesday in his San Anselmo home after a long illness.

Glenn, one of Marin's most enthusiastic golfers, continued to play 54 holes of golf each week until a few years ago and shot a hole-in-one on the eighth hole of the Meadow Club when he was 84 years old.

A native of Virginia, he moved to Marin County in 1921. The next year, he founded the Glenn-Rowe Cigarette Vending Co. of San Francisco. Prior to that, he had worked 35 years for the American Cigar Co. He was also a member of the Lakeside Olympic Club in San Francisco.

Entombment will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery. Memorial contributions to charity are preferred.

FIRE

Creek sanctuary, home of the near-extinct California condors, was burned yesterday before flames could be diverted, he said.

A wildlife biologist said no nests were burned and that the birds, of which 60 are known to exist, were in no danger, although 15 condors were spotted in the sanctuary some eight miles to 10 miles from the fire. Most of the condors, largest birds of prey in the world, are at a seasonal home in the southern Sierra Nevada mountains northeast of the sanctuary at this time of year, he said.

The cool air, surging inland from the ocean, brought optimistic predictions from firefighters facing another brush fire to the southeast. That blaze had burned through 3,440 acres in the San Jacinto Mountains in Riverside County by today. But state Division of Forestry spokesmen said they had it 90 per cent contained —ringed by fire lines — and expected full containment today.

A crew of 400 firefighters today contained a 370-acre blaze near the small Butte County town of Pulga and hoped to control the fire by midnight.

The fire has been burning since Wednesday in rugged terrain along the North Fork of the Feather River about 25 miles northeast of Oroville.

Fire Weather Warning In Marin

Marin is in the midst of dangerous fire weather expected to continue through tomorrow, with high winds and temperatures and low humidity, County Fire Chief Richard D. Pedroli warned today.

He asked residents to be extra cautious during the period and said no outdoor fires, including recreational fires, will be permitted.

Temperatures will be in the 90s, with north to northwest winds of 30 to 40 miles an hour. Humidity will be 15 per cent.

WILLIAM SMITH

William J. Smith of Larkspur died today in a local hospital after a brief illness. He was 84 years old.

A native of Elk, California, Smith had lived 42 years in Marin County.

Smith was a San Francisco fireman for 48 years. He retired in 1962 with the rank of battalion chief. He belongedto American Legion Post No. 397, San Francisco, and to the Widows and Orphans Association of the San Francisco Fire Department. He made his home at 60 Walnut Avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Mildred G.; a daughter, Gladys Vroom of San Jose; a son, William P. of Mill Valley; three sisters, Catherine Smith of Fruitvale, Ann Crow of Martinez, and Mary McGuinnis of Oakmont; a brother, John Smith of Santa Rosa, and four grandchildren.

'Striking' Sonoma Inmates Ask Jail Policy Changes

I-J Special Rport

SANTA ROSA - Sonoma County jail officials were to meet with prisoners today to hear complaints about jail policies.

Undersheriff Robert Hayes said many prisoners have been on a hunger strike this week to protest several jail policies. He said specific requests were to be received at the 1 p.m. meeting with inmate leaders and that his office was prepared to negotiate in an effort to settle the dispute.

Prisoners have complained about the quality of food and general health standards, Hayes said. Some prisoners have told attorneys and probation officers that inmate trustees working in the kitchen have not been screened for illness and that some serving time for drug offenses may have hepatitis.

But Hayes said all inmate trustees are screened by the staff physician before being assigned to food service and that all have been reported healthy.

Hayes said prisoners have requested access to telephones at any time they wish and have complained that public defenders are not always available when needed to prepare legal work.

The dispute so far has been very low-key, Hayes said, and he does not expect a recurrence of violence that happened last year when part of the jail was damaged by fire and inmates were temporarily housed at San Quentin prison.

Inmates said that if requests are not met they will send petitions to the Sonoma and Marin boards of supervisors, to Marin and Sonoma judges and to public defenders. Some Marin prisoners are housed at the Santa Rosa jail after sentence.

Hayes said Santa Rosa attorney Robert Y. Bell met with prisoners yesterday to give legal advice on how to proceed if their requests are not satisfied.

Hayes said the hunger strike also was expected to end after today's meeting. He said earlier this week that 36 of the 108 inmates had appeared for meals, but that this morning 87 had reported for breakfast.

Tree Control Proposed In Cotati

The Cotati Planning Commission last night approved a tree odinance requiring use permits for tree removal.

Commission Secretary Donna Olson said the commission made the proposed ordinance more strict and forwarded it to the city council for adoption.

The ordinance requires any person wishing to remove a tree to get a permit approved by the city council. The commission agreed that a penality section should be added for persons who violate the ordinance, but did not recommend a sepcific fine. commission strengthened the ordinance to require that any person wishing to remove a tree because of disease must bring an expert to the city council to attest to the disease.

The ordinance also requires that persons developing open land must replace trees that are removed. The commission relaxed the ordinance somewhat in allowing the replacement trees to be placed in approximate location of the original trees rather than the exact spot.

The commission also approved the application of Morrison Homes to rezone 13 acres at 1040 East Cotati Avenue to single family residential. One small section of the land was rezoned for commercial use and will be the location of model homes.

Sonoma Radio Tower Approved

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Plans for a radio relay tower atop Sonoma Mountain near Petaluma were approved yesterday by the Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments.

Marvin Hansen was granted a use permit for a 40-foot antenna and a small storage shed at 2000 Sonoma Mountain Road. It will serve as a relay site for citizen band radios and will become part of the civil defense system.

Span Board Reserves Fight Ends

A move by San Francisco supervisors to force the Golden Gate Bridge District to keep $10 million in reserve collapsed today.

The policy postion adopted Aug. 14 by the supervisor was vetoed yesterday by San Francisco mayor Joseph L. Alioto. The prime mover of the policy, supervisor John Molinari, today conceded there was no prospect of getting by the mayor's veto, and dropped his campaign for the $10 million reserve.

The policy position had threatened to raise a storm at today's meeting of Bridge District directors. A committee of district directors previously had recommended the reserve be held at $7.5 illion at least until the end of next fiscal year.

The bridge district staff had warned that a $10 million reserve could force either cuts in transit operations next fiscal year or increases in fares and tolls.

Alioto's veto message said the $10 million reserve could interfere with the district's planned ferryboat system.

San Francisco has nine of the 18 votes on the bridge board, thus giving it effective control because it takes 10 votes to approve expenditures.

Chico Factory Strike Grows

CHICO (UPI)—An additional 180 workers today refused to cross picket lines set up at the Diamond International Co. mill by 270 workers who went on strike in a dispute over the firing of three employes because their hair was too long.

Union officials said the additional workers backing the strike are members of a match workers union local.

Union officials said nearly all the workers at the plant are now off the job.

Reno Skyjacker Gets 30 Years Punishment

RENO, Nev. (UPI) -Robb Heady, 22, was sentenced to 30 years in prison today for hijacking a jetliner here June 2 and holding it for $200,000 ransom.

Heady, a Vietnam veteran and sport parachutist from Reno, pleaded guilty to federal air piracy charges June 30. Sentence was pronounced by Federal Judge Bruce Thompson, who said punishment was apparently the only deterrent to such crimes.

Heady heard the sentence handed down after his father, Howard, and attorneys Keith Lee and Coe Swobe made impassioned pleas for leniency on the basis of the man's good past record.

The father said his son was sent to Vietnam after six months military training and was immediately in combat. He said the war experience changed his son, and he felt there was inadequate rehabilitation when he was discharged and sent home.

He said the boy entered the University of Nevada for law training but had trouble meeting his grades.

He was working as a part-time parking lot attendant when, wearing a pillow case over his head, he approached a United Airlines 727 enroute from New York to San Francisco as it was parked near the terminal.

He held the crew at gunpoint, ordered passengers to get off, and demanded $200.000 and para-chutes. The money was provided by two gambling casinos.

Heady bailed out near Washoe Lake 15 miles south of here. He was arrested the next day as he approached his car which had aroused suspicions of authorities. The money was recovered.

Asked by Thompson if he had anything to say before sentencing, Heady said he was"frustrated in my goals."

Thompson said he would grant probation "without hesitation if this were a normal crime.

"I wonder what would have happened if the first pilot held up would have said 'Forget it' or if the first faced with a ransom demand said 'You can't get it,'" Thompson said. "Perhaps then there would be no such offense as air piracy. But the ransom is paid because of the value placed on the planes and crews.

"Punishment is a deterrent and probably is the only thing that motivates me in imposing the sentence. It is my responsibility to do what I can to deter further offenses," Thompson said.

Woman Hurt In Highway Mishap

A San Rafael woman was injured in an automobile accident at 12:30 a.m. today on Highway 101, north of Tiburon Boulevard, the California Highway Patrol said.

Rita Sue Griffin, 26, of 23 Marquard Avenue, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital after being treated for a fractured pelvis.

Old Vienna Accessible Again; Austrian Food For Mill Valley

Now that Third Street traffic in San Rafael between Irwin and Grand is no longer obstructed by street work, there is less difficulty in gaining access to the popular little Austrian restaurant Old Vienna across from United Market.

Actually there is offstreet parking in front of the restaurant itself for a few cars, or at night you can park in the area across the street or on Grand near Stan's for Sports.

The old saying that you cannot measure the worth of a restaurant by its size holds true here. It's too bad that the Old Vienna doesn't have more tables, and a full house is seating for somewhere between 30 and 40. The menu and service of owners Karl and Edith Klauda could easily support twice that.

But there is only so much room and nothing can be done about it. I don't know what to advise except to peek in the door first. If there's a table and no one is waiting, grab it.

As you would expect from the name, the food is on the Germanic side, though Karl, who cooks it, insists it's Austrian, not German. There is a difference, of course, as you will discover in the wiener-schnitzel or the pork tenderloin and lighter touch. That is Karl's wife, Edith, who does the serving, by the way.

Prices are very reasonable and the Austrian wines are superb.

ON THE SUBJECT of Austrian restaurants, another one to be known as Paprika will open about the middle of next month at 52 Throckmorton Avenue in downtown Mill Valley.

This will be where the little Redwood Restaurant is now, which will close after tomorrow night. Owners Bob Dean, Joeen Arnone and Leon Alvey are giving up their serving of South American and Mexican food. They are considering opening elsewhere in the county, but plans are not completed.

Paprika will be owned and operated by Stephen Wyle and his wife, residents of Mill Valley for the past two years. During the past year or so they have been in Europe where Stephen was general manager of Les Ambassadeurs Club in London.

He is another restaurateur who started in his field at a very early age and has had 27 years experience. For eight years he was supervisor at Trader Vic's in San Francisco.

During the two weeks or so the Throckmorton Avenue restaurant will be closed it will be given a Tirolean decor by the Wyles. When opened it will serve dinner service six days a week from 5 to 10:30 p.m. (closed Tuesdays). The fare will feature Austrian specialties, homemade pastries and bread and wines and beers will be served.

WORK HAS BEEN COMPLETED on the outdoor creekside patio at the Lark Creek Inn in Larkspur and this picturesque area is now being used for lunch groups and for cocktails. It sets off an already carefully planned, colorful dinery and takes advantage of the area's natural endowments.

EDITH KLAUDA
Serves at Old Vienna

It should be a great place to show off a bit of old Marin to your out of town friends.

SUNDAY ENTERTAINING GROUP Dick Saltzman and Co. at Holiday Inn in Terra Linda has a new bass player. He is Steve Swallow, whose line of credits with name bands is several miles long, performed over many years. He has recently moved to Bolinas.

THE SUNDAY live jazz and spaghetti feed at the Executive Club in downtown San Rafael is still going strong trong from 4 to 9 p.m. For $1.50 covering both, it's a good deal.

Since it was started several weeks ago, there have been at least two additional sit-in musicians joining the performance each week. Last week there were three.

THE NEW ALBUM of organ recordings, "Larry Vannucci Plays Music for Teenagers of All Ages," is now out and the most obvious place to acquire one is from Larry himself at San Rafael Joe's where he performs in person at the Baldwin Tuesday through Saturday nights.

So much are they in demand, he occasionally runs out of an evening's supply. But there are not many places you can go and get a sample from the musician himself before buying his recordings.

It is recorded on a larger organ than the one he uses at Joe's — a specially built Rodgers called the Bob Powers Special — an instrument that closely simulates the pipe organ and its theatrical qualities. The record contains 12 of Larry's best known popular playings.

I believe Tom McGruder at the corner of Fourth and Lootens Place also has some of the records at his store.

IT TAKES A FEW CLOUDS in the sky to complete a fine landscape picture and if the prospect of a few showers over the Mendocino coast holds you back from making a trip there, don't let it. At this time of the year a photographer can go wild over the supply of excellent material for his lens.

A recent trip to Noyo River Inn just south of Fort Bragg to visit with former Marinites Gregory and Mary Alyce Seubert showed up this dinery to its best advantage yet. I recommend an early dinner — from 6 to 7 p.m., when the dining room outlook over the Noyo River Yacht basin is particularly inspiring. And you, too, may find a few clouds in the background to give the picture its final touch.

Noyo River Inn has now attained its maturity. The action is smooth and the staff is now well trained. The food brings back recollections of Gregory's Corte Madera service. And indeed the German enchiladas are still among Gregory's best selling entrees.

The menu also features a number of seafoods from the local fishing boats. A new item added is called "Seafood Coquille Noyo." Gregory has also recently added steak and lobster and a "lady's steak" for small meat eaters, along with stuffed shrimp, beef brochettes and fresh trout from a local trout farm.

You're likely to run into someone from Marin anytime you go. Some folks make it here for the weekend; others have second homes to visit.

Again — your best time is early, during the family hours and when the light is good. On Saturday nights there is dancing later to a nice combo — but this is more for the local people who get coast scenery in full measure and want some action with their night out. You can get that here at home.

NOW BACK from his European travels is former San Francisco restaurateur and Greenbreae resident Pietro Pinoni. He reports that he and his wife had their best food in Lisbon. Wines were good, too, but he gives California vintages an edge for their uniformity.

Bird Import Crackdown Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department today imposed a ban on commercial imports of canaries, parakeets, mynahs and other exotic birds to ward off threats of disease to U.S. birds and poultry.

Agriculture officials said there was no means of determining how long the ban would remain in effect.

The prohibition was aimed at preventing carriers of a virus known as Newcastle disease from spreading the infection in the United States.

There was an outbreak of Newcastle disease in Southern California last winter, resulting in the deaths of 3.9 million pet and wild birds, chickens, turkeys and other fowl.

Although the disease can not infect man, agriculture officials said an epidemic could cause shortages of chickens, turkeys and eggs, resulting in higher retail prices.

A series of quarantines, innoculation programs and slaughter campaigns have since been used to check the spread of the disease in the United States.

But the Agriculture Department feared more outbreaks because of the refusal of foreign countries to cooperate with U.S. inspectors. Screening stations were set up overseas to inspect bijs before they were shipped to the United States, but U.S. inspectors were blocked when they tried to check the facilities.

Agriculture officials said the ban on commercial imports of finches, canaries, parakeets, parrots, mynahs and other exotic birds will remain in efect until adequate protective procedures can be developed by exporting countries.

Individuals can bring as many as two caged birds into the United States provided the pets pass stringent tests, including a 30-day quarantine, and have a notarized statement of health.

Ballots Available For Bond Election

Absentee ballots for the San Rafael open space bond election on Sept. 19 are available at the County Elections Department Civic Center, Jerry Russom, co-chairman of the San Rafael Open Space Committee, said today.

He said the next meeting of the campaign is set for 8 p.m. Aug. 30 at San Rafael High School. Precinct maps will be issued at the meeting, he said.

ALIVE AND WELL IN MIAMI

Bob Finch Eyes His Future As A California Candidate

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) —His California supporters will be happy to know that Bob Finch was alive and well in red flared pants, a moddish white shirt with blue polka dot elephants, entertaining home state politicians and newsmen aboard a yacht named "The Free Spirit."

He looked every bid a candidate for governor or the U. S. Senate in 1974.

At the same moment on another yacht in Miami, Gov. Ronald Reagan was hosting a gala party for the likes of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, singer Frank Sinatra, foreign affairs adviser Henry Kissinger and other White House staffers. Finch wasn't invited.

There never has been much love between Reagan and Finch, ever since they took office together in 1967 as Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Finch, 46, plans to return to California after the November election and size up his chances of winning either a Senate or gubernatorial race in 1974. And one of his problems could be Reagan, who also is eyeing a Senate race.

Would the politically moderate Finch run against conservative Reagan in a Republican primary? "But I wouldn't rule it out."

Finch has many other political problems, however.

Although he outpolled even Reagan in 1967, Finch has been away from California for nearly four years, first as HEW secretary and now as a Presidential counselor. There is an old political adage about "out of sight, out of mind." Private polls reflect this, showing that Finch's name recognition has slowly decreased.

That was a main reason Finch took advantage of the yacht party—hosted by White House communications director Herbert Klein of San Diego—to touch base with several score Californians.

Another political problem is that Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston is regarded, says Finch, as "certainly formidable." And he is rnning for reelection in 1974.

And in the gubernatorial race, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, controller Houston I. Flournoy and Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke are unofficially prancing around the starting gate.

So Finch really hasn't decided just what to do in 1974, if anything.

"After January," he said,

ROBERT H. FINCH
May face Reagan

"I'll look at both (Governor and Senate) very seriously. We'll take some polls and travel around the state and try to make an early decision. I'm inclined to be pretty dispassionate and objective about it."

"A third possibility," Finch said, is to wait until 1976 and challenge Democrat Sen. John V. Tunney. "He might be easier to knock off than Cranston," Finch said, pegging the odds on this course at "less than 50-50."

It was just four years ago that Finch was offered the Vice Presidency by his longtime friend and political mentor, Richard M. Nixon. Finch turned it down and Spiro T. Agnew took it.

Does Finch have any regrets? "No, I don't," he said firmly. "I feel very strongly about that, because I have no interest — have never had—in the Presidency. And I say that as someone who probably knows that office as well as anybody.

"I'd like to stay in California politics."

Finch, who has been in the "Political Game," as he calls it, for 26 years—as long as Nixon—will campaign in more than 30 states for the President this fall.

Then he will move into a Spanish-style home in San Marino, teach a political science seminar at his alma mater, Occidental, practice law "and try to make some money. I've been on short rations for the last few years."

San Rafael Car Thefts Reported

Two cars were stolen in San Rafael, police reported yesterday.

A 1964 Cadillac owned by Orville L. Lymburner of 107 J Street, San Rafael, was taken between 7:15 a.m. and 10 p.m. Wednesday from the city parking lot at Third and Hetherton Streets, according to police.

Planning Commission Reschedules Meeting

The San Anselmo Planning Commission has canceled a meeting originally set for Monday on a proposed building moratorium and will meet instead at 8 p.m. Thursday in city hall, commission chairman Duane C. Ragan said today.

He said that the citizens advisory committees on housing and open space would meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Robson House, 327 Crescent Road, as scheduled.

Court Test Stalls Busing In Detroit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)— The school year in the Detroit area will open without massive, cross-district busing of students as previously ordered.

The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday took under advisement an appeal against an order by U.S. District Judge Stephen Roth to bus pupils between Detroit's largely black schools and 52 predominantly white suburban school districts.

"It will not be possible to issue a decision before the opening of school," Chief Judge Harry Phillips said after hearing more than three hours of arguments. School opens Sept. 6.

The Justice Department intervened in the case, saying the recent legislation that busing for the purposes of integration could not go into effect until court appeals were exhausted applied to the Detroit case. President Nixon signed the legislation, an amendment to the Higher Education Act.

Attorneys for suburban school districts argued that no finding of segregation had been made in the suburban districts and therefore those districts should not be made a part an intergration plan for Detroit.

Michigan Court Ends Total Abortion Ban

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)— Improved medical techniques have made abortion a relatively safe operation, so Michigan's 126-year-old abortion law allows a licensed physician to perform the operation in an accredited hospital, the state Court of Appeals ruled Thursday.

In a 2-1 decision the court said that a doctor could perform an abortion under those conditions on any consenting woman during the first three months of her pregnancy.

It specifically rejected the contention of most antiabortion forces that the statute was designed to protect the right of the unborn child or the fetus.

The court said the 1846 law was drafted solely for the protection of the mother in an era when abortion was an unsafe medical procedure often resulting in the woman's death.

"Not only has modern medical science made a therapeutic abortion reasonably safe, but it would now appear that it is safer for a woman to have a hospital therapeutic abortion during the first trimester than to bear a child," the court said.

"Faced with this evidence, we are forced to conclude that the intended purpose of (the abortion law) is no longer existent as it applies to licensed physicians in a proper medical setting. There is no longer a sufficient state interest to justify continued prosecution of licensed physicians for the mere act of artificially inducing a miscarriage of an unquickened fetus."

Reaction to the unexpected ruling ranged from joy among advocates of a liberalized abortion law to a vow to continue the fight against such operations by antiabortion forces.

The ruling grew out of two separate abortion cases, one involving a Bay County doctor and the other an Oakland County layman who were convicted of performing illegal abortions.

The conviction of Dr. Robert S. Nixon was upheld because he performed the abortion in his office while the conviction of Samuel Bricker was upheld because he is not a licensed physician.

Retrial Denied

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (UPI) — A Maryland judge turned down yesterday a request for a new trial for Arthur H. Bremer on the conviction of attempting to kill Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace

London's Crime Rate Increases

LONDON (UPI) — Serious crime in London has reached its highest peak, Scotland Yard said today.

Provisional figures released by the yard for the first six months of this year show crimes of violence—assault, robbery, wounding—especially on the increase. Figures for rape have risen by half.

The figures put the crime total for January-June, 1972, at 7.8 per cent higher than for last year's equivalant period. The June figure of 35,163 indictable crimes is the highest ever recorded for one month and over 2,000 above the previous highest monthly total—for December, 1972.

While crime is soaring, the rate of detection is also up. Police working with the same manpower as they did for the first half of last year, have arrested 3,377 more personss for all crimes.

The figures showed there had also been a marked increase in shoplifting and fraud but a decrease in the number of homicides.

An octopus can grab as many as 25 crabs at a time in its eight arms.

West's First Black Head Of University Will Face Trouble

SACRAMENTO (AP) — James G. Bond, the first black named to head a large university in the West, will find racial troubles in his own backyard. But he says militants will have to learn that great social changes often take time.

"I think my own minority background will aid me in being sensitive to the needs of people-particularly those like the minorities that have suffered," the round-faced, 48-year-old psychologist said this week at his first news conference since being named head of Sacramento State University last week.

But Bond - who hears many stale jokes about his name being the same as the hero of the Ian Fleming spy novels - was not specific when asked how he'll deal with racial problems.

Last November the 17,500-student, tree-lined campus in the flat, largely rural Sacramento Valley, was thrown into a frenzy over the appearance of a speaker blacks labeled as a racist.

JAMES G. BOND

The school's dean of students, Norman Better, said the incident would have been soon forgotten on many of the other 18 campuses in the state university and college system - not to be confused with the nine-campus University of California system. But charges and counter-charges followed the Shockley incident and emotions were high on all sides, he said with the incident still much in the minds of many students and faculty members.

"We are usually a very quiet campus," said Better, "but this issue has remained with us long after it happened."

Bond, who was a vice president of the Bowling Green campus of Ohio State University, was appointed last week to succeed Dr. Bernard L. Hyink who is returning to teaching.

The Shockley speech might have turned out better if it had been set up in a debate fashion, Bond said, adding, "When you have a controversial figure on campus, you should have both sides presented. I don't care who the speaker is."

Asked how he will deal with militants who press for higher minority admissions quotes, Bond says he backs away from quota system of any kind because that "puts us in the pattern we worked long to get out of." Currently some 800 students at the college are black.

To the students who want change immediately, Bond cautions: "Everyone wants these problems solved yesterday. But it may take a generation to get some of these changes."

A native of Lorain, Ohio, Bond and his wife have three children ranging from 13 to 20 years old.

Strikes Record For New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—A record number of nearly 7 million working days were lost in the New York metropolitan area last year because of strikes, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reported Thursday.

BLS Regional Director Herbert Bienstock said the lost days in 1971 eclipsed the previous high of 4.7 million in 1968, the year of the prolonged New York City teachers' strike.

More than half of the man-days lost last year resulted from a strike by 50,000 New York telephone workers, Bienstock said.

11 Hurt As Support Structures On A New Freeway Collapses

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Eleven persons were injured Thursday night when support structures for a new freeway collapsed and trapped motorists under tons of huge steel beams and debris.

The California Highway Patrol said two persons, both believed to be highway workers, were critically injured when the beams and other debris crashed to the highway below.

"I couldn't even see the cars that were buried. I could hear the people screaming," said Ed Williams, who was driving home from work and narrowly escaped being crushed when the structures fell.

Larry Stitt, state resident engineer on the bridge project, said workmen were removing heavy beams in preparation for the opening of the bridge, which will carry U.S. 50 traffic.

He said when the beams were removed support gave way and produced a "dominoe effect."

A CHP officer at the scene said "when one support began to move the whole thing fell over like an erector set of a kid."

Traffic was moving in one lane each direction as workmen were removing the support structures.

Bill Miller, a spokesman for the sheriff's department, said the bridge itself did not collapse but the support beams "weighing at least a 1,000 pounds each crushed a truck and what looked like two cars."

Traffic Tragedy Grips Holland

BREDA, The Netherlan (UPI)—Dozens of cars, truc and tankers crashed today the fog-shrouded Breda-Rotte dam motorway in what poli called Holland's most serio traffic tragedy.

They said at least 16 perso were killed and 30 injured. Fi trucks or tankers and sever cars burned.

More than 30 ambulanc took victims to hospitals.

The collision occured on bo directions of a four-lane hig way which had a separati barrier in the middle.

Canadian Official Reports China Trip Altered Views

CANTON, China (UPI)— Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flew home today at the end of a nine-day, 2,000 mile tour of China which he said "changed my view of the whole world."

"I think it is quite impossible to come to China without seeing the world in a different perspective as a result," Sharp said in an interview before he left for the neighboring British crown colony of Hong Kong and his flight home. "It has changed my view of the whole world."

Sharp, the first Canadian foreign minister to visit the Peoples Republic of China, met Premier Chou En-lai, Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei, visited five cities and two communes and opened the $3 million dollar Canadian Trade Fair in Peking, the biggest ever held in China.

Although Peking has not in the past put great emphasis on international trade and has stressed rather internal self reliance, trade sources feel part of China's recent efforts at more open diplomacy foreshadow a considerable leap forward in international trade. It is estimated that last year China's total international trade reached a record high of $4,700,000.

Reporters noted in a tour of the Canadian trade fair that almost one half of the 200-odd exhibitors represented Canadian subsidaries of U.S. companies, although all but one of the exhibits, a Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. copier, were actually made in Canada. From that point of view the Fair provided the first opportunity for the Chinese to see American as well as Canadian goods in such profusion at first hand.

Sharp said he believes China's new effort to expand foreign trade "differs from any previous economic development program of any other major country. It is based on agriculture. It is not an attempt to industrialize China but an attempt to raise the living standards, beginning with food, followed by clothing and the other necessities of life, and finally heavy industry."

Sharp admitted he had come to China prepared to meet "The inscrutable Chinese." That is not what I encountered," He said. "I found a frankness which was comparable to that shown in talks with other friendly countries and this was very reassuring. I was very pleased and satisfied with the results of my visit."

"The spectacle of so many hundreds of millions of people at work in an area the size of China, after having lostcontact over a period of years, is a rather startling phenomenon," Sharp said. "Social experiment going on, you see every square foot of land being cultivated. You see the rivalry between the two great Communist powers. All of these things—seen at first hand—affect your ideas about world affairs and the probable course of events."

Seaplane Landing Ramp Plea Denied

The Marin County Environmental Protection Committee, which previously had approved a platform, ramp and pier, denied the request this time around. The committee did approve repair of a storm damaged rock.

The earlier approval had been appealed by neighbors and conservationists and the decision was reversed by the county planning commission and board of supervisors, the latter acting in O'Keefe's absence. O'Keefe, later told the board he had failed to show up because he'd mixed up his dates and was told he could apply again to the enviornmental committee.

Committee members told neighbors and conservationists yesterday that it was acting only on construction of the platform, not on O'Keefe's right to use a seaplane.

The committee than ruled that since he could use his beach or yard for landing there wasn't sufficient need to justify a platform.

The Marin County Environmental Protection Committee also:

PIER EXTENSION — Continued until Sept. 14 a request from Peter D. Whitney to add 48 feet to a pier on his property in Tomales Bay near Chicken Ranch Beach. The committee said it needed criteria to establish guidelines for the minimum necessary for "practical navigability," and would study the issue.

HOUSE CONSTRUCTION — Denied a request by Arthur Bostow to build a four-bedroom house on his property on the eastern shore of Tomales Bay on the grounds that the site was frozen by a pending lawsuit against the county filed by Whitney.

DREDGING — Approved a request from Peter Lind of Western Dock Enterprises to dredge 90,000 cubic yards of earth from Black John Slough near Marin County Airport in Novato. The favorable ruling came over objections from the environmental control division of the county health department on the grounds that it increases the likelihood of water pollution.

CATTLE FENCE — Approved a request from Joseph Brazill to build a 60-linear-foot fence near Tom's Point in Tomales Bay to keep cattle from leaving pasturelands during low tide. The committee granted approval on the conditions that a pedestrian access route be continued and that a wooden fence be constructed instead of a proposed barbed wire one.

Mosquito Control

NEWARK, Del. (UPI) — King-sized model airplanes are being used at the University of Delaware to find safer and more accurate methods of spraying for mosquitos.

Campaign Coffees: A New Twist?

Campaign coffees, a traditional staple of Marin politics, apparently will get a new look this fall in the Second Supervisorial District.

Instead of the usual round of coffees at which each candidate ends up addressing small crowds largely already backing the candidate, joint coffees may be held as well.

Incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. made the proposal to his challenger, Barbara Boxer, saying "proper scheduling could transform an ordinary coffee into an exciting open debate." He suggested they appear jointly "at all coffees."

Arrigoni said he was certain that Mrs. Boxer agreed such joint coffees "would be educational for the voters — especially those who attended your primary campaign coffees and were offered information which could bring chaos to Marin County."

Arrigoni's letter, however, did not define "proper scheduling."

Mrs. Boxer, praising the idea, wrote Arrigoni she will appear at any coffee "you can arra nge." She told the supervisor she was "pleased that your attitude toward open debate has changed, since during the primary you failed to appear at two well-attended candidates nights, left one hour early from another, and flatly refused to participate in three other debates arranged by Dr. (William Filante."

Anti-Rabies Campaign

MANILA (UPI) — Health authorities have launched a massive antirabies campaign in the southern Philippines' Negros Occidental province.

Federal Rules, Blood Bank Cleanup Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Friday moved to bring all blood collection centers — which collects 8 million pints of human blood a year for medical use — under federal control for the first time.

Dr. Charles C. Edwards, commissioner of food and drugs, said the control would help screen out contaminated blood —the cause of 1,500 to 3,000 deaths a year from infectious hepatitis alone in patients who receive transfusions.

Edwards said the proposed regulations also would guard against "exploitation" of blood donors, some of whom sell their blood to commercial blood banks.

The two-pronged program announced by Edwards would require federal registration and inspection of up to 5,000 blood collection facilities not now operating under federal license. It would require federal licensing of about 200 centers that collect and process plasma as a source of blood products.

Currently, only about 530 blood banks operate under federal license —all of them major facilities shipping blood in interstate commerce and supplying about 85 per cent of the whole blood collected across the country.

The other 15 per cent is collected by about 4,000 blood banks operating solely within a single state under widely varying local laws. Many of them subscribe to standards of such groups as the American Red Cross and the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB).

"This is not to say that all intrastate blood is unsafe or poorly regulated," Edwards said in his prepared statement at a news conference. "It is not!... But these voluntary programs lack adequate enforcement authority to stop intrastate collection and distribution of substandard blood."

Edwards and Dr. Harry M. Meyer Jr., director of the FDA's Bureau of Biologics which has responsibility for blood and its products, said the organization did not see the proposed plan as "being in conflict with the goals" of organizations concerned with blood quality and safety.

But Dr. Robert D. Langdell, president-elect of the AABB, did not agree. He said later the AABB had not been consulted about the proposals and that the regulation of blood banks in particular came as a "major surprise."

"We have been in inspection and accreditation for 20 years and have a certain amount of expertise," he told reporters. "I don't think that we ought to be regulated out of existence."

Highway 101 Road Work In Progress

Projects in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect flow of traffic Monday were announced today by the State Division of Highways.

Sections of freeway involved are:

1. Richardson Bay Bridge and one-quarter mile south, two inside southbound lanes closed between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. for paving.

2. Near Kastania Road, south of Petaluma, outside southbound lane closed between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. for filling area under freeway.

3. At Atherton Avenue in Novato, a temporary signal light will begin operating weekdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for about a month to permit hauling of dirt across the roadway. No left turns will be permitted from the freeway onto Atherton while the signal is operative.

Fiasco On Banners For County Fair

Is Marin's county fair a commercial enterprise subject to a city ordinance which forbids "windblown devices, such as banners, posters, pennants, ribbons, streamers, strings of light bulbs, spinners, balloons or other inflated objects" as advertising signs?

San Rafael city officials, including His Honor the Mayor, seem to think it is. And county supervisors didn't even argue with them.

However, Marcelle McCoy, county fair manager, believes (as we do) that the fair is nonprofit and cultural, and that therefore its banners are specifically exempt from the sign ordinance.

THE BANNERS we're talking about are those hung from electric light poles along Fourth Street in downtown San Rafael, advertising the county fair which starts next Thursday on the Civic Center grounds (also in San Rafael).

The city says the county must take down the banners.

The county supervisors have agreed to do so, if the contractor who hung them can be found.

The whole thing is a comedy of errors which reflects no credit on either city or county officialdom.

THE COMEDY started, we're told, when Fair Manager McCoy called City Mgr. James H. McCown to ask permission to hang "flags" from utility poles for the county fair.

The city manager apparently heard the word "flag" and thought immediately (after all, he's a retired Air Force man) of the Stars and Stripes. "You'll have to call the chamber of commerce about that," he said.

The chamber of commerce referred the flag inquiry to the San Rafael Jaycees, who have a project of displaying United States flags for holidays — the flagstaffs being placed in holes provided for them in the Fourth Street sidewalk pavement.

A Jaycee official told Mr. McCoy his organization had no objection, so she told the contractor to go ahead and put up the banners. He did.

THEN CAME a call from City Manager McCown. The banners would have to come down, he said. Such advertising displays are forbidden by San Rafael's 1971 sign ordinance.

Mrs. McCoy called Mayor C. Paul Bettini. Sorry, said the mayor, but the ordinance did indeed prohibit the banners. "We had to turn down the Renaissance Faire and the Greek Festival, too," he apologized.

Mrs. McCoy protested mildly that the county fair scarcely seemed in the same category.

When the supervisors were informed of the fiasco, they were rather apologetic about violating a city ordinance.

NOBODY, apparently, bothered to look up the sign ordinance, with its specific exemption for "temporary display posters without independent structural support" for nonprofit, cultural events.

Our advice to the county: Don't look too hard for that contractor until after the fair ends on Sept. 4.

Our advice to the city: Inform the county you goofed. And next time know what you're doing.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Worst Of Early Schooling: Triumph Of Collectivism

By RUS WALTON

Early schooling — formal education for children starting at age four: is it a way to give kids a head start in life? Or, is it a threat to their mental health and maximum development?

There is a great and growing body of research which demonstrates that early schooling is a threat to the child's well-being; that it can lead to acute anxieties, severe emotional and motivational problems.

Further, there is a wide variety of studies which clearly indicates that early schooling may have a hare-and-tortoise backlash: by the time they reach high school, children who start school at a later age generally excell over those who started earlier.

But perhaps the most devastating effect of early schooling occurs because the young child is taken from the security of the home and the loving care of the family, especially the mother.

THIS IS ONE of the findings of Dr. Raymond Moore, head of the Hewitt Research Center and professor of education at Andrews University, Mich. Dr. Moore and his investigating team base these findings on a coast-to-coast study of early childhood research involving educators, physicians, legislators and scholars.

"Maternal deprivation" due to early schooling is listed by Dr. Moore as the principal reason for childhood maladjustment, motivational loss, deterioration of attitudes, visual and auditory handicaps, and a wide variety of other physiological and behavioral problems.

Yet State Supt. Wilson Riles contends that early schooling would be good for California. "It will be far less costly to spend imaginatively for our very young children than to pay year after year the increasingly high remedial and social costs of school failures and school dropouts." So says Wilson Riles.

Riles is an energetic pusher of early schooling. His five-year plan for phasing early schooling into the public education system would cost at least $359 million annually by the fifth year.

THERE IS A CONSIDERABLE body of evidence to indicate that Riles is pushing in the wrong direction; that early schooling tends to generate — not prevent — mental and personality problems.

Psychiatrists have found that even partial maternal deprivation "brings in its train acute anxiety, excessive need for love, powerful feelings of revenge. . . . and guilt and depression." Further, researchers assert, the earlier a child is forced to go to school the more likely he is to develop a negative attitude toward school in later years.

Dr. Moore, a former teacher, principal and superintendent, is blunt in his appraisal:

"It is difficult to find research support for generalized early schooling as described in tha California (Riles') task force report. In fact, it is difficult to understand — in the face of substantial evidence to the contrary — how educators can justify existing generalized schooling down to ages five and six, or compulsory education below age eight."

PARENTS WHO OPPOSE early schooling are viewed by early school advocates as ignorant or obsessed with a "freedom syndrome" — the disinclination to permit the state to bend their twigs or aim their arrows.

Early school zealots charge such parental obsession deprives children of the care needed for optimum development. Sen. Javob Javits, R-N.Y., is quite candid. He proclaims: "We have recognized that the child is a care of the state."

For whom does Javits speak? Not for me. I believe the child is the care of the parents.

I prefer Dr. Albert Schweitzer's admonition:

"Humanitarianism consists of never sacrificing a human being to a purpose. The great conflict of our times is personality versus collectivism."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Too Many Believe Lies About America

Good work in presenting the series, "Lies About America."

Too many of our children are being fed these lies, and, unfortunately, believe them.

You should package up this series, if possible, and make available to youth — if you could get permission.

Personal Experience With Fluoridation

We were lucky enough, coming from Michigan 11 years ago, to have had one of our children raised to the age of 10 years in an area where the water was fluoridated. At his first checkup in California, the dentist asked where we came from, explaining that he knew with one glance in our boy's mouth that we had come from an area where the water was fluoridated. At age 21 our boy has had only one cavity, primarily attributable to the fact that his first and most important years he had the benefit of fluoridated water.

Our other children, raised in California, have been typical, with many cavities. How can we deny our children this advantage? The voices of doom can say that fluoridation is just the beginning of additives, etc., and that you can purchase fluoride tablets, but it doesn't happen that way even in families that can afford it. The loser — the child!

Incidentally, 23 years later Michigan has still added only fluoride to the water.

Dentist's Fluoridation Arguments Attacked

The simplistic approach taken by M. L. Harris, D. D. S., on Aug. 16 completely boggles my mind. His first fact extolling the virtues of fluoridating our water supply was that there are 95,584,895 persons now being subjected to this invasion of the right to pure drinking water.

An increase in mongoloid births in fluoridated communities has been reported by French researchers. In Sweden, a Nobel Prize scientist persuaded the Diet to make fluoridation illegal. Denmark has banned artificial fluoridation and prohibits the sale of food, drink, or cosmetics to which fluoride has been added. Dr. Harris' reaction to these facts was "Sweden can make its decisions for itself" and as for something "rotten in Denmark, it is probably the teeth that are rotten if they don't have fluoridation" . . .

Canal Street Story Brings Improvements

Several weeks ago you published a report headed something like "Minor Crime Wave on Canal Street." No doubt you had complaints from some who have a financial reason for their desire to hide the fact that crimes are committed in San Rafael as well as from the local and peninsula based representatives of the numerous absentee apartment house owners.

There is another side to that story. I have lived in an apartment at 260 Canal Street since April 1, 1966, and feel that I do know something about it. Quite a number of the tenants in the 60 apartments were greatly pleased with what they considered your excellent and very necessary coverage. At least six different tenants acting on their own impulse clipped the item from the Independent-Journal and mailed it to the Sunnyvale-based management firm who represent the shy owners. Most included a few well-chosen comments on the management.

The results were immediate and very gratifying and they are continuing. All maintenance and security has been tightened up and there are frequent inspections of the property by the Sunnyvale people.

I expect to spend many more years at this address and am happy to look forward with confidence to there being years of mutual understanding and respect between the owners, the management and the rent paying tenants. I thank you for your story as it shook us up and we shook others up. After all we do pay the bill.

Legislation Limits Center Eligibility

At the College of Marin, we are certainly sympathetic to the circumstances outlined in the letters to the editor of Aug. 17 by Sharon Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Wik. We, too, wish that our center could be used by all those who wish to come to the college and cannot afford child care.

Regrettably, our policies for admission must be governed by the requirements of the federal legislation (Title IV of the Social Security Act) and state legislation (AB734) under which our proposed children's center is to be funded. Under these acts, 75 per cent of the operating expenses of the Center are met by federal funds; 25 per cent are met locally. Without such support, the annual cost to the local taxpayers would be in excess of $30,000 as opposed to a projected $7,500 if federal funds are applied.

However, by law, these federal funds may only be used to pay the expenses of children whose parents are certified to be welfare recipients, or who meet legally defined criteria as potential welfare recipients.

For so-called non-certified children, expenses must be met entirely by local tax revenue, through student body funds, and through fees assessed to parents. . . The proposal authorized by the Marin County Board of Education and the Marin Community College District Board of Trustees included $2,923 in local tax revenue to allow 70 per cent of the center's children to be non-certified. . .

TODAY'S WORLD

In 1944, American troops liberated Paris in World War II.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

McGovern-Nixon Confrontation Realigning Political Parties

MIAMI BEACH — From everything that happened here at both conventions, it is evident that we are in for a most unusual, untypical, unorthodox presidential election.

How unusual, how untypical? Enough so that politics is not going to be the same this year.

THINGS AS FUNDAMENTAL as these are going to be decided:

1—Whether the Democratic left, as led by Sen. George McGovern, is the wave of the future and will soon become the base of a new national consensus.

2—Whether Richard Nixon can mobilize a clear majority at a political center more liberal and more activist than any Republican President since Theodore Roosevelt.

3—Whether McGovern's special appeal to the millions of newly franchised young people will be offset by Nixon's support among Democrats.

4—Whether the often-predicted, never-forthcoming realignment within the two parties — basically liberal versus conservative — is now at hand.

THIS IS ENOUGH to make the election a political watershed. The signs thus far are that it will be.

It is already clear that both presidential nominees are marking out new political and ideological ground for themselves.

McGovern is rejecting the traditional political center of the Democratic Party on the premise that the Humphreys, the Meanys, the Muskies and the Jacksons no lOnger reflect the thinking of the majority of the voters.

Nixon, as is evidenced by the whole thrust of the Republican platform, is rejecting the traditional political center of the Republican Party on the premise that he can no longer deal effectively with the nation's problems without moving to the left of his own party.

These are factors capable of creating a large cross-flow of voters between the major parties this year which will become more evident as the campaign proceeds.

THIS REALIGNMENT is already taking place at the top. Nixon and McGovern each point the way and beckon to a new coalition of voters to come with them.

The most striking evidence is that Nixon is nearer to the policies of Presidents Truman, Kennedy and Johnson than McGovern.

Truman created NATO as a shield for the security of Western Europe; Nixon is intent upon preserving it.

Kennedy, in his famous American University speech, called for rethinking U.S. foreign policy with respect to Russia and China; Nixon carried it forward.

Nixon turned to wage-price controls to fight inflation, accepted huge budget deficits to stimulate employment, and supported a guaranteed family income to replace the old welfare system.

AS NIXON MOVED away from the traditional Republican center, McGovern has moved away from the traditional Democratic center.

I am not presenting Nixon's policies as better than McGovern's. I am simply saying that together they are bringing signs of a considerable switch in party alignment this year. Two separate surveys, Gallup and Daniel Yankelovich, find that from 30 per cent to 40 per cent of Democratic voters are moving to Nixon's side.

What is happening is that on the basis of more liberal policies the President is in the process of building a new Republican majority out of Democratic voters McGovern is apparently losing.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Pat Nixon Shows America The Advantages Of Ladyhood

MIAMI BEACH — This will be resented in female chauvinist circles, but: I like Pat Nixon better than I do Germaine Greer, and I like Jill Ruckelshaus better than I do Betty Friedan, and I like these braless Republican girls who seem to take showers every day better than I liked those braless Women's Libbers who were so numerous here last month, and who seemed not to.

Mrs. Nixon is everything Women's Lib stands against. Wife of an apprentice lawyer, Navy wife, politician's wife for 26 years now. Wife, wife, wife. Since she and her husband honeymooned in Mexico, she has never been out in public in any role other than that of Mrs. Richard Nixon. Even the President's admirers will concede that has been a difficult one, considering the constant campaigning and occasional bitter defeats in his career. What his nonadmirers would think of it boggles the vocabulary.

She is, her press agents say, the most widely traveled First Lady in history. She has gone to Peru to look at an earthquake, to Peking and Moscow with her husband, and in Africa she was decorated with the Grand Cordon in the Most Venerable Order of Knighthood of the Pioneers of the Republic of Liberia. She has pushed volunteer work at home, and taken serious interest in improving the White House.

BUT SHE IS NOT Eleanor Roosevelt, and it is doubtful that the photograph of her wearing an African costume somewhere near the Gulf of Guinea will last in the pictorial history books as the one has of Mrs. Roosevelt rubbing noses with a dark-complected lady during her wartime travels.

She is not Jackie Kenndy, and she is not Lady Bird Johnson, and she is not Abigail McCarthy or Eleanor McGovern or Muriel Humphrey, although she and Mrs. Humphrey probably match up closest.

When she came to town Sunday, the lady reporters who covered her thought it mattered that she wore a long-sleeved pink-and-white print dress. What she said when she saw all the Nixonettes in red, white and blue costumes was that she was deeply touched because 3,000 youngsters reportedly had paid their way here to help at the convention. "That's the winning spirit," she said. Nobody expected her to add the aside that they paid their own way because they could quite well afford to, and she didn't.

On arrival and at the women candidates' breakfast the next morning, at the Pennsylvania caucus, the Indiana-Connecticut-Vermont-Rhode Island caucus, the tribute to Ike, the cocktail party for Mr. Agnew and up to the "tribute to the First Lady" at the convention hall, she could be relied on to do exactly what was expected of her. The occasion on which she has ever embarrassed her husband or anybody else, or when she even dropped an accidental hell or damn in public, escapes the memory.

And it comes as a nice relief, in these days of Shirley MacLaine in politics. Shirley is as ingenious in finding ways to use That Word as S/Sgt. Harry Sinclair used to be back at Quantico 20 years ago.

LEST THIS tone poem lead you to think I have gone soft in the head or heart or someplace, please note the hard political fact that a lot of voters out there are making the same contrast. Despite what looks at times like glassy-eyed fatigue, and despite what must be a constant sense of having done it all before, Mr. Nixon's wife has contributed a lot of points for her husband in these 26 years of politics.

That her existing purely as an auxiliary of her man could be productive nevertheless has to infuriate the fem-lib girls, who were not as a group devoted to the welfare of the Republician Party anyhow. That this convention gave brief shrift to most articles of their faith, for example omitting any abortion plank from the platform, cannot be said to disillusion them because they had no illusions to start with.

Yet the long-range cause of women's rights, including that of abortion on demand, may have been served better by events here than by the marching, shouting and television talking of months past. This time, women at home saw one of the brightest, most attractive wives of the Establishment — Mrs. William Ruckelshaus — making their case before the platform committee.

When someone with her class comes out front for what used to be a radical idea, it moves much closer to common acceptance than when its most noticeable champions are also militant advocates of free love or lesbianism. And when someone like Mrs. Nixon makes a lifelong decision that she can be most effective by being most wifelike in the old-fashioned sense, there is a message there, too — Germaine, Gloria, Betty, Ti-Grace, Shirley, Jane and the other girls notwithstanding.

Cost Of Maintaining Brasilia: $3,359,095 This Fiscal Year

You probably will like to know whether or when I received the balanced transportation report that I told you of ordering from the Marin County planners.

It came in the mail one week after I ordered it, but too late to change the copy for last week which I had prepared and filed hours before. I will tell you about it further on. But first this:

WHENEVER TV Channel 4 is tuned in, there appears at many of the station breaks clear across the tube the long stretch of roof-line and building of Brasilia.

As we all have "a piece of the Rock" this was built on hilltops and the open space of beautiful peaceful grazing land that was violated. I have thought from time to time that I would do some checking as to the cost of maintenance which will be with us from here on out.

These are the "numbers." They can be found in the budget under the heading of "General Property Management (Maintenance)." For the years 1970—'71—'72 and budgeted for fiscal '73 the price tag is $3,732,328. Of this 90 per cent is applicable to the buildings and grounds of Brasilia. This figure is $3,359,095. To this of course must be added the years that the courthouse was being used. It would have been hard to unscramble and allocate the proper amount to the above.

This dollar cost will probably increase as time goes on. As a matter of fact, the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation was all set to go with more and more beautification, but being election year they so startled and scared the throne room bunch that they are probably not over it yet.

ANENT THE BALANCED transportion report: I mailed it on Thursday. They received it on Friday. The girl who handles such things works two days a week and came back to work on Tuesday —didn't get to my letter until Wednesday. The most beautiful production was mailed to me and it arrived Thursday. So there!

The report is truly a thing of beauty — a work of graphic art — a fine promotional job. The cover, a lovely coffee-cream color, encloses about 96 pages of rich cream-colored art paper — nice heavy stock.

The first page is a letter from Werner von Gundell, the director. It was dated June 8. He states that, "Phase III is scheduled to begin in July and will be aimed at implementing the recommendations made by this report."

The next four pages are devoted to credits, such as are seen on the TV screen. These pages are all done with carefully shaded paneling. The next page is a table of contents, nicely grouped with separate headings, and the next page is devoted to list of figures and list of tables.

These pages all have Roman numerals from i to xii and cover "Summary — Recommendation — Findings and Conclusions." The following page is covered with an artist's whimsical drawing of the Golden Gate Bridge, with these conversational balloons: "But think how bad this would be without that bus," and "Tell me, dear, how do they get all these other cars into that one other lane to go home at night?" Then, "There goes that balanced transportation man!@!%★" This drawing would seem to be a planner's contribution to the cartoons of the day. It shows the bridge loaded with cars and buses with the exception of one lane that is open with just two cars — one is being driven by "@#!%★"

What was that oldtime depression word?

Hearing Set In $23,000 Grand Theft

The Tiburon man accused of stealing $28,000 in cash from a Napa restaurateur in Tiburon has pleaded innocent to charges of burglary and grand theft.

A preliminary hearing for William Andrew Stephen Hodge, 34, who is being represented by the public defender, has been set for next Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Hodge surrendered to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in Indianapolis, Ind., reportedly after an unsuccessful attempt to leave the country.

He is charged with stealing a briefcase containing $28,000 in cash from Lee Carbone's room at the Tiburon Lodge. Hodge had reportedly spent the evening of Aug. 3 wining and dining with Carbone and his wife in Tiburon.

Hodge also faces a federal charge in Indiana, where he is accused of arranging to have an Ohio warehouse burned down in order to collect insurance benefits.

Five Years' Grace — Plus One; But Nonconforming Signs Remain

More than six years ago, the Mill Valley City Council passed a sign ordinance which spelled out the maximum size and height of commercial signs in the city.

The ordinance was designed to preserve the beauty of Mill Valley's few commercial avenues by prohibiting large or garish signs.

As could be expected, store owners were not delighted to learn that their expensive signs had just become illegal. Accordingly, the city council gave merchants with signs that were too large, too high or too ugly five years to take them down.That was back in 1966.

One year ago, the five-year grace period expired, but, according to Planning Director Tom W. Newton, not one nonconforming sign was removed.

ONE QUICK DRIVE down Miller Avenue reveals an illegal old washing machine perched high atop a self-service laundromat, a neon sign for a bar hanging illegally out over the sidewalk, and an enormous sign for a drug store.

These signs are flagrantly violating the sign ordinance, but Newton says they're only the most obvious abuses.

In fact, he guesses that 90 per cent of the businesses in town have one or more sins that are prohibited under the ordinance.

TALK WITH MOST merchants and they'll tell you that bigger signs mean bigger profits.

Not true, says Newton.

"Naturally, merchants have to have signs to attract attention to their business," said the planning director. "But, as soon as one guy puts up a bigger sign, his competitor will also put up a new sign. So neither of them is better off."

Three months ago, Newton sent an old list of 14 merchants with illegal signs to the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce. He asked for the chamber's help in seeking voluntary cooperation from these merchants. To date, says Newton, only one merchant has bothered to inquire about the ordinance and not one illegal sing has been taken down.

Illegal signs clearly detract from the beauty of Mill Valley, but in the absence of any enforcement policy from the city council, it appears the signs are here to stay.

Napa Firm Applies To Install New Berm

CIRCUS REVIEW

By PAT PERRY

OAKLAND — From the daring young men on the flying trapeze to the roaring tigers, from the silly, silly clowns to the super-dazzle spectacles, it was just about everything a circus should be.

It was, in fact, almost too much circus.

For sure, if just one more sequin-soaked elephant had plodded into the ring last night, the roof of the Coliseum would have exploded and Oakland would have been knee-deep in spangles this morning.

The 102nd edition of Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus opened last night at the Oakland Coliseum, and in lavish fashion manages to combine the splendor and spectacle that modern audiences demand with the simple fun that circus means.

But without exception they loved the clowns. It's one of the great myths of the 20th Century that everyone loves a clown and it's even mythier to suppose that all children love a clown. Too often they've been stuck with tired old men lamely slugging each other with wet mops.

The clowns in this circus are bright and fresh and funny and had the blase Bay Area youngsters in stitches from start to finish. Products of producer Irvin Feld's college of clowns, they're undoubtedly going to revive an honorable profession.

When the troupe of clowns tumble one by one from a tiny car in a hilarious variety of getups it's as if all the gentle fun of childhood pops out before your very eyes. Clowns in cow suits, clowns with funny feet and faces, clowns with silly hats and daft walks, clowns with watermelons that squirt water, clowns upon clowns.

There are so many acts and so many thrills it's difficult to single out many. My own children particularly loved the fat animals, simply because they looked so lovable.

Fat animals?

Well. . .there's the Jacki Althoff performing bears. With their short fat hairy legs and dainty feet they looked for all the world like plump matrons as they waddled around the ring on their hind legs.

And there were a couple of obese lions who had difficulty raising a convincing roar, let alone opening their mouths wide enough to let Spaniard Pablo Noel shove his head inside.

They didn't, however, go much for the traditional whipcracking that accompanied the lion and tiger acts. Today's generation of children isn't prepared to accept any indication of subjugation of animals by man, and it's a pity that this token of former cruelty is allowed to remain.

The spectacle numbers are splendidly costumed and when the cast floats upwards in a dazzle of lights it really is like being pitched into a kaleidoscope.

Undoubtedly the best act is the Flying Gaonos of Mexico. When they strode into the ring in long velvet cloaks, muscles and spangles rippling, we all roared our approval.

And as they soared from trapeze to trapeze with all the perfect timing of a space launch, it was infinitely reassuring to know that the lifestyle of the circus, at least, hasn't changed.

The circus continues at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena until Tuesday, then from Wednesday through Sept. 4 will be at the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Girl Flees Iron Curtain; Red Tape Pulls Her Back

GORIZIA, Italy (UPI) — Elizabeth, 11, made it safely across the border from Yugoslavia, in the hazardous manner of thousands of refugees from Communist lands since World War II.

But for Elizabeth, there will be no new life in the West.

Authorities sent Elizabeth back to Yugoslavia because, they ruled, she is too young to request political asylum.

Authorities said they could remember no case like it before.

The girl was not identified except as Elizabeth, a Polish citizen who slipped across the border late Wednesday into this city of 43,000 located directly on the border with Yugoslavia.

Border police said the girl's stepmother was stopped and arrested by Yugoslav authorities as she tried to cross the border. But Elizabeth made it alone.

Her uncle, who police said fled to Switzerland a year ago, met Elizabeth at the border.

Police said he tried to keep the girl with him by claiming he was her father. But they said his documents proved otherwise.

So under an agreement between Italy and Yugoslavia on political refugees, the girl was turned over to Yugoslav officials.

There, police reported, Elizabeth rejoined her stepmother — behind bars.

FAMILY

"101 Dalmations" — Clever takeoff on the British detective yarns with dogs playing the important parts. Fifteen puppies are dognapped and the hunt and chase is suspenseful.

"Snoopy Come Home" — Based on Charles Schulz's beloved Peanut comic strip this narrative follows Snoopy's adventures when he leaves his friends at the beach to visit his former owner, Lila, who is in the hospital. Eight new songs.

"What's Up, Doc?" — Set in San Francisco, treated with a sophisticated touch, this fast moving slapstick, nutty comedy revolves around a mixup with four identical suitcases.

"Who Says You Can't Ride a Rainbow!" — Jack Klugman plays the part of a man who adores children and loves animals. He builds a small animal farm in the middle of an industrial district in New York City. There is great opposition but the solution will delight the entire family.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"The Candidate" — A taut drama about an idealistic young lawyer running for the office of senator. The acting, direction and photography combine to give film realistic texture and adds impact to the vital theme of political disillusionment.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources uay adults only)

"Cabaret" — Set in Berlin in 1930 a zestful young American girl singer at a cabaret proclaims herself the symbol of "divine decadence". Her love affairs lead to a pregnancy where paternity is unsure. Well made film but sophisticated and bawdy with foul language and sex.

"Chato's Land" — Excellent cast, fine photography make film memorable. A posse seeking the Indian Chato after he kills the sheriff, capture and rape his woman. Chato is now the pursuer and in his way gets his revenge. Gruesome violence.

"Duck, You Suckers" — Italian made western set during the Mexican Revolution of 1913. An illiterate but shrewd Mexican peasant and a dynamite-tossing Irish revolutionary team up to rob a bank only to discover political prisoners instead of money in the vaults and they become heroes. Very violent.

"Frenzy" — Hitchcock brings us a necktie murderer who is a sexual psychopath and on the loose in London. Very suspenseful with nudity and cursing.

"Harold and Maude" — A heavy handed film about an old woman who teaches a young man how to enjoy life. For those who can laugh at funerals, old age, suicide and mental disturbance.

"Play It Again, Sam" — In this sex comedy, Woody Allen is a dedicated movie buff and as a writer lives in a fantasy world where he gets advice from his favorite actor, Humphrey Bogart, on how to solve his sex problems.

ADULTS ONLY

"Clockwork Orange" — This film hypothesizes a state where violence is the rule that can only be broken by means of Pavlovian conditioning. A London teenage gang that hates anyone different from them roam the streets and rob, rape and terrorize. A very brutal film with sex and nudity.

"Godfather" — Gripping epic gangster film filled with excessive violence. The head of Mafia leads two lives, as a kindly head of a family and then as leader of a mob whose business is killing.

"The Graduate" — A young college graduate returns to his wealthy parents home unsure of what he wants to do with his future. He becomes involved with a married woman and also with her daughter. Nudity and sex.

"Grasshopper" — A restless young woman searching for an ultimate love marries a black exfootball hero. Her subsequent decline from Las Vegas show girl to a two-bit hustler complete this soapopera. Language, nudity and sex scenes very strong.

"Play Misty For Me" — A terrifying suspense thriller about a radio disc jockey and an insane fan who pursues him. Many bloody deaths and some sex scenes.

"Prime Cut" — Film explores the underworld operation of the meat packing business that is actually a front for drugs and prostitution. Excessive violence, nudity and cursing.

"Where's Poppa" — A brutally frank, hard hitting black comedy is a relentless attack on momism. A monstrous mother and her long suffering son come to grips over his falling in love. Rape, nudity, many obscenities.

Amtrak Picks Eastern Route

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amtrak has approved passenger service from New York City through New England to Montreal and rejected an alternate route through upstate New York.

Amtrak President Roger Lewis said Thursday that the New England route would generate twice as much revenue as the New York route, about $2.4 million, and the favored route would serve a greater population. The selected corridor would also provide the first Amtrak service for Vermont and New Hampshire.

Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corp., set up by the federal government to run passenger trains.

Capital Selection

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Jefferson City became the state capital of Missouri in 1825, four years after Missouri became a state. It was the sixth city chosen before the capital became permanent. The first seat of government was St. Louis.

A GARAGE TAKES A BEATING

The shingled roof of this garage is all that remains intact at the James M. Hirai residence, 4386 Paradise Drive in Tiburon. It was knocked off its stilts late last night when a sportscar driven by Dr. John H. Ino of 5045 Paradise Drive left the road and struck a crucial support on one corner of the structure. Down the hill went the garage, and the 1972 Chrysler station wagon inside. Mrs. Hirai later told police she thought an earthquake had struck the area. Damage to the garage is estimated at $12,000. The station wagon was only slightly damaged. Dr. Ino's sports car was extensively damaged.

Nixon Joins Battle, Rips McGovern

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)–To judge by the curtain raiser, President Nixon has junked the script that called for him to remain above the battleand plunged into his last campaign relishing the chance to strike out at his foes.

His strategists had passed the word for months that Nixon would not don the politician's hat until Congress adjourns. Being President, they said, was the "best politics" Nixon could play.

But they did not bargain on the President, who does not like to leave the game to chance.

Less than 12 hours after he had delivered his acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention in Miami, Nixon hit the road in search of that "New American Majority."

In a 14-hour, 4,000-mile cross country swing, Nixon had Democratic opponent George McGovern on target constantly, without mentioning his name.

He spoke before the American Legion in Chicago and was applauded loudly when he chastized those – obviously meaning McGovern–who Nixon said would cut the defense budget and relegate America to the position of a "second rate power."

He also has made a major campaign issue out of amnesty for draft dodgers, challenging McGovern's more lenient position.

"I think we have had enough of running down our men who have served their country, rather than deserting it and running off to Canada," he said. "I think we ought to stand up for those who served it."

"He's in great shape," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. And Nixon looked it, speaking mostly off-the-cuff, with eloquence and emotion.

His campaign staff had done their work well, drawing out the crowds at welcoming rallies in San Diego–which Nixon calls his "lucky city" because he never lost it in an election–and on home soil in San Clemente.

Either because he is concerned about the 18-year-old vote or is seeking a landslide, Nixon made his strongest pitch to youth throughout the day.

At his appearance in Utica, Mich. to dedicate the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School, speaking to an all-white, strongly antibusing audience, Nixon invoked memories of his own youth.

With emotion he recalled his father who "only finished the fifth grade."

"He wanted to go to school but his mother died," Nixon said. "They were very poor, and he had to go to work. His greatest desire for his children was for them to get a college education because he only finished the fifth grade."

In San Diego, a town heavily dependent on the Navy, Nixon said his defeat would mean cuts in Navy strength that would make the United States second to the Russians in seapower.

"Please don't ever send a president to the negotiating table as head of the second strongest nation in the world," Nixon said.

A crowd of about 15,000 from the four California cities where Nixon has lived, invited to attend an "old neighbors" rally, turned out for a reception at the Western White House.

Nixon, obviously having enjoyed his first full day on the campaign trail, settled in for a two week stay in his oceanside villa to plan political strategy. He will fly to Hawaii next Thursday for a two-day meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and then return to San Clemente until after Labor Day.

Registration At College Continues

More than 5,500 students already have completed registrations for credit classes this fall, College of Marin announced today.

Registration will continue weekdays through Aug. 31 with one session scheduled for the last day from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in room A of the college center. Students who fail to meet the deadline will be subject to a late registration fee.

Students may add classes to their schedule through Sept. 18. Counselors are available during registration hours, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., for students who need help in planning a study program.

There are no fees to students under 21 or to those enrolled in 10 class hours or more per week.

Registration Set Monday

Registration for 100 College of Marin adult education classes starts Monday at 8:30 a.m. at the registrar's office on the Kentfield campus.

For the most popular classes —ceramics, creative needlecrafts, knitting and crocheting — all indications are that very early enrollment is advisable.

In previous years ceramics class entrants have lined up as early as 5 a.m.

A printer delay has caused late mailing of the class schedule booklets to the 12,000 Marin residents who requested them. Additional copies are available through the registrar's office.

Classes start Sept. 11, and mail registrations are accepted.

Bringing Prices Back Into Reach

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

If enough shoppers were determined to bring rocketing food prices back into reach, they could do il by following a few simple rules as they fill up their grocery carts.

Take beef. A nationally known food authority says that if every two weeks Americans were to forego a beef meal that they normally eat and shift to another product, this would quickly reduce demand by 3½ per cent. And the result would almost certainly be lower prices, according to the expert, since a shift of only 3 or 4 per cent can make the difference.

To bring that point home to shoppers, the government has embarked on a consumer persuasion program through a series of television spots, distributed to TV stations. It is the soft sell, the gentle nudge. No one is actually telling the housewife not to buy beef or fruits and vegetables at the peak of their prices.

But it is being suggested that she adopt money-saving practices in her shopping, that she take advantage of sales and buy foods when they are plentiful and lower in price.

In other words that she — you — shop thriftily. That you buy high-priced meat less often and look for less-expensive meats, or cheaper cuts. Or buy poultry instead.

The food industry, as well as the administration, is concerned about the high price of food, and is cooperating with the White House in directing consumer attention, through its advertising, to the day's better buys, to special sales at the meat counter and throughout the store.

Actually, this type of advertising is not very different from the usual sales appeal, except that the emphasis is stronger and more specific.

The industry, also, would like to see prices stabilized because it fears that a continuing upward trend might result in some type of government price controls on food.

The President is reported as "extremely troubled" by rising food prices. And needless to say, this is a sensitive area of the economy in an election year.

In addition to tie-in food advertising, the big food chains will have their home economist emissaries on the road speaking to consumer groups. This is not unusual either. Almost all of the major chains today have shopping advisers to speak to women's groups and, yes, even to men's groups too on shopping techniques.

The food industry has not forgotten the lesson it learned from the housewives' boycotts which spread across the nation in 1966 to protest high prices in the supermarket.

The president of the National Association of Food Chains, Clarence Adamy, recalls that "five years ago my consumer advisory committee was composed of 12 people. Today there are 73 people on that committee."

Evelyn Backer, a home economist for Safeway who covers a number of Eastern states, stresses the importance of price watching. Her suggestion is that housewives not only make out a shopping list in advance, but that they date it and mark the price opposite each item as they put it in the shopping cart.

THE $30,000 BUGAZZI

America's most expensively built luxury car was crafted by a group of young car customizers in Hollywood, who call their firm the California Show Cars Inc. Based on the Continental Mark IV, which costs $10,000 to start with, the Bugazzi undergoes almost a complete transformation. A few of the features: racing type wire wheels; two-layer application of sound-deadening, rust-proofing and fireproofing; imported glove suede upholstery, Italian marble slabs lining the doors and dashboard, a bar built into the rear seat armrest; a restyled body of steel and Gorlon, with functional running boards, and carpeted trunk compartment with chromed hand tools individually packed in vinyl cases. "What Michelangelo did in marble, we do in steel, fiberglass and aluminum," said Paul Rimmeir, president of California Show Cars Inc.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Fast Growth Stocks Suitable For Risk

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am 35, have adequate savings and life insurance, comfortable salary and company retirement program. I have $16,000 for immediate investment, what stocks would you suggest? — G.W.

A. Certainly with your well-established financial position and at your age you can afford a greater degree of risk than most older investors. Three fast growth stocks which are suitable are: Marion Laboratories, Ponderosa Systems and Tool Research & Engineering.

In fiscal 1972 — ended June 30 — sales gained 3 per cent for Marion Labs (NYSE), while net jumped 27 per cent to 95 cents a share. Company manufactures a line of ethical drugs, first-aid systems, health foods and markets health care products for others. Ponderosa (ASE) operates 88 steak houses and licenses 83 others. Beef is supplied by a wholly owned subsidiary. Revenues rose 49 per cent in the year ended Feb. 25, 1972, and in the May quarter sales moved up 47 per cent, while net income gained 62 per cent. Company is gradually purchasing licensed units, which should accelerate future growth.

Tool Research (NYSE) makes honeycomb materials for the aerospace industry and locks for use by the building trades. A substantial increase in sales and earnings should be reported for the year ended July 31. Compound average five-year growth rates are excellent — 32 per cent for Marion, 52 per cent for Tool Research and 71 per cent for Ponderosa.

Q. I am contemplating buying more shares of Consolidated Investment Trust, a closed-end fund. Keeping in mind that preservation of capital is important to me at this time, is this a wise move? — R.B.

A. In view of your investment needs, this conservative fund is an appropriate choice. The fund's investment goal, gradual growth of principal and income, is achieved through a diversified portfolio of about 50 high-grade growth stocks held over the long term. In 1967, the investment trust changed from a closed-end to open-end fund.

Rail Debt Refinanced To Avoid Bankruptcy

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Shareholders of the Penn Central Co., the parent firm of the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad, voted overwhelmingly today to refinance a $64 million debt owed to a group of Swiss banks.

The crucial refinancing plan is the basis of the holding company's bid to stay out of bankruptcy.

The plan was approved in an unusual two-day annual meeting held in the ballroom of a hotel here. Some 500 people filled the room Thursday, many of them shouting and screaming their complaints during a stormy five-hour meeting.

However, only about 150 quiet shareholders were on hand today when the vote was announced. The final vote showed 12,123,724 shares for the plan and 1,807,599 against.

Archibald Deb. John, chairman of the company, said the vote "postpones the maturity date of these notes. It means that we don't have to repay them and that's the most important thing."

The company went to the Swiss banksin 1969 for the loan in a desperate bid to save the railroad from financial collapse.

The Swiss banks were anxious for an agreement on the plan, and paid the $160,000 needed so the company could hold the annual meeting.

The shareholders also approved the election of 10 men to the board of directors, including Andrew Allen, a wealthy San Francisco investor who has battled the plan in the courts and at the meeting.

He said his main objection to the plan was that it called for the parent company to put up 35 per cent of the railroad's stock as collateral.

MANOLETE REMEMBERED

Tribute To A Dead Bullfighter

LINARES, Spain (UPI)— Bullfighting fans converged on this sun-scorched Andalusian town today for ceremonies commemorating an event which threw Spain into weeklong mourning 25 years ago —the death of Manolete.

Manolete was the nom de guerre of Manuel Rodriguez whose artistry and somber, brooding personality dominated the bullfighting scene in the forties. Posters of Manolete still sell well in Spain,and his picture sometimes adorns the covers of bullfighting magazines. The death of Manolete is still a theme for folk ballads.

Acts commemorating the fatal goring of Manolete in the Linares bullring Aug. 28, 1947, will highlight the weeklong San Agustin fiesta starting Saturday.

On Tuesday, a Mass will be read for Manolete. Some of Spain's top matadors will appear in a series of bullfights wearing black armbands.

One of them will be veteran Luis Miguel Dominguin who was sharing the card with Manolete on that tragic day 25 years ago.

Many aficionados still think that Dominguin's outstanding performance that day may have goaded a jealous Manolete into taking even greater risks than usual.

Dominguin was then 21 and challenging Manolete for the No. 1 spot in bullfighting. Manolette was 33 with 20 years of bullfighting and had been gored at least a score of times.

The "monstruo" — literally monster but in this sense meaning prodigy — was unlucky with his first bull, winning nothing more than polite applause for an ucinspiring performance.

Then came Dominguin witth a brilliant display of caping and sword work that had the crowd roaring its approval.

Manolette's second bull was a huge black Miura, Spain's most famous breed. It had originally been brought in to be fought by the third matador on the card but for yet unexplained reasons was switched to Manolete in a deal among bullfighters' managers.

The fatal goring occurred in the last second of the fight. As Manolette bent between the bull's horns to sink his sword into its heart, the beast's final reflexes produced a powerful lunge and its right horn ripped open Manolete's femoral artery.

He died at sunrise the next morning.

Hitchhiker Drug Charge Reduced

Felony drug charges against a Sonoma County man who attracted police attention because he was hitchhiking in the street instead of on a curb were reduced yesterday to misdemeanors.

Daniel Lewis Hurst, 27, of El Verano, earlier had been ordered bound over to superior court on charges of possessing hashish and amphetamines. The district attorney's office did not file charges but pressed misdemeanor counts of the same crimes in municipal court.

A request by Hurst that the case be dismissed because of illegal search yesterday was taken under submission by Judge David R. Baty.

Hurst was arrested in May by Sausalito police who stopped to warn him about hitchhiking and discovered an outstanding traffic warrant from San Francisco. Suspected drugs were found in his possession.

Assault Suspect Pleads Insanity

Jerry Amos Smith, 18, of Santa Venetia, who was picked up last week on a bench warrant, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a charge of assaulting a Marin County Sheriff's Deputy with a knife.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Sept. 7 in Marin Municipal Court.

Smith was arrested June 2 by sheriff's deputies who went to his home to quiet a disturbance. The officers said he fended them off with a knife which he threw at one deputy, narrowly missing him.

The two deputies said Smith surrendered only aftr being maced and tear gassed.

TRICK REFUSED

West opened the king of hearts, and South refused the first trick. West continued with the queen of hearts, and East discarded a low diamond. Since there was no particular point in holding up again, South took the ace of hearts.

Declarer could count on winning two top spades, two top clubs and three top diamonds in addition to the trick already won. How could he develop his ninth trick?

There wasn't much chanceof developing a club trick. The six missing clubs would have to divide evenly, and it would also be necessary to keep West out of the lead.

DEPENDS ON WEST

There was a far better chance of developing an additional spade trick. South had to hope that West would have the queen or jack of spades with not more than two small cards in the suit.

Declarer therefore led the seven of spades from his hand and finessed with dummy's eight. East won with the jack of spades and returned the queen of clubs.

CASHES KING

Now South took dummy's ace of spades and entered his own hand with the ace of diamonds to cash the king of spades. Fortunately for South, West had to drop the queen of spades on this trick. Now the ten of spades was good for the ninth trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 6 3 2
♥ - 9
♦ - 8 7 5 3
♣ - F J 10 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have only four points in high cards, and your singleton in partner's suit is a liability. If partner had opened with one spade, you would gladly raise to two spades since then your singleton in hearts would be an asset.

College Sets Graduate Exams

Graduate record examinations will be given four times at Sonoma State College in the 1972-73 school year.

The exams are used by many schools in admitting graduate students and by many fellowship programs. The examinations include an apptitude test of general scholastic ability and advanced tests in 19 major fields of study.

Exams will be given on Oct. 28, Jan. 20, April 28 and June 16. Applications for the Oct. 28 test must be submitted by Oct. 3. Scores from that test will be reported to graduate schools in early December.

MARIN ACADEMY

New School, New Outlook

A new private high school will open its doors Sept. 6 on the grounds of the defunct San Rafael Military Academy.

Coeducational Marin Academy (no connection to the former military school) expects 75 students will be enrolled by opening day. And William McCluskey, its headmaster, hopes that number will eventually swell to 300 and include more minority and low income youngsters.

The day school at Fifth and Cottage avenues will seek to give its students "physical and mental challenges they've never had before," according to the genial 43-year-old educator.

"We're looking for the youngster who is talented and turned off by his previous educational experience," he said. "The people who come to Marin Academy don't have to have good grades, just the desire to put forth a pretty decent effort."

McCluskey, who brings 20 years experience in private school education to the post, said the academy will focus on a strong college preparatory curriculum —English, math science, foreign languages, sociology, anthropology and history.

But, in addition, the school will seek to encourage youngsters with strong interest in fields not regularly taught. This will be done through "mini-courses," periods set aside during the year when specialists in various fields work with students in subjects which most interest them, from movie-making to marine biology.

"We're not a way-out school and we're not totally traditional," the headmaster said. "In a way, we're providing a sensible middle ground for the many kids who are not geared to either completely structured or totally freewheeling institutions."

Classes will be small, with a maximum student-teacher ratio of 15 to 1, although most courses will have fewer students. Instruction will be flexible, with individual programs set up for those who need or want them.

On weekends, those at the academy will leave their books behind and have a chance to test their physical prowess in a variety of outings, from backpacking to elementary mountain climbing.

The academy was conceived some time ago by a group of Marin and San Francisco parents who saw the need for a small, private secondary school.

But a lack of available facilities hampered efforts to get the school going until the military academy announced it was closing and its buildings became available. Some of those who participated in the early planning are among the schools' 12 trustees.

WILLIAM McCLUSKEY
"Everyone has a creative bent.

The student body (60 per cent from San Francisco and the rest from Marin) will come from every race and economic level. Full and partial scholarships are still available to those who cannot afford to pay the $2,050 yearly tuition and McCluskey urged interested students who would need financial help to apply soon.

The school's faculty, selected from more than 300 applicants from across the nation, will include seven full-time and five part-time teachers chosen for their "senses of humor, dedication to kids" and ability to "enjoy what they're doing," the headmaster said. Average age is about 31. "I'm the oldest," McCluskey joked.

McCluskey wants to keep in touch with the students and will teach English this fall. In addition he said his door "will always be open" to students who want to see him. "I've never had a secretary to protect me from my students."

The headmaster is a graduate of Wesleyan University in Connecticut where he was captain of the football team and All-New England.

He began his career as the university's assistant football coach, then taught English at Tabor Academy in Massachusetts. He taught at the Northwood School in upper New York, was lower school director at Menlo School on the peninsula and most recently served as headmaster at Park Tudor School in Indianapolis for eight years.

In his last job, McCloskey said, he arrived at Park Tudor to find a "tired old campus, with only 200 students." By the time he left in June, the schools' enrollment had trebled and it had "an excellent new campus."

Everyone has a creative bent; mine is putting schools together," he said.

The headmaster is married and the father of two daughters, Megan, 16, and Katherine, 13, who will attend the academy this fall. His wife, Betsy, will serve as the school librarian.

He is convinced that most people go through life without knowing just what they are capable of accomplishing and wants the academy to be a place where students can find the challlenges needed to bring forth their best efforts.

Other officers are: Mrs. Ernest D. Mendenhall Jr. of Belvedere, vice president; Mrs. Robert E. Hunter Jr. of San Francisco, secretary and Bruce G. Duncan of San Francisco, treasurer.

McCloskey's Wife Seeks Marriage End

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Caroline MdCCloskey, 43, the wife of Vietnam War critic and Republican Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, filed divorce papers Thursday after a 23-year marriage.

The court petition for dissolution cited "irreconcilable differences" and asked for equitable distribution of communal property which includes a home in Virginia, stocks, some rural acreage and a 1929 model "A" Ford.

McCloskey also asked for custody of their two minor children,ohn, 16, and Kathleen, 13.

McCloskey won his party's primary nomination in California's 17th District in June and two days later it was announced that the couple had separated. At the time, McCloskey expressed hope for a reconcilation.

The Congressman and Korean War hero was away from home at least nine months until the New Hampshire primary campaignng for the Republican presidential nomination in opposition to President Nixon.

During the past week, the reserve marine lieutenant colonel and holder of the Navy Cross carried his battle against Nixon and the Vietnam conflict to the GOP National Convention where he received one nomination vote.

The couple has two children who are no longer minors, Nancy, 21, and Peter, 19.

Burglary Charge Hearing Slated

A preliminary hearing has been set for next Thursday in Marin Municipal Court for two men accused of two counts of burglary in connection with thefts from Sausalito Shops.

Velton James Thomas, 21, and Richard Urruta, 22, both of San Francisco, were arrested Aug. 17. Each was carrying a bag full of objects, including champagne, shirts, a leather coat, jewelry and a beaded dress, Sausalito police said.

Viet First Lady Visiting France

PARIS (UPI)—Mme. Nguyen Van Thieu, wife of the president of South Vietnam, has arrived in Paris with her daughter for what she described as a private visit, Vietnamese sources said today.

Photographers surprised her walking down the Champs Elysees with Mme. Pham Dang Lam, wife of the chief negotiator of the South Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks.

The president's wife will make a pilgrimage to the Roman Catholic shrine at Lourdes, the Vietnamese sources said.

We're giving away a free set of Coleman camping accessories when you buy a new '72 Volkswagen Campmobile.

The set consists of a camp stove with double burners and a lightweight aluminum stand, a double mantle lantern with a special carrying case, a 3,000 to 5,000 BTU adjustable Catalytic heater, and two long-wearing sleeping bags each padded with 3 pounds of Insul 200 polyester.

The set and the VW Campmobile are a self-contained camping unit.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Fiji Island Cruise By 2 Marin Couples

By MOLLY MARIN

Two Belvedere couples chartered a 50-foot catamaran and cruised the waters around Fiji Island for two weeks earlier this month. The yacht's skipper was a local expert, whose knowledge helped them navigate the reefs.

Dr. and Mrs. William Ferguson began their journey with a visit to Papeete, Tahiti. Dr. Ferguson is an eye specialist, and since there is no eye doctor in Papeete, he has treated a number of members of the Chinese colony, who fly to San Francisco for eye care. At each stop along the way the Fergusons were welcomed and entertained by prominent Chinese residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brash toured Tahiti, Tuamotu and Tongas before meeting the Fergusons in Fiji.

VISITING DR. AND Mrs. Eric Hannah of Mill Valley is Mrs. Hannah's niece, Miss Mary Shaw of Stratford-Upon-Avon, England. Many parties are being given in her honor.

Recently retired from her position as a school meals organizer on the Warwickshire County Council staff, Miss Shaw is an active member of Soroptimist International. She explained that membership in the organizations is by invitation and consists of only one woman in a field who has reached the top of her occupation or profession.

Her particular position involved traveling throughout her territory interviewing and organizing new staff, planning food and equipment for new buildings.

Miss Shaw will return home after Sept. 7.

MRS. ROBERT WATKINS of Belvedere has just returned from Topeka, Kan., where her second grandson, Philip Allen Green, was born in July 30. Her daughter's husband, Dr. Douglas Green, is a resident psychiatrist at the Menninger Clinic there.

THE INTERNATIONAL Eisteddfod at Llangollen, North Wales attracted Jack Du Bois of San Rafael, who stayed in the Welch town for the week-long festivites in mid-summer. Folk singing, dancing, choral and instrumental competitions drew contestants from 33 nations to the gathering. An eisteddfod is the traditional "sitting together" of the bards of Wales, a custom which goes back at least to the seventh century. The International Eisteddfod, which took place for the first time in 1947 was conceived as a Welsh contribution to international peace and goodwill through music.

DR. AND MRS. Sam Mann of Belvedere Lagoon plan a trip to Israel in November and December to visit their daughter, Mrs. Yale Roe (the former Rosalind Mann). She, her husband and four children have recently moved permanently to Jerusalem.

Roe was a vice president of a small independent TV network and manager of a UHF station in Chicago. He plans to produce documentaries for American television and go into the publishing business in Israel.

The Manns will celebrate Chanukah there and then spend a week in London.

Friends from San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Tilin, will be staying in their home during their trip.

A GARDEN RECEPTION Aug. 6 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Madden in Novato honored newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace West. Mrs. West is the former Debra Madden. Mr. and Mrs. David Martinez of Novato are the bridegroom's parents. They were married in Reno, Nev., Aug. 4. Both are graduates of Novato High School. They will live in Fairfax.

Newman Club Ceremony For San Anselmo Couple

The Newman Club Chapel on the campus of the University of California at Davis was the setting for the marriage of Christine Halsing and Edgar Maston, both of San Anselmo, at 2 p.m. Aug. 19.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Laurie Halsing of San Anselmo. Donald Fletcher of San Anselmo was the best man, and Buzz Halsing, of San Anselmo, the bride's brother, was the usher.

The reception was held at the Officers Club at McClellan Air Force Base in Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant J. Halsing of San Anselmo are the bride's parents. Her grandmother is Mrs. Jennie C. Halsing of San Rafael. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Maston of Seattle, Wash.

The bride was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and the University of California at Davis. She did graduate work at the College of Notre Dame at Belmont, and is qualified to be a Montessori teacher.

Edgar was graduated from Marin Catholic High School, and attended the College of Marin before beginning his service in the army. He was a helicopter pilot in Viet Nam, and is now stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash. He is a warrant officer.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will live in Tacoma, Wash.

Engagement Ends

FOUR RETIRED men play a game of shuffleboard to while away the hours. In some circles shuffleboard is synonymous with retirement and old age, but there is potential for a lot more activity among the nation's 20 million retired men and women, the authorities say.

JEANS IN FIRST CLASS

Dressing For The Jet Age

By WALTER LOGAN

PARIS (UPI) — The odd thing about travel these days is that men flying first class are apt to turn up in blue jeans and sports shirts while those back in tourist class may be wearing coats and ties and suffering for their formality.

In the olden days when world travel was an unheard of luxury for the masses the gentry would set forth aboard an ocean liner laden with bags, trunks, valises and likely as not a covey of servants to wrestle them up and down the gangplanks.

They put on their tweedy country clothes for early morning strolls around the deck, maybe something more formal later for afternoon tea on the verandah deck and then at night into their tuxedos, or in extreme cases, white tie and tails.

Now it's the age of the jet and every Tom, Dick and Harry is flying the Atlantic with his wife and children unless they are teen-age children. If they are teen-agers they are offon some cut rate flight of their own in some of the scruffiest clothes this side of New York's East Village, which is even scruffier than Greenwich Village.

ON A FLIGHT to Athens the other day there was sitting in first class a couple from Canada. Both were wearing grimy canvas sneakers with no socks and others were wearing blue jeans. He was wearing a sports shirt with fake shoulder padding like a rugby player.

As they dabbled with the Iranian caviar and Strasbourg pate de foie gras between sips of vintage champagne they discussed at length a forthcoming cruise through the Greek Islands and whether the crew had got their yacht safely across the Atlantic in time to meet them at Piraeus.

And then there was a French couple taking off for New York. She was in a pants suit, of course, but he was something else: A pair of white goatskin loafers with Gucci's red and green surcingle and gold snaffle hit, faded denim pants and a white silk shirt unbuttoned to the navel in best European tradition.

YOU COULD tell the Americans at any airport you visited — all the men were wearing knits. Not all of them were wearing coats and ties but all of them were wearing knits. There were knit suits, knit slacks and knit shirts, mostly in loud colors.

You could also pick out Americans at various beach resorts around the Mediterranean. The women wore bikinis and were undistinguishable from Europeans. But the American men all wore boxer-type swimming trunks to the knees while the European men wore practically nothing and ran about kicking soccer balls with the side of their feet.

Another difference could be noticed in the cities. American men ventured forth in seersucker and cord suits in light colors while the Europeans wore dark colors and narrow ties. Elderly German men at a few posh luxury hotels always seemed to wear one-inch-wide black ties.

THE WEARING of the sports shirt was another characteristic that set apart the Americans. The ones seen on Americans were mostly long sleeved and in reasonably bright printed florals, gingham checks and Hawaiian prints. Europeans ran to thin, printed silk-like shirts, dark, and open as always as far as they would open.

And a footnote on the wearing of knits for travel: They were comfortable and you could sleep in them easily if you can sleep aboard planes. They did not wrinkle, they did not crease. They looked perfectly fresh the next day after being slept in and then hung on a hanger. But they were hot when the weather was hot and they were always getting little snags, snipped off with a pair of scissors from time to time while one wondered if the whole thing would unravel. It did not.

Making Life Meaningful For Retired Americans

The retired American has been put on a separate cake of ice. As he drifts away from the main floe—armed with a Florida brochure and some Golden Age literature on crocheting for his wife—45,000 hours of leisure yawn ahead of him before he reaches 70. Here is the first of two articles on making retirement meaningful.

By MELVIN MADDOCKS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

He is a small man with a guarded face — a man, you would guess, with secrets from himself. But at the moment they seem to be spilling out in the desperate, chopping gestures of his calloused hands as he tries to explain: "One afternoon I was working. I had a job. For 48 years I had a job. I woke up the next morning and I had nothing to do. Just nothing."

She is a round, jolly woman: Mom. But the "children" are gone, long gone. All that remains: their wedding pictures squeezed on her tiny bureau and a box of candy or a long-distance phone call on Mother's Day. "Sometimes," she says with her sunniest smile, "I ask myself: 'Is the rest of my life going to be like this?'" She jerks her thumb toward her trailer window where three shuffleboard trophies sit on a shelf. "But when I feel useless I go play cards with someone or bake a cake. If you're busy you have that much less time to think about sad things."

Here are the faces and voices of retired America. Not necessarily typical — how can one typify 20-million Americans? — but representative. These 20 million individuals — one out of 10 in their country — constitute what one social worker has called "the least glamorous minority." "Least glamorous" and virtually invisible.

"Nonactive" Americans, to use the horrible euphemism of census takers, are a marginal group. In one of the most hypocritical of social ceremonies, they are congratulated upon their retirement and then forgotten. "You're free at last to do whatever you wish," goes the gold-watch syndrome. "Lucky you! Isn't this what you always wanted? Isn't this what we all want?"

THE RETIRED American is a person whom we put on a separate cake of ice. And as he or she drifts away from the main floe, what we do mostly is wave.

The libraries are crammed with cheerful books for the retired — Golden Years Lit. The "nonactive" American is told of gerontological Gardens of Eden —trailer parks in Florida, "sun cities" in Arizona — where he or she can live elegantly on social security. An appendix is included, suggesting hobbies with the doomed air of a hostess proposing party games: wood carving, crocheting. And for those with a few extra bills to meet, there's the chapter on "How to Raise Bees for Fun and Profit."

If retirement is an unmitigated blessing, why don't top executives rush into the happy state they urge upon their employees? It would be equally wrong to pretend it is an unmitigated curse. Retirement, at the least, is a serious challenge which has suffered from cruelly benign neglect.

What are the problems which must be resolved, both by the individual and by society, if retirement is to be "creative"?

First of all, money. The most conservative economists estimate that 25 per cent of "nonactive" Americans subsist below the poverty level. Probably the estimate should run closer to 40 per cent.

"It is tautological to speak of 'the old and the poor,'" one observer has remarked. Firtz Crumb, director of the Boston Center for Older Americans, states flatly: "The real discrimination in this country is not racial but economic." Yet the sociologists who make a business of kibitzing on government spending estimate that 10 dollars go to children for every dollar that goes to those classified as "aging."

THE 20 per cent increase in social security benefits must help. So will H.R. 15657, an act "to strengthen and improve" the Older Americans Act of 1965. The bill now before Congress authorizes appropriations of $100 million, $200 million, and $300 million for the fiscal years of 1973, 1974, and 1975. It remains to be seen whether the appropriations get approved. But this is more money than has been even talked about previously.

Let us assume — as we really can't —that a financial floor is being built for the "nonactive" American, putting him if not in the class of a retired electrical worker or a retired major-league baseball player, at least above the poverty level. What major obstacle to "creative" retirement remains once the nagging preconditions for living — a decent meal, an adequate place to sleep — are met?

The answer is a sense of purpose. We are back with the rocking chair and the shelf full of shuffleboard trophies.

There are optimists about retirement. For instance, Gordon F. Streib and Clement J. Schneider of the Cornell Study of Occupational Retirement. Their surveys suggest that there are certain gloomy myths about retirement. They find no dramatic evidence of "sudden deterioration of psychological health" due to retirement, and despite a 50 per cent drop in income, two-thirds of those surveyed judged their retirement incomes to be "enough."

But nobody can minimize the ultimate problems of the retired American — that he has been given a "roleless role." From nursery school on, he is taught the value of a "productive" life, the ideal of the "work-ethic." Then at 60 or 65 he is cut off from participation —from the "activity" he has depended upon for self-esteem. Retired women, Streib and Schneider believe, may feel an even sharper sense of uselessness than men and they live longer.

Retirement, Hemingway said, was the most loathesome word in the language. To lose what shaped the center of one's identity was, he decided, a kind of annihilation.

AGENCIES IN the public and private sectors can give the retired man or woman hot lunches and bingo games. They can supply counseling services and even hot-line referrals to each other's counseling services. They can run errands. They can, in Mr. Crumb's phrase, "provide energy supplementation." What they cannot provide is a sense of purpose in a society that tends to define "doing something" as "having a job" and "not having a job" as "being nothing."

The retired American has the dubious privilege of being the last practicing member of the free-enterprise system. He must, if he is to become anything, be self-made.

There are, to be sure, prospects. A new federal and state program is being sponsored: RSVP, standing for Retired Senior Volunteer Program. Some 75,000 Senior Volunteers are expected to be operating within a year. In 68 projects supervised by the Administration on Aging, 4,000 "nonactive" Americans are participating in the Foster Grandparents Program. The "grandparents" work four hours a day at the minimum wage, offering "care and affection to institutionalized and other needy children."

These are admirable attempts to supply what have been described as "meaningful noncompetitive roles." But the invention and development of the retirement pattern still rests primarily with the individual, with precedents that border on parody. Three case histories illustrate the approved stereotypes for braving out retirement.

George, the overage swinger: George fulfills the prophesy of the gold-watch ceremony. Ask him how he likes retirement, and he will slap you on the back and shout in your near ear that he's "having a ball." You are expected to tell him he looks 10 years younger — or else.

Franklin, the overachiever emeritus: Franklin moves past his juniors on the run, announcing as he goes that he's "twice as busy as ever before." He travels compulsively. When home, he pushes his hobbies at the pace of a growth industry. His specialty is toy furniture, agonizingly detailed, sculptured from frozen-juice cans.

To be liberated from most jobs should be liberation. But only if alternatives to common everyday work are taken as seriously as work itself. As things stand, leisure is the predicament as well as the opportunity of the future. We can no longer pretend that "creative" retirement is a spontaneous act. The solutions that individuals and society find for "creative" retirement today are likely to shape the very quality of that future.

Next: Leisure can be a time of promise.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Sick Woman's Selfish Husband Should Be Told To Shape Up

DEAR HELEN:

I have been sick and unable to work for the past two months. Tim, my husband, resents this. Says I'm "putting on," though I have never complained, and was always strong and healthy before. The doctor says I was "running on nerves" and when I got "mono," and didn't take care of myself, it went into complications. I must have mostly bed rest. Can't go back to my job all next winter, probably.

Tim doesn't hold a steady job long. I used to think it was the fault of his various bosses, but he couldn't always be so unlucky. Since I've been sick, he pays no attention to me. I try to keep the house clean. He's gone a lot.

But now he's taken to bringing women home. I hear them whispering, but when he looks into my room, I pretend sleep. And then I hear ice tinkling in glasses, and many other things.

The next morning he's more downgrading than ever, as if he's daring me to challenge him. And of course I don't dare, because I can't be left alone right now. Besides, I keep thinking when I'm well again, he'll change, and I remember that I once loved him very much.

Should I just close my ears and eyes and be miserable, or — WHAT?

DEAR WHAT:

No.

Open your eyes and see what misery lies ahead if "blind hope" keeps you married to this selfish taker.

You'll recover much sooner if you eliminate the big worry in your life, so tell him to shape up fast or you'll call a lawyer.

As for being left alone while you're ill: surely a friend will help out. If not, the Health and Welfare Agency will give you temporary aid. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

When I went shopping a few days ago, I must have caught a thread in my hem, as it unraveled all the way across the back.

I was unaware of how terrible I looked as I walked around several department stores, into a lunchroom, etc., for several hours.

Helen, not one person had the courtesy to tell me my hem was hanging.

Don't you think women should be kind enough to help out a sister? A little whisper, the loan of a pin, or perhaps a needle and thread, would have saved me fromappearing ridiculous.

DEAR MRS. S:

... Perhaps because they never know whether they'll be resented as fault-finding busybodies, or appreciated as helpers.

Think now, would you walk up to a stranger and say, "Pardon me, ma'am, but your hem is hanging?" That takes the kind of courage more people should have. — H.

P.S. Read on:

DEAR HELEN:

If you notice than an unknown, well-dressed businessman has forgotten something importantas he's walking down a crowded street, is it proper to ease up and tell him, "Sir, your fly is open"? — RELUCTANT BUT CONCERNED

DEAR R BUT C:

If you're a man, yes. If you're "Ms." or "Mrs. RBC," still probably yes, unless you are easily embarrassed.

But if you are a definite "Miss," you'd better wait for a male to bail out his fellow man. — H.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold E. Larsen of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathy Larsen, to Al Kovaleff of San Anselmo.

Kathy is the sister of Mark Larsen of Bethalto, Ill., Mrs. James Timmel of Eugene, Ore.; and John, Karen, Elizabeth and Arnold Larsen Jr., all of San Rafael.

She is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is employed with the Permanente Medical Group in San Rafael.

Al is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Kovaleff of San Anselmo and he is the brother of Walter Kovaleff of San Rafael.

He graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and is employed with Jack's drug store in San Anselmo.

The couple plans to be married Nov. 5.

ON BEING BLACK

Boxer Foreman Is Changed Man

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

"Who am I to tell a bird he can't fly?" shrugged the magnificently built shoulders of young George Foreman, 1968 Olympic gold medal winner and No. 2 contender for the world's heavyweight boxing title.

"I used to go around advising youngsters to 'do this' or 'don't do that,' but not any more.. Like, who am I?" he asks modestly. "My vitality and strength is God-given. But it's borrowed — it has to be paid back."

George is No. 5 in a lineup of seven brothers and sisters. Born in Texas, he says of his childhood "We were po — not poor —but po," His mother and father were divorced, but the family remained close-knit. His mothers and brothers still playfully refer to George as Monkey.

Foreman was introduced to boxing (he had played football before dropping out of school) while living at one of the Job Corps centers, which he had joined after seeing a television spot in which Johnny Unitas and Jim Brown, two of his idols, endorsed the corps. "That was enough for me."

SOON GEORGE found himself under the wing of boxing coach Doc Broadus and shortly thereafter he was the recipient of an Olympic gold medal.

In 1969, George turned pro. To date, he's had 37 professional fights and won them all. "According to the WBA, Muhammad Ali is the No. 1 contender to champ Joe Frazier. But I consider myself to be the the No. 1 contender," Foreman said.

Currently training for a September bout with Oscar Bonavena, George is on a rigorous schedule. "It's up at 6, four miles of roadwork, sparring contact and so on. Every morning I grab my legs and see if they've gone yet," he laughs and mockingly grabs for his legs. "Without these — nothing."

There is mental as well as physical preparation for each fight. "I keep my atmosphere hungry. It helps keep me on my toes. If things are too plush, too comfortable, you relax and get a false sense of strength.

"I sacrifice to be where I am," admits George. "But it's a good sacrifice. No co'tin (courting) and runnin' the streets. I was, still am, an alcoholic. But I haven't had any booze in over six years. I kind of enjoyed drinking, too."

He smiles and shrugs his shoulders again. "I also stopped smoking. That was harder than lettin' go of the booze. No I eat balanced meals and drink lots of orange juice for my vitamin C. And I feel great."

George's young wife, vivacious Adrianne, is expecting their first child in November. "I've already 'revelationed' a boy," said Foreman. "I'd like lots of kids — as many as the Lord will bless us with."

IS BOXING a brutal sport?

"I don't consider it brutal in any way. All my pain in life has come outside the ring. I've never been hurt bad because I'm always properly conditioned.

"Boxing is a job. Before the bout, you practice and plan your strategy. After the bell rings, you do your job. You execute the plan. Your opponent does the same thing. There is no personal animosity or brutality involved."

Foreman is considered a boxer-puncher, a moving hitter. "In the words of Ali (I think), 'He who hits and runs away, lives to hit another day.' "

His goal of the moment is to be the heavyweight champion of the world. "Then I'd probably retire.It's simply a matter of setting a goal, reaching it and going on to the next thing."

When not being the boxer, Foreman enjoys roughhousing with his four dogs. If time and opportunity permit, he can be found "admiring" at a local dog obedience show. "Someday I'll raise dogs," he said.

At 23, he is a wealthy man and, thanks to boxing, has gained status and respect.

While talking about being a winner, George reflects seriously, "I've always thought that peculiar. You know, the way everyone flocks around the winner — the press, well-wishers and the like all jam into his dressing room. But the winner doesn't need anything at that very moment. He's got it. I always go to the loser's dressing room."

Continuing on his present course, George Foreman will be a winner, inside or outside the ring.

Shoes In Rome

Newlywed Johnsons Honeymoon At Tahoe

A reception at the Marin Art and Garden center followed the wedding of Sandra Sue Krelle and Richard Warloe Johnson Saturday afternoon.

The marriage service was at 2 p.m. at Montgomery Chapel at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Del Krelle of San Anselmo and the granddaughter of Mrs. William Fred Krelle of San Anselmo. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson of Glendale are the parents of the bridegroom.

Sandra is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and California State University, San Jose. She is employed as personnel director at Zerox Data Systems in El Segundo.

The bridegroom graduated from Glendale High School and University of the Pacific in Stockton. He gained a master's degree at the University of California at Los Angeles. He is employed as a certified public accountant with the Haskins-Sells accounting firm in Los Angeles.

After a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, the newlyweds will live in Manhattan Beach.

Film Series

A women's film series will be shown at the San Francisco YWCA, 620 Sutter Street, at 8 p.m. Fridays and Sundays. Films will be "Born Yesterday" on Sept. 1 and 3; "The Pumpkin Eater" on Sept. 8 and 10; "Notorious" on Sept. 15 and 17 and "Mother" on Sept. 22 and 24. The latter film is a Soviet classic silent film.

CLASSIC TARTAN SUIT

The traditional tartan suit by Pendleton acquires new flexibility with the 1972 layered look. Teamed with it are a wool pebble-knit sleeveless low-necked sweater and a white nylon shirt. It can be both casual and business-like.

McGovern Adviser Hits Nixon Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Abram Chayes, international adviser to Sen. George S. McGovern, says President Nixon has met more failures than successes in foreign policy. Chayes is a professor of international law at Harvard University.

He said "the administration has intensified the senseless orgy of death and destruction in Indochina in spite of its promise to end our military involvement in that war." Speaking at a news conference Thursday, he also said Nixon has "ignored the views of our friends in Europe and Japan, and been reluctant to respond to Israel's needs...."

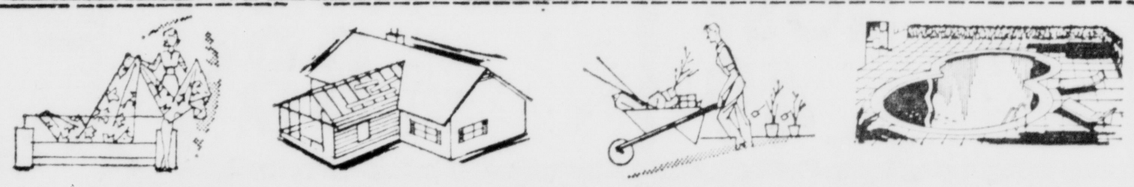
Extortion Try Lands Jail Term

Charles Michael Dobson, 21, of Tiburon, has been placed on probation for five years and sent tg jail for four months for attempting to extort $1,000 from a Corte Madera father.

Dobson, who was sentenced by Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, in Marin Superior Court, was given credit for the time he has already spent in jail.

He had earlier admitted that he had told Jack W. Foster, a partner in a landscape maintenance firm, the he would give him information about his missing daughter.

The two men worked out a written deal before Foster's daughter returned home, saying she had never heard of Dobson.



Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

It's fair-time again in Marin County. The annual Marin County Fair will open at the new Civic Center fairgrounds on Thursday, and then continue through Labor Day. And to salute that colorful event, tomorrow's edition of your Independent-Journal Marin Magazine will devote much of its space to special stories about the fair — its participants and its programs. There will be, for example, a story about a San Rafael organic gardener who harvested a bumper crop of fair ribbons last year, and who now shares some of her gardening secrets with I-J readers.

A big part of the fair, of course, is good things to eat. And Marin County's Fair provides a wide range of delicacies. There are, for instance, the tasty Greek treats prepared by the women of the Greek Orthodox Church of Marin for their food booth. If reading about their project makes you hungry, these talented women offer you the recipes from which you can turn out your own Greek pastries. Then, too, no fair could be complete without entertainment. And part of the 1972 Marin Fair will be a Dixieland jazz band, also covered in tomorrow's magazine.

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1972 23

WOMAN BUS DRIVER

The Happy Frail's Tale

By FRANK FARRARA

"The Redwood Highway is my pad and the skies above are blue," Virginia (Ginnie) DeLaney, sang at her Novato home the other day.

Thrilled with her new job as a bus driver for the Golden Gate Bridge District, she had put her songwriting talents to creating "The LBJ" song to the tune of "Alley Cat."

"LBJ, that's lady bus jockey," she explained. "Somebody called me that."

The district had two women drivers before her, but they had worked for the Greyhound Bus Co. before and simply switched when the district took over the system, she said.

What prompted a woman who had been a bookkeeper, cashier and motel manager, to seek a job as a bus driver? "It's something about the fact that I love to drive," Mrs. DeLaney commented. "I drove 13,078 miles in three months in a camper," she said.

Mrs. DeLaney, who started drivingbus runs last week, said some passengers were "bug-eyed," but "I have never had an unkind word."

Aware that she is a "novelty," she prepared a humorous card showing passenger reaction to a woman bus driver, with comments such as "Oh, dear. Maybe I should wait for the next bus."

She said she realized she had gained the confidence of her riders on an evening run to Petaluma and Santa Rosa when she "looked up and at least half were sound asleep."

Mrs. DeLaney said she had applied to the district in January for a job as a toll taker on the Golden Gate Bridge, butwasn't hired. Shortly afterward, "I just went down and asked them if it was possible to get a job as a bus driver."

She had been a part-time bus driver for the Novato Unified School Distirct, and later a substitute driver for the Dixie School District.

"I fell in love with the little kids," Mrs.DeLaney said. "One little girl cried on the last day, when she learned I wasn't going to drive anymore."

She said it was very important for the reporter to tell "her dear little friends that Sam won't be riding the school bus, and maybe they will soon be riding the big bus. They nicknamed me 'Sam,'" she explained.

"The other day at a stop, three young boys got on and got so excited that 'Sam' was driving," she said. Their former school bus driver, in green slacks, white blouse, green tie at the wheel of the "big bus was a surprise," she recalled.

Mrs. DeLaney said she was hired without discrimination because of age, sex, height or weight. "All they were interested in was did I want the job, need the job and was I qualified."

She said many years ago when she wanted to operate a street car in San Diego, and "you had to be five feet, four. I was only five, three-and-a-half, so I got a pair of riding boots, and I passed and got the job. That was another case of wanting to do something."

"My number then was 1112, now it's 258," she said.

Mrs. DeLaney said she wanted to be a song writer, and her first song "Living, Laughing, Loving" was recorded by the Spade Cooley band under the leadership of Smoky Rogers.

A native of Illinois, she moved to Southern California at the age of 16 with her family, then lived in Salinas, Santa Rosa "in the early 1940s" and back to Southern California.

She came to Novato six years ago and is married to Charles DeLaney, a retired electrical contractor, whom she had met while working for the health and pension department of Electrical Contractors Union in Los Angeles.

Corte Madera Rec Schedule Goes To Council

The Corte Madera Parks and Recreation Commission has unanimously recommended that the town council approve a schedule of recreation classes running from September through next June.

Commission secretary Nancy Urbani said the 21 classes include four new ones — bicycling, grooming and modeling, cake decorating and a dance "sampler" course of four folk-dancing styles.

The commission was told Wednesday night that the town's preschool play group no longer will be free, she said. Parents now will have to pay $9 for 12 meetings. The group meets at the drop-in center oppostite the town's recreation center on Mondays and Fridays.

There will be only four nonfree programs offered by the town this year — the Corte Madera Swingers (seniors), the after-school program and teen center at Granada and San Clemente Schools, and the drop-in center.

Gate Span Survey Outlines Typical Midday Bus Patron

The most typical midday passenger on Golden Gate Bridge District buses is a woman, 17 to 24 years old, riding between home and work, according to a district survey.

Jerome Kuykendall, the district's transportation developer, reported the results of the survey made between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Aug. 3 throughout Marin. Its purpose was to find out what sort of passengers have been attracted to the service "so we can figure out a way to get to those we aren't getting to," he said.

About 2,000 of the questionnaires were distributed by bus drivers, but only 218 were returned either to the drivers or by mail. The percentage response from similar questionnaires given morning and evening commuters was three times better than from the midday passengers, Kuykendall said.

Another midday survey will be made in about one month to verify the findings of the first one.

The survey found that 33 per cent of the respondents were using the service between home and work, 22 per cent to make visits elsewhere, 14 per cent to get to school, 9 per cent for shopping, 2 per cent for medical trips, 2 per cent for recreation and 19 per cent for other reasons.

A slight majority, 54 per cent, said they did not have a car available, although 36 per cent said they had two cars in their household.

Building Donation To San Marin Boys Club

The San Marin Improvement Association has donated $200 to the Novato Boys' Club's $150,000 building fund campaign, according to Diane Ryken, publicity chairman.

Directors appointed Richard B. Suttie of 152 San Felipe Way to fill a vacancy on the board Wednesday night and set the association's Halloween parade Oct. 29.

A Bee's Stinger?

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — A Hampshire schoolteacher reports that when she asked her class to describe "imagination" in brief style, one 11-year-old boy wrote: "A bee's stinger is only a fraction of an inch long. The rest of the 12 inches is imagination."

Reduced Charge In Check Case

A felony charge of possessing a check with intent to defraud against Richard D. Lipari, 27, no fixed address, was reduced yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor count.

Judge David R. Baty made the reduction after listening to evidence at a preliminary hearing and then scheduled a jury trial in municipal court for next Thursday.

Lipari is accused of having passej a stolen check in Fairfax. He was arrested Aug. 14.

The view, silly, not the price. Our first ad on this striking A-frame contemporary, and probably our last. Three bedrooms with beamed ceilings, a full formal dining room, a big family room. The living room has a tall cathedral ceiling and a flagstone fireplace and sliding doors to a sunny private deck and a fabulous view. There's a big patio, and lots of tall trees, a third of an acre for privacy. All electric kitchen, a full utility room including appliances. Priced to sell now at $48,000.

"WOULDN'T YOU KNOW—?"

A huge well-located home like this is ideal for 3 children plus 2 adults — and could be enlarged. — But, the buyers will probably be just a couple who have lots of furniture and want a "rec. room downstairs" big enough for pool tables, pianos, pals, etc. Howsomever, if 5 or 6 people live here, there's plenty of room to expand under the roof. Plus an all built-in kitchen and a "knock-out" yard (small, easy-care, very, very appealing).

✓HERITAGE HOME✓

3 story elegance in this massive Victorian style home of a by-gone era. The lumber baron who built this show place used only the finest construction and most beautiful wood in the paneling of the parlor, dining room and entry hall. The wood is as smooth as glass to the touch. Curved glass in many windows with beautiful etched glass abounding. The library has a working fireplace as does the parlor. Family kitchen with butler's pantry and a powder room complete the first floor. Wide staircase to the 2nd floor entry that is a wood paneled octagon shape with 4 bedrooms, 2 baths and stairs to the 3rd floor. This huge room with bath could be a master suite or children's hideaway. 3 stall garage and outdoor patio. All this plus a 3 bedroom, bath and a ½ home with large dining room on the grounds as a rental unit. $65,000.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS TAMALPAIS COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT GARAGE AND WORKSHOP AREA

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the TAMALPAIS COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT of Marin County, California will receive up to but not later than 8:00 p.m., on the 12th day of September, 1972, sealed bids for the award of a contract for the furnishing of all labor, materials, methods or processes, implements, tools, machinery, equipment and all utilities, transportation and other services required to construct certain phases of a garage and workshop area, in strict accordance with the plans and specifications, for TAMALPAIS COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT of Marin County, California.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the plans, specifications and other documents now on file in the office of the District Secretary, 305 Bell Lane, Mill Valley, California, and copies may be obtained at the office of the District.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on June 13, 1972, the District Board adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which the public work herein provided is to be done, for each craft or type of workmen required to execute the contract, a copy of which wage scale is on file with the District Secretary and becomes a part of the specifications for said work.

The Board reserves the privilege of rejecting any and all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities on any bid or in the bidding.

Unless otherwise required by law, no bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon Monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

$27,000 Holdup Haul In East Bay

EMERYVILLE (AP) — A bandit wielding a long-nosed revolver took $27,000 in small bills from a local businessman early today and then got away after the holdup victim fired all six shots from a gun he was carrying, police said.

Police in surrounding communities are combing the streets for the man, described as about 25 years old and wearing a large, floppy hat.

Officers said the businessman, whose identity was withheld, was about to make a night deposit at a local branch of the Bank of America when the predawn robbery occured.

The bandit walked up behind the man and said, "Don't turn around," before taking a brown paper bag containing the money, police said.

As the bandit fled, the businessman pursued him and fired all six shots from a .38 caliber revolver he was carrying for protection, officers said. None of the shots were believed to have found their mark, according to police, and the thief disappeared over a nearby fence.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Accidents Are Leading Cause Of Death Among The Navaho

Accidents are the leading cause of death among the Navaho Indians. Surprisingly, for the rest of the country heart disease, strokes, and cancer are higher on the list.

Falls are responsible for one of every five mishaps and, in the majority, were the result of falling from a horse. This is understandable because, to the Navaho, a horse is a source of great pride.

Pedestrian accidents were highest among the causes of death. The incidence is highest among the 25-to-34-year-olds, as it is among the general population.

Alcohol, lack of driver education, poor roads, and lax law enforcement also play a role. Vehicles accounted for 48.2 per cent of the fatalities, but were causal in only 19.3 per cent of the injuries.

LESS FREQUENT accident causes include cuts, stab wounds, burns, and contact with machinery. Animal bites are common, but are rarely fatal in contrast to the high death rates from auto accidents, drowning, fire, explosions and freezing from exposure to cold.

Dumb cane (Dieffenbachia) is a familiar house plant that originally came from tropical forests. The name is derived from the effect it has on the mouth and tongue.

One bite and the oral tissues swell and burn so severely that swallowing is impaired and speech thickened and unintelligible. It is strange that so familiar a plant is capable of causing so much pain and discomfort. One nibble will make a believer, but don't try it, take my word for it.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Johnnie L. Gentry, Jr., assistant curator of botany at the Field Museum, natives of the Upper Amazon combined the sap of dumb cane with curare to poison their arrows. In Jamaica, plantation owners, as punishment, rubbed cut stalks into the mouths of slaves.

Dumb cane belongs to the aroid family. Similar reactions ensue when related plants, such as calla lily, elephant's-ear, caladium, alocasia and some philodendrons are used.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

NEW VESSELS GROW

H. B. writes: Can a person with angina ever regain his health?

REPLY

Yes, but not until the narrowed coronary arteries develop new branches or the obstructed segments are bypassed with a vein graft. Other operations also are available to improve the coronary circulation. We also have medicines to lessen the work load of the heart and reduce its need for blood.

VIRAL INFECTION

V. F. writes: My husband has shingles. What kind of disease is this?

REPLY

Shingles is a viral infection (herpes zoster) that involves the nerve endings in the skin of one side of the body. The ensuing tiny blisters may last three weeks or more, but pain may persist for weeks or months.

CROOKED TOES

O. writes: Should crooked toes be straightened via surgery?

REPLY

Only when the distortion is causing distress. Age enters the picture because deformities of the feet are likely to cause trouble as the years pass. Early correction is advisable.

Bakers Ask Price Hike Of Bread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blaming the sale of 400 million bushels of U.S. wheat to Russia, the baking industry has requested government authorization for an immediate, across-the-board hike in bread prices.

The American Bakers Association (ABA) said Thursday that rising flour costs—averaging two-thirds of a cent per loaf— have placed in jeopardy the profits of hundreds of bakeries.

ABA General Counsel Joseph M. Creed, in a letter to director Donald Rumsfeld of the Cost of Living Council, requested a compensatory price boost to recoup higher flour costs. Creed said the increase should be authorized across the board, without the usual need for individual applications by large companies.

Creed said he also requested permission for increases by firms which would normally be blocked from such action by limitations on profit margins.

This action is needed, Creed said, because of local competitive conditions. He explained that if one baker in a local market was unable to raise prices because of profit controls, his competitors who may have sub-par profits will be forced to keep their prices down and suffer losses.

The Soviet Union, which had a poor wheat harvest, recently placed increased grain orders with the United States which, in turn, pushed domestic wheat prices higher, Creed said.

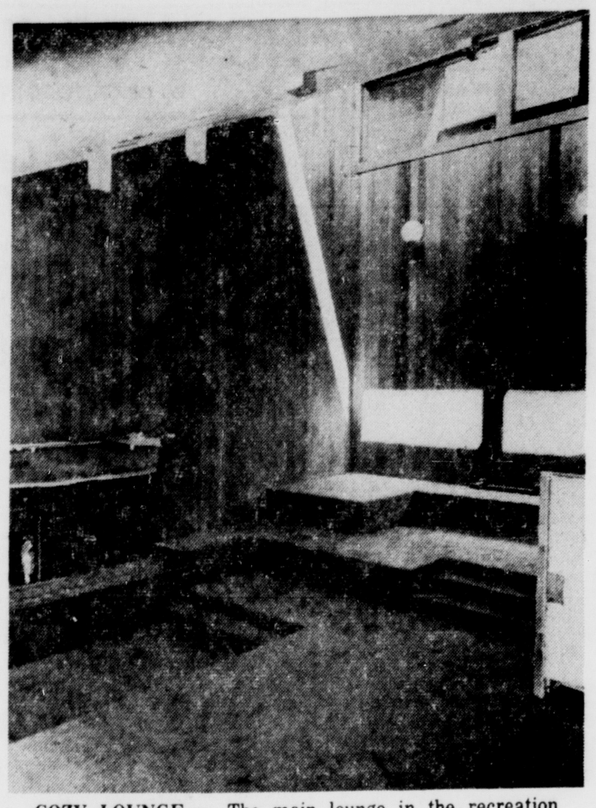
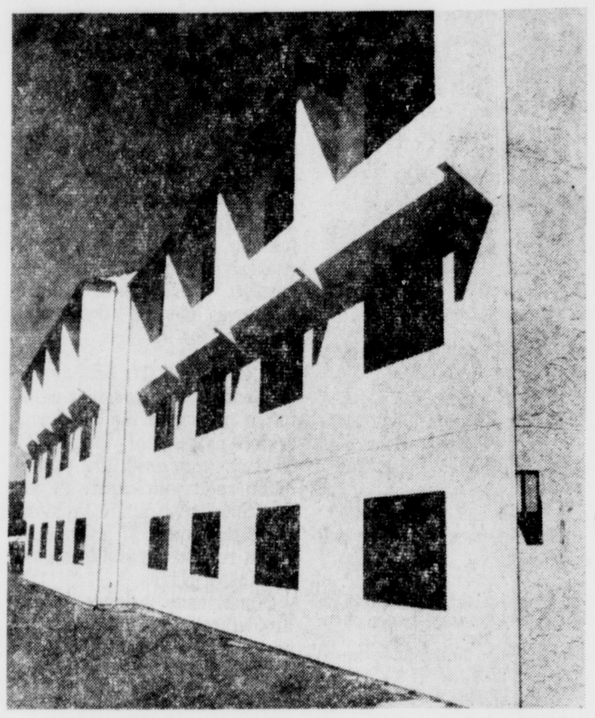
OPEN FEELING — Despite the high density, courtyards between buildings lend a feeling of openness at the residence halls. Each unit has a private entrance with room numbers in op-art style. Resident with other tastes may redesign the doors if they like. The college will provide lawn furniture kits that students may assemble for use on patios and terraces. (Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax.)



COZY LOUNGE — The main lounge in the recreation pavilion will have a cozy and casual atmosphere as students relax in front of the fireplace. Furniture has no place in the room since students will lounge on the softly carpeted steps and on fluffy pillows. Sky lights and angular ceiling give the room an aura of openness while the rustic wood paneling and fireplace lend great warmth.



CAMPUS FIRST — The new residence hall complex is the first on-campus housing for Sonoma State. The units will accommodate 8 per cent of the student body which should promote greater interest in campus activities. The halls will be open for public tours Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. A festive atmosphere is planned with wine tasting and music.

A New Atmosphere For Student Housing

Sonoma State College's $3.5 million Mediterranean-style student residence halls will open to students next month, but without that old dormitory atmosphere.

John Simmons, chairman of the housing department, sees the buildings as a "mini-city" or as a single adult community for 406 students.

The buildings will be open for public tours Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. College president Thomas H. McGrath will officially open the complex by popping a champagne bottle at 2:30 p.m.

Wine donated by Sonoma and Napa County wineries will be served and entertainment will be provided by singer Kate Wolfe, a Sonoma State student.

Simmons said students will begin moving into the complex on Sept. 5. Three applications were received for each opening and more than 200 students are already on a waiting list.

Simmons said he believes the lack of low-income housing in the area has brought the deluge of applications, but also feels that many students are anxious to live on campus and to feel more a part of the college.

Students will pay $1,200 to $1,400 per year for both room and meals.

Simmons will oversee life at the residence halls, but residents themselves will make many of the decisions.

"Right now we have a policy against residents keeping dogs, but if the majority favor dogs then we'll allow them and charge a cleaning deposit to the owners," Simmons said.

Several different types of living units are available including single units with private bath, single units with shared baths, and units for four persons including two double-occupancy bedrooms, a bathroom and livingroom.

The center also includes nine-person units that are two-story-suites with two double-occupancy bedrooms, a bath and living-room on the first floor and two doubles and a single bedroom and a second bathroom on the upper floor.

Male and female students will not be permitted to share rooms. "This was a political decision, not a moral decision," Simmons said. "If we allowed it, it would probably cost us our college president."

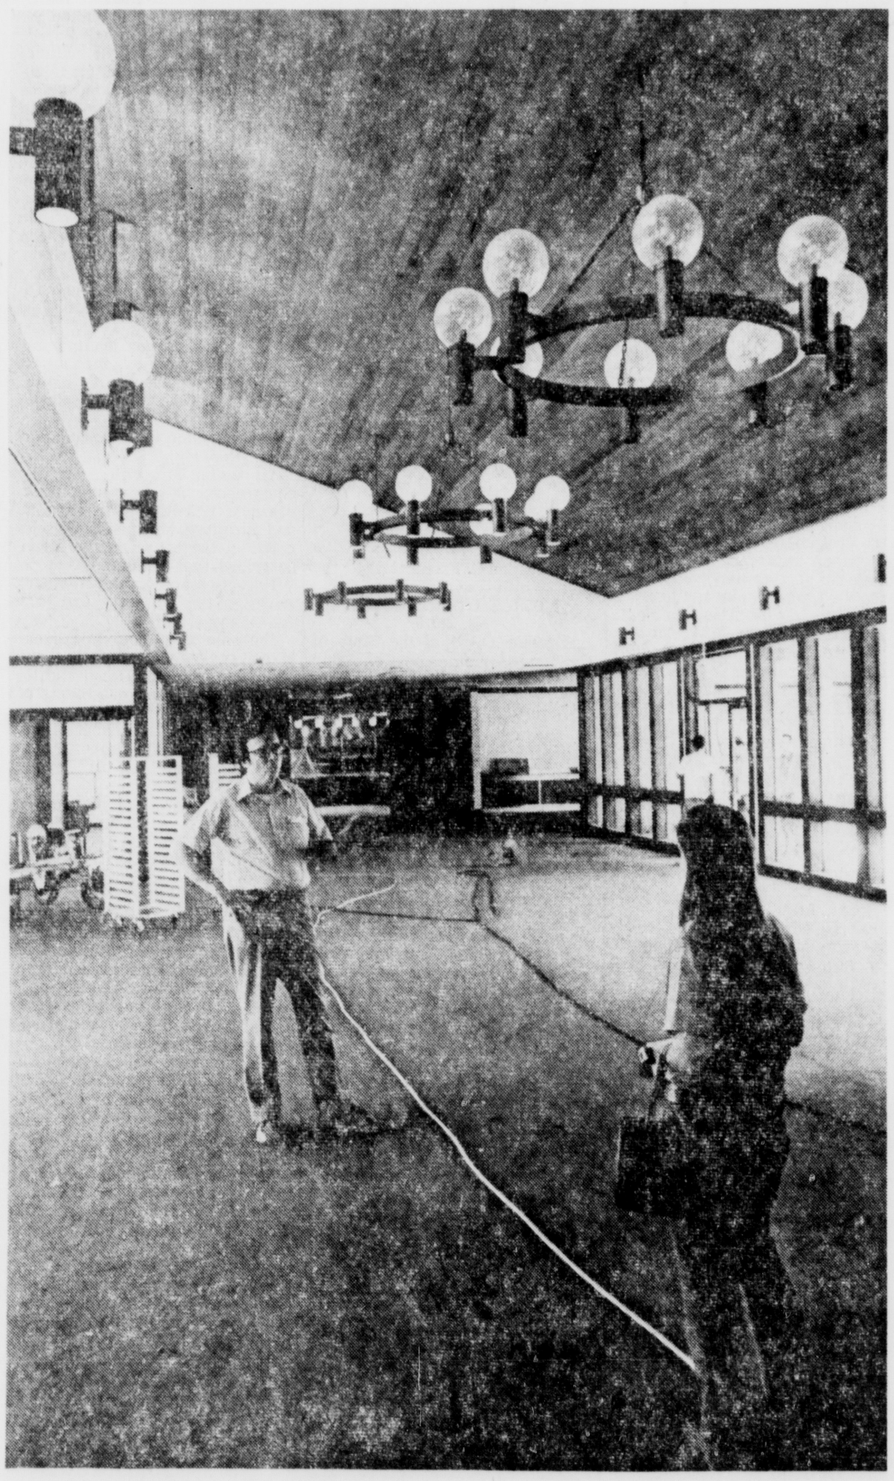
Co-educational living will be permitted, however, in the nine-person suites so long as genders do not mix in bedrooms or bathrooms.

Of the 406 residents, 100 will work within the community and receive lower rental rates. These students and a limited number of professionals will be responsible for activities, programs, budgets, purchasing, accounting, personnel arrangements, gardening, maintenance, food preparation and service.

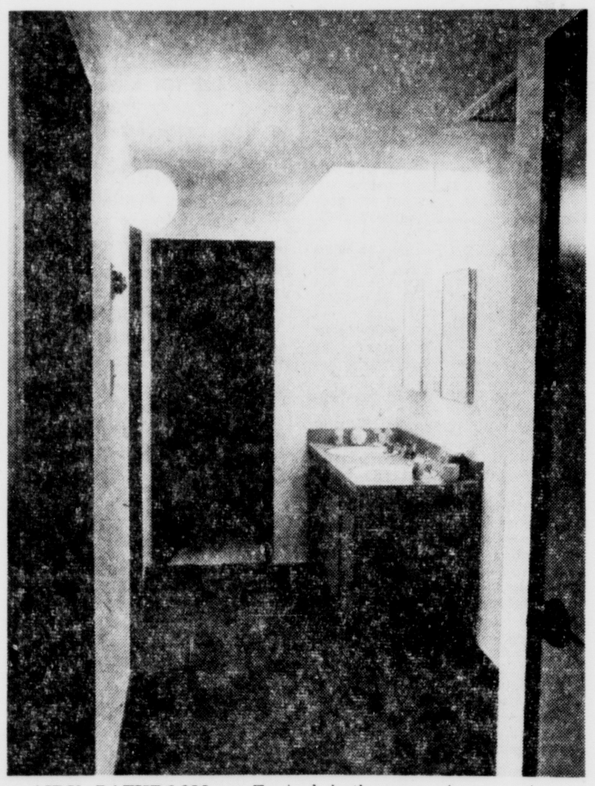
Also included in the residential complex is the school of environmental studies so the academic segment of the college can be combined with the living units to promote a total learning atmosphere.

Three married couples will be living at the complex, although Simmons said it is designed primarily for single students. He said he hoped the next residential building project will be designed for couples.

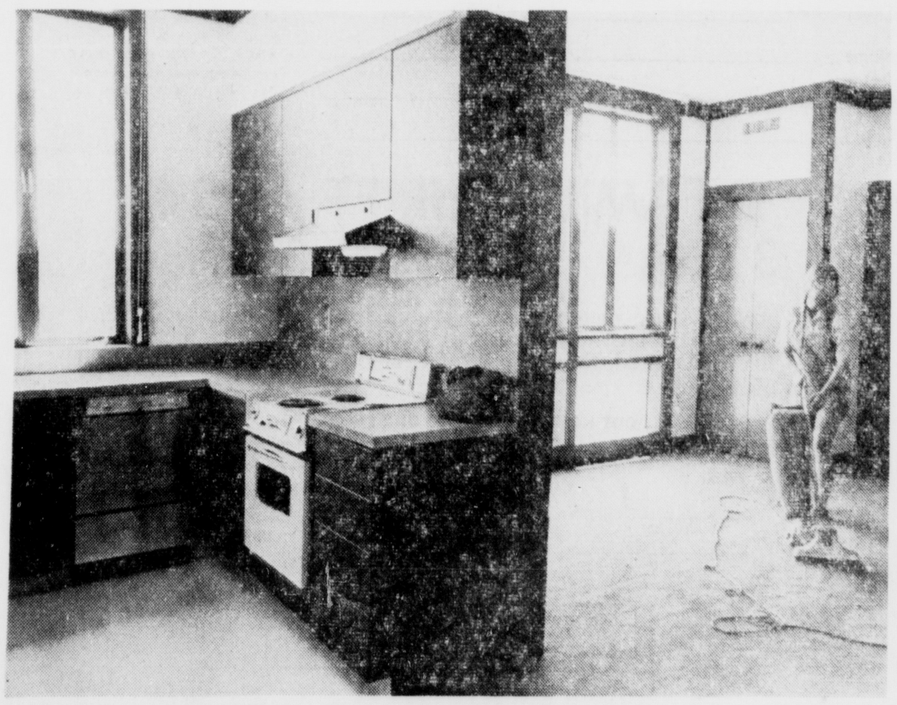
SWIM CENTER — A swimming pool adjacent to the main recreation building is expected to become a focal point during hot days this fall at the new residence halls. A second pool was in original plans for the complex, but later was deleted when construction costs increased faster than expected. The $3.5 million center will be financed solely through revenue from residents and no state tax funds were provided.



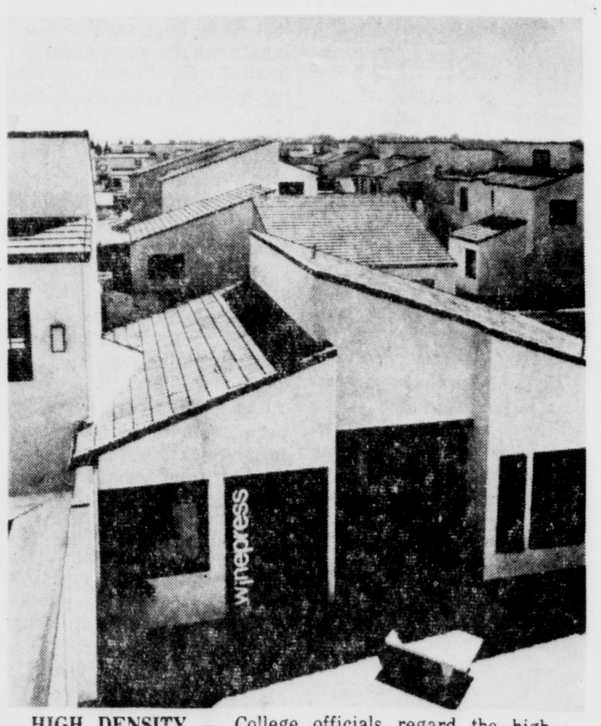
DINING HALL — John Simmons, chairman of the housing department, oversees final work on the dining hall that will serve the 406 residents of the residence halls. Meals will be served buffet style or family style depending on what the residents decide. Tables and chairs are not expected to arrive until November and Simmons expects residents will do some "innovating" to overcome the problem until then.



AIRY BATHROOM — Typical bathrooms give an airy effect. Double sinks will be shared by four roommates. Showers and commodes are in separate rooms for convenience.

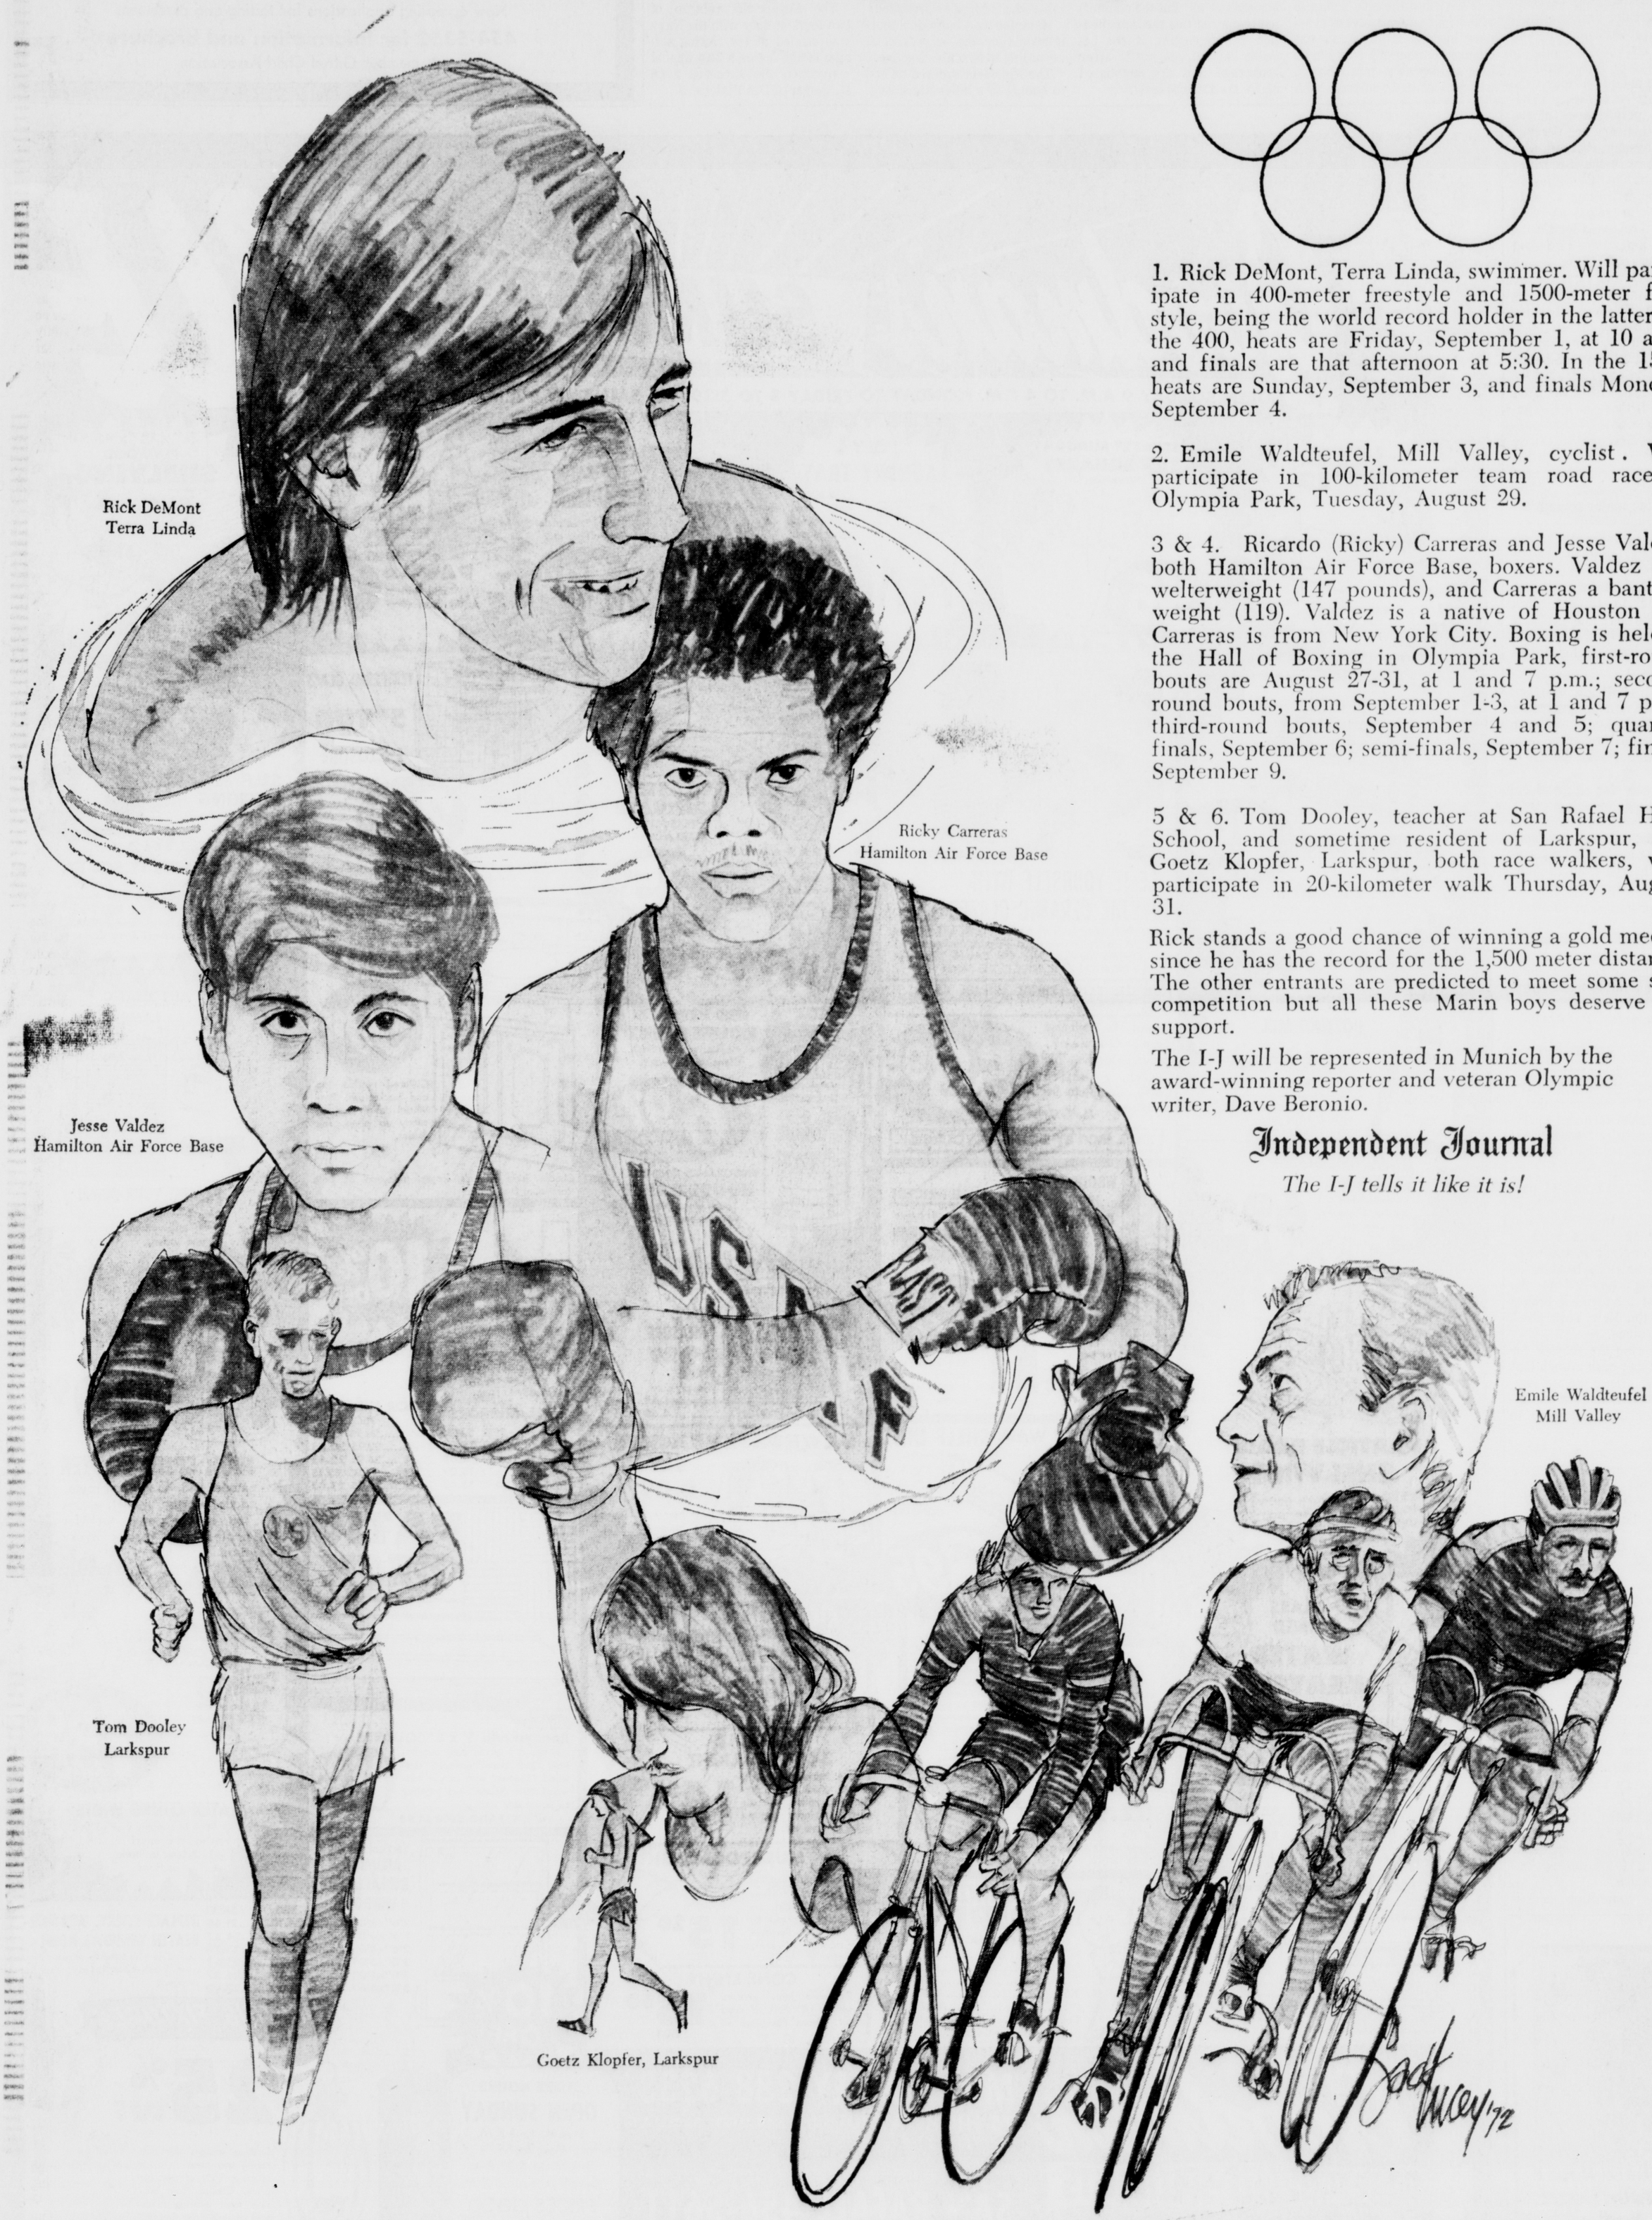


HOUSING OFFICE — The college's housing department will temporarily be included in the new residence hall complex and includes a kitchen and lounging area so students can feel at home. Lisa McAllister is one of the many Sonoma State students who are working as clean-up crews to get the building ready for occupancy on Sept. 5.



HIGH DENSITY — College officials regard the high-density residence halls as an experiment in close living. Students will set their own rules as they adjust to 406 people living together in close quarters. The individual buildings reflect the wine heritage of Sonoma County and have been named after wines such as Zinfandel and Pinot Noir. Other areas such as storage rooms and the four laundry rooms also reflect that trend with names like "Winepress" and "Vineyard."

Follow Marin County's Six Olympic Hopefuls in the I-J!



1. Rick DeMont, Terra Linda, swimmer. Will participate in 400-meter freestyle and 1500-meter freestyle, being the world record holder in the latter. In the 400, heats are Friday, September 1, at 10 a.m., and finals are that afternoon at 5:30. In the 1500, heats are Sunday, September 3, and finals Monday, September 4.

2. Emile Waldteufel, Mill Valley, cyclist. Will participate in 100-kilometer team road race at Olympia Park, Tuesday, August 29.

3 & 4. Ricardo (Ricky) Carreras and Jesse Valdez, both Hamilton Air Force Base, boxers. Valdez is a welterweight (147 pounds), and Carreras a bantamweight (119). Valdez is a native of Houston and Carreras is from New York City. Boxing is held at the Hall of Boxing in Olympia Park, first-round bouts are August 27-31, at 1 and 7 p.m.; second-round bouts, from September 1-3, at 1 and 7 p.m.; third-round bouts, September 4 and 5; quarter-finals, September 6; semi-finals, September 7; finals, September 9.

5 & 6. Tom Dooley, teacher at San Rafael High School, and sometime resident of Larkspur, and Goetz Klopfer, Larkspur, both race walkers, will participate in 20-kilometer walk Thursday, August 31.

Rick stands a good chance of winning a gold medal, since he has the record for the 1,500 meter distance. The other entrants are predicted to meet some stiff competition but all these Marin boys deserve our support.

The I-J will be represented in Munich by the award-winning reporter and veteran Olympic writer, Dave Beronio.

Reforms Urged To Remedy Stock Market's Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Subcommittee on Commerce and Finance, hoping to remedy the problems that brought the stock market to the brink of collapse in 1970, has urged wide-ranging reforms keyed to greater broker competition and protection for individual investors.

In a 170-page, 95,000-word report made public yesterday, the subcommittee severely criticized the performance of the securities industry and the government agency charged with regulating it —the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) —for permitting a "state of chaos" to reign on Wall Street. It threatened legislation unless "failings" are remedied voluntarily.

The report was compiled by the subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., after a year-long investigation that included testimony from 87 witnesses at 26 days of public hearings.

Many of its findings jibed closely with those of a comparable Senate panel —thus indicating the direction securities legislation may take when the new Congress convenes next January.

Among the major recommendations:

Eventual elimination of all stock certificates to reduce the crush of paper work that nearly drowned Wall Street in recent years and to thwart slick thieves, who have made trading in stolen securities a multibillion dollar business for organized crime.

Gradual abolition of fixed commission rates for securities transactions in favor of open competition for brokerage business, no matter what the size of the order.

Permission for institutional investors such as mutual funds, insurance companies and pension funds, to become stock exchange members as long as they are barred from handling business for their affiliates.

Stiffer penalties, up to a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison term, for violation of securities laws and regulations.

Establishment of a "single net capital rule" to make entry into the securities business easier for competent broker-dealers.

Creation, by Jan. 1, 1974, of uniform accounting procedures for broker-dealers and by Dec. 31, 1975, of a single national system of clearance and settlement of securities transactions, leading to an eventual "central market system."

The study grew out of passage, in December of 1970, of the Securities Investor Protection Act that was hurried through Congress in the wake of serious financial troubles on Wall Street that led to the collapse of 160 member broker firms of the New York Stock Exchange alone.

In reviewing the reasons for the paper and cash crunch that caused the crisis, the subcommittee found that both the industry and the SEC were to blame.

"The subcommittee's hearings show concretely that the (New York Stock) Exchange's failings were one of the major causes of the operational and financial breakdowns which constituted the 1967-70 crisis in the securities business," the report said. "Nor is the commission without responsibility for the 1967-70 debacle; instead of regulating or supervising the self-regularors, the commission has usually negotiated with them as if they were coordinate bodies."

The report recommended free competition on all commission rates as soon as possible and promised legislation to force such a change unless the SEC and the industry move toward that goal. Rates are fixed on order up to $300,000, and the SEC has set an April, 1974, target date for lowering that level to $100,000.

But the committee said it found "no logical justification" for allowing competitive commission rates for large institutional orders while "perpetuating rate fixing" for small investors.

It criticized the SEC's plan to allow institutional investors — now barred from stock exchange membership —to join as long as they do no more than 20 per cent of their business with affiliates. It said this would "do more harm than good" and lead to future problems, and thus recommended that institutional broker-dealers be forbidden from handling affiliate business at all. But the committee tempered this recommendation by suggesting it not become effective until after brokerage fees are negotiated above the $100,000 level.

Nixon Abolishes Quota Hirings

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has ordered an end to quota systems for minority hiring in federal employment, the Civil Service Commission reported Thursday.

Commission Chairman Robert E. Hampton said Nixon insisted that discrimination in federal employment should be rooted out, but he said there should not be a quota to determine who is hired or promoted.

Hampton said individual merit should be the only criteria, according to Nixon's directive.

The President ordered an end to quotas in a letter dated Aug. 18. Hampton released copies of the letter Thursday.

Hampton said the undesirable quota method prevents merit opportunities because job decisions are made on a strictly proportional basis.

Texan New Head Of American Legion

The 59-year-old veteran of two tours of duty with the Navy was elected at the closing session of the legion's 54th annual convention. He succeeds John H. Geiger of Des Plaines, Ill.

Matthews Tops Evans Again In Olympic Tuneup

MUNICH (UPI) —Vince Matthews, who won his spot on the U.S. track and field team fair and square, has to be resting a bit easier today.

Matthews, a 24-year-old quartermiler from Brooklyn, N.Y., wound up third in the 400 meter dash at the Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore., last month, but ever since arriving in Munich all he's heard is talk that Lee Evans, who was fourth in the Trials, would replace him in the Olympic Games.

In a special final tuneup meet Thursday night, Matthews and Evans, the defending Olympic champion and world record holder, were entered in the same heat. American team officials said there was no significance to the pairing and maybe there wasn't. Still it seemed strange.

In any event, Matthews beat Evans by a tenth of a second, 44.7 to 44.8, and if there were any doubts Vince apparently dispelled them.

The betting now is that Evans will have to content himself with running anchor on the 1,600-meter relay team and leave it up to Matthews, Wayne Collett and John Smith to carry Yank hopes in the 400.

The Matthews-Evans matchup was the most significant of the tuneup meet, although Steve Prefontaine set an American record of 8:19.4 for two miles. His time beat the listed record of 8:22.1 set by George Young four years ago, but won't ever get into the record books.

That's because Prefontaine actually competed in a 3,000 meter race. What he did was continue another 240 yards for two miles in an arrangement worked out earlier with timers and officials.

Prefontaine is America's chief hope for a distance race medal. He's listed for the 5,000-meter run — a race in which he has a career best of 13:22.8, which also is the American record.

Bob Seagren, meanwhile, had a disappointing pole vault of 17-4 3-4, which is 13 inches less than his world record. What made it worse was that he lost to West Germany's Reiner Kuretzky on fewer misses.

However, Seagren, who won his specialty four years ago in the Mexico City Games, used an old pole Thursday night. He got his world mark with a newer and more refined pole, but the International Amateur Athletic Federation has not approved it.

The tuneup meet was about the only activity of note as the countdown began for Saturjay's opening ceremonies. Sunday, the action gets under way with diving, water polo, weightlifting, wrestling, soccer, pistol shooting, basketball and boxing. Track and field doesn't start until Aug. 31.

Most athletes are trying to keep busy while awaiting the opening. Today, in the main track stadium, there will be some practice runs for the opening ceremonies —usually the most colorful event of the Olympic Games. As expected, not a seat is available with a sellout of 84,000 assured.

In other news:

—The American flag finally was raised in Olympic Village in a ceremony seen by more than 1,000.

—Marilyn King of Hayward (Calif.) State was reported to have suffered a bone chip in her left ankle during a practice meet Wednesday, but she should be recovered in time for the women's pentathlon.

Hamilton Air Force Base boxers Jesse Valdez and Ricardo Carreras were given first round opponents in the draw for the Olympic boxing tournament. Valdez, a welterweight, will go against Komlan Kalipe of Togo, and Carreras, a bantamweight, will meet Timothy O'Brien of Australia.

Members of the U.S. team today selected Mrs. Olga Fikotova Connolly to carry the American Flag in tomorrow's opening ceremonies. She will compete in the discus for the fourth time as a member of the U.S. Olympic team.

Dipsea Race Is Set Sunday

The 6.8-mile Dipsea trail from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach is beloved for its matchless sylvan beauty, but Sunday morning about 11 o'clock, a thousand people will be cursing it.

Somehow, appreciation tends to be dulled after two miles of steep ascent up Cardiac Hill in the middle of a pack of sweating runners under pounding sunlight.

Some 1,400 runners of various degrees of seriousness and skill are expected to compete Sunday in the 62nd annual Dipsea race, which will start at the town clock by the bus depot in Mill Valley at 10 a.m.

The runners will have a tough time contending with each other, but probably a tougher time with the winding cross-country course featuring three steep hills.

The first part of the race is easy — a jaunt down Throckmorton Avenue into Old Mill Park — but then runners face the infamous 671 steps ascending a hill. The steps are five feet wide at the base and narrow to about two feet at the top, so runners arriving maybe 20 abreast at the base have to form a file.

NO COMPLAINTS

"We've never had any complaints about pushing or shoving at the base of the stairs," said race director John Drew. "The runners are sportsmanlike."

At the top of the steps, the trail widens along Sequoia Valley Road, giving the scratch runners their first good chance to pass the hordes of handicap runners who started ahead of them.

The trail narrows again and reaches the crest of the first hill at Windy Gap, about 750 feet up. Then the runners start a descent into Muir Woods, culminating at the shallow Muir Creek, which can be crossed easily. Along the way is the first of what Drew called three danger spots: an uneven dirt

Sports Drug Usage Blasted In Munich

Expert Says Football An Example

MUNICH (UPI)—The chief of the Olympic dope testing unit today bitterly criticized coaches who give their unknowing young charges dangerous drugs. He put U. S. football high on the list of sports in which athletes drug themselves to improve performance.

Prof. Arnold Beckett of London University said the use of amphetamines in American football was a flagrant example of athletes risking their health for professional gain and glory.

"We've had people in these laboratories who've let their hair down about the situation in the U. S. and in Canada where American football players also play. Why is it tolerated? Some people would lose their jobs if they stood out against it."

Beckett said there was virtually no sport in the Olypic Games in which the possibility of drugs being used could be excluded.

"We've even been asked to test the crews of the yachting races at Keil," he said, "though I can't offhand think of what drug would be of any use to a yachtsman."

He said the main drugs they would be looking for would be amphetamines, which lower the body's protective fatigue barrier, and ephedrine which is a stimulant. But there are a long list of other drugs which can be used, some deadly dangerous, such as strychnine.

Beckett said they were worried about the use of anabolic steroids to improve size and strength by shotputters, discus throwers and other massive athletes in the games but there was no way of testing for the hormones. In this case, Beckett said, the doctors are less worried about what the substances do to athletic performance than the danger to health.

"There should be weight classes in discus, shot and hammer," he said.

There were many questions at the news conference about the use of drugs by cyclists — there have been deaths in this sport attributed to the use of stimulants.

Beckett said all precautions were being taken —even to making sure competitors do not hide samples of "clean" urine and substitute it for their own in the tests. He said what he told was the true story of a low country cyclist who got a sample of urine and submitted it as his own.

The laboratory reported: "This cyclist has not been drugged but he is pregnant."

IN BALTIMORE

A's Hunter Vs. Oriole Cuellar

OAKLAND (AP) — Jim Hunter, the Oakland Athletics' lone serious candidate for the 20-victory circle, seeks to improve a 16-6 record tonight against the Baltimore Orioles in the opener of a three-game series.

Each club is only a half game out of the lead in its American League division. Baltimore, which sends Mike Cuellar, 12-10, to the mound, trails Detroit in the East, and Oakland has fallen a half game back of Chicago's White Sox in the West.

Five weeks ago, when the Orioles were a game behind the Tigers, the A's were enjoying the biggest margin of their long of their long tenure as West division pace setters — 8½ games over Chicago. But since then Oakland slumped to a 15-18 mark, while Chicago was compiling a hot 23-8, and the third-place Minnesota Twins gained with an 18-15 record. The Athletics were idle Thursday after ending a road trip on which they were 5-3 and which started with a pair of victories in Baltimore. Oakland will be at home now for 11 games, ending with a Labor Day doubleheader against California.

Right-fielder Reggie Jackson, who has 21 home runs and leads the A's in runs batted in with 61, has been out of action for 15 days with a rib injury. He may come off the disabled list for tonight's game.

GIANTS IN CHICAGO FOR CUB SERIES

CHICAGO (UPI) —The San Francisco Giants have to play 12 games in 13 days in a tough road trip which starts this afternoon at Wrigley Field against the Cubs.

Mustachioed Jim Willoughby (2-1) got the nod from Giants manager Charlie Fox to hurl the opener. Cubs pilot Carroll (Whitey) Lockman tabbed sinker-ball specialist Burt Hooton (7-11).

The Giant season has pretty well settled down to an attempt to catch fourth place Atlanta. The Giants are currently 1 1-2 games back of the Braves.

San Francisco was travelling Thursday.

Italian Club In 2-0 Tourney Win

VALLEJO — Don Bianchini, with a team behind him that looked like Cox's army, gave a lesson in fastball pitching last night with an overpowering two-hitter to give the Italian Club of Larkspur a 2-0 victory over Daly City in the second round of the CaliforniaJoe DiMaggio League baseball tournament at Wilson Park.

Bianchini, improving upon teammate Gene Frey's 3-1 win over Vallejo in the opening round, used the fastball almost exclusively to strikeout 11 batters and send the Marin County team into a confrontation with also-unbeaten Los Angeles tomorrow at 5:30 p.m.

Italian Club coach Al Endriss had scheduled Mark Ruggles to pitch last night, but changed his mind at the last minute. The lanky righthander from Marin Catholic gave up only singles to Rick Newman and Dennis Sims, and never knew an anxious moment.

"They were supposedly a fastball hitting club," Endriss said of Daly City. "He (Bianchini) threw mostly fastballs, moved the ball around and was really magnificent."

Wearing different colored shoes (some players had red, some black), and different colored batting helmets, even on defense, the Italian Club made up with near perfect execution what they lacked in decorum.

Shortstop Steve Sherry, a defensive standout in the Vallejo game, started the first scoring rally by being hit by a pitch to leadoff the third inning. Daryl Edralin then punched a hit-and-run single to rightfield, sending Sherry to third.

Sherry scored when the next batter, Matt Gondak, lofted a soft fly to leftcenter which was dropped by second baseman Ted Grey.

49ers Face Axe After Sunday Go

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)—Nine of the 58 San Francisco Forty Niners will be cut after Sunday's battle with Denver at Candlestick Park to meet Tuesday's squad trimming deadline.

Coach Dick Nolan says he'll follow his plan and that John Brodie will quarterback the Prospectors for most of the way against the Broncos. Nolan had said he would alternate Steve Spurrier and Brodie in a starting role for four games and it's Brodie's turn.

Asked to evaluate Steve Spurrier's performance in the 17-13 loss to San Diego last week, Nolan said "he moved the club pretty well."

Karl Fires 65 For Golf Lead

And that it is, because the top eight finishers in the second round of the $100,000 L&M Open today will leave the tournament to join the $150,000 U. S. Professional Match Play championship held on the same Country Club of North Carolina course beginning Saturday.

Karl, a 27-year-old former Army cook from Endicott, N. Y., put together a brilliant string of five consecutive birdies on holes on through five, as well as four other birds against two bogeys.

Bob Barbarossa, another second-year pro, and veteran Deane Beman both fired six-under 66s.

Bunched together at four under 68 were former Wake Forest star Lanny Wadkins, rookie Chuck Thorpe, and Stockton. Napa's Ron Cerrudo had a 71.

Finley Wins Case In Federal Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal court has ruled that Emprise Corporation, which runs the concessions at 10 major league baseball parks, has violated federal antimonopoly laws.

Justice Tom C. Clark awarded Charles O. Finley, of the Oakland Athletics, $846,000 in triple damages. He estimated Finley lost $282,168 during the four seasons, 1964 through 1967, by dealing with Emprise instead of another concessionaire.

In his ruling revealed Thursday Clark, a former U.S. Supreme Court justice now serving part time on the district court, decided that selling beer and hot-dogs at baseball parks is a "unique" kind of business. The fact that Emprise has long-term contracts with 10 of the 22 major league baseball clubs gives it a dominant position, having over 50 per cent of the business, he said.

The method Emprise used to control the concessions, Clark said, is by giving substantial loans to people running baseball teams and getting long contracts—up to 100 years—in return.

When Finley bought the Kansas City Athletics he was forced to pick up the team's Philadelphia contract with Emprise, which had many years to run. Finley fought Emprise and when he moved the team to Oakland in 1967 he refused to honor the Emprise contract and signed with a local concessionaire who is giving the Athletics 37 per cent of sales, rather than 29 per cent which Emprise paid.

Zarraonandias Grab Victories In Net Tourney

Carrie Zarraonandia of San Rafael, seeded third in girls 14 singles, defeated seventh-seeded Nancy Miller of San Francisco yesterday, 6-2, 6-1, to advance to the semi-finals of the Northern California Junior Sectional tennis tournament at the Alpine Club in Portola Valley.

Carrie and her sister, Anne, teamed up to defeat Sally Harris of Atherton and Deede Steele of Menlo Park by the same score to move into the girls 16 doubles semis.

Elsewhere in tennis, Lyba Murphy of Mill Valley was scheduled to play Gwen Sondheimer of Tiburon for the singles championship today at noon in the first Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department women's tennis tournament, while Lynne Sweeney of Belvedere and Florence McIntyre of Tiburon were to meet Alice Reeve of Mill Valley and Miss Murphy for the doubles title.

Softball Results

In San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league play last night, McKee's edged Suburban Auto Blue, 7-6; Night Club defeated W. E. Joost, 10-6; Fabulous Aliens beat Cool Tool, 13-5; and the Over-the-Hillers outslugged Belly Whompers, 17-10.

Simpson, Buffalo Take On Raiders

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—O.J. Simpson comes home to the Bay Area Saturday when he leads revitalized Buffalo against unbeaten Oakland in a National Football League exhibition at the University of California stadium here.

The Bills have shown some blocking and defense in compiling a 2-1 exhibition record while Oakland has its fans dreaming of another Super Bowl shot with three consecutive victories.

The Raiders have a string of injuries and running backs Charlie Smith and Don Highsmith, wide receivers Gloster Richardson and Cliff Branch and tackle Kelvin Korver may have to sit out the contest.

Typical of the type of problems that face coach John Madden and make him the envy of other mentors is his choice of defensive backs. Willie Brown, George Atkinson, Nemiah Wilson and Jack Tatum are as good a group as anyone could ask for and Jimmy Warren filled in brilliantly last year.

FISH AND GAME

Deer Kills Plunge In Marin, Sonoma

By AL GIDDINGS

Included were 1,729 applicants for the early season hunts for which 1,550 permits will be awarded, and 21,864 applied for the 17 late season hunts with 7,575 permits to be awarded.

Reported buck kills for this season show that Marin County hunters have taken 57 bucks as against 112 compared to this time last year. Tag returns from archers in the pre-season archery hunt showed that four bucks were taken as compared to seven last year. Mendocino County shows 760 bucks as taken compared to 1,099 last year. Sonoma, Lake and Napa county kills are also down.

THE NINTH annual hunt for buck antelope in Modoc, Lassen, Shasta and Siskiyou counties will open Saturday. Some 380 permits have been awarded for the hunt in which 400 hunters took 302 antelope last year. A total of 8,344 persons applied for the permits for this year's hunt. A minimum of 3,766 antelope were counted in this year's census. I've applied for this permit nine times now without being drawn.

With chances of being drawn about one in forty, my time should eventually roll around. Last year and the year before, I had my sights on the biggest antelope in Lassen County, but couldn't pull the trigger. I would have got him easily. I suppose if I ever get drawn, and the pressure's on, that old buck fever will take over.

If the buck is running, then you have a horse of another color, just compensate. If you get buck fever, you might shoot at the moon! It really takes practice and experience to become a good deer shot and hunter. If you can stay calm and cool, use your head and think, you're halfway home.

Enos Foster of Woodacre said that, last Sunday, he read the column and decided to try the Richmond Bridge for stripers. He said he got nothing, and that most of the boats out of Loch Lomond didn't connect either. It must be just you Sunday fishermen. Two anglers left Loch Lomond at 8:30 a.m. Monday, went to the Sisters using shiners, and were back at 10:30 with six fish.

If you'll check with Ray Lenci or Keith Frazier, I'll bet they took fish at the Richmond Bridge nearly each morning at dawn this week. (The tides were perfect). Try trolling or live bait, but the bait must be on the bottom. Fish the incoming rips at the Sisters or at the bridge near piling number 50. Or fish the bridge pilings out in the channel, but keep your lures on the bottom. Let the lures go under the pilings. Good grief, as it is the same guys are eating fish every day.

UP IN SONOMA COUNTY, near Timber Cove, a team of game wardens issued citations to four divers and three accomplices who acted as lookouts, and had assisted in cleaning the over-limits of abalones. How many abalones did they have? The wardens seized 50 abalones in the shell and 125 pounds of sliced abalone. The judge set bail at $10,500 or $1,500 each.

A fellow called from Santa Venetia saying he caught an all-white shark about 20 inches in length. I'm going over to look at it. If it turns out to be a small undersized sturgeon, what shall I do? Later — I checked the fish. It looks like a cross between a shark and a sturgeon. I suppose I should issue a half citation for the half of the fish that is the half of an undersized sturgeon! I guess I'll let the laboratory figure it out. The guy that caught this fish — his name is Bill Sturgis! Believe it or not!

Retread Pitchers Stand Out

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Two pitching reclamation projects dominated Thursday's light major league baseball action.

Jack Billingham strengthened Cincinnati's hold on first place in the National League West as he pitched the Redlegs to a 6-0 shutout of the Montreal Expos. Jim Lonborg of Milwaukee struggled to a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers in the nightcap of a doubleheader after the Brewers bowed, 4-1, in the opener.

There were no other contests in either league.

The 29-year-old Billingham, a distant cousin of the legendary Christy Mathewson, came to the Redlegs last Nov. 29 in an eight-player trade with Houston that centered around Joe Morgan, Cesar Geronimo, Lee May and Tommy Helms.

Lonborg suffered one bad inning—allowing three runs in the fourth—then fired blanks the rest of the way as his teammates—led by Dave May—caught up.

Potent Washington A Test For Detroit

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Schmidt, a firm believer in defense, should get a true picture of his Detroit Lions tonight.

The Lions take on the Washington Redskins in a nationally televised pre-season football game and no coach could ask for a sterner test of his defense than this summer's Redskin offense.

The Washington offense has been, in a word, awesome this spring, outscoring three opponents 108-13 in taking all three games. The only mark near that is the 103 points scored by Dallas, but the Cowboys have played four games.

The Redskins may have some added punch, too, in that Larry Brown, their star running back, may see action against the Lions. Brown has been sidelined by injuries but George Nock, acquired from the New York Jets in the off-season, has been brilliant as a reserve.

Schmidt must look at young players before next week's cutdown to 49 players but he'll also be interested in seeing how his club fares against the Redskins, who finished 9-4 last season and made the National Football League playoffs because of their best runnerup record.

Atlanta, winless in two previous exhibition games, meets Miami in the only other pre-season contest scheduled for tonight.

On Saturday, Minnesota is at Cleveland, Pittsburgh takes on Baltimore at Tampa, Fla., the New York Jets are at Dallas, New Orleans entertains San Diego and Buffalo plays Oakland at Berkeley. In Sunday games, Denver is at San Francisco, Kansas City plays host to Los Angeles, the New York Giants are at New Englandand Chicago takes on Green Bay in Milwaukee. Philadelphia plays host to Cincinnati in the only Monday night game.

The victory may have been a costly one for the Oilers, who lost quarterback Lynn Dickey with a dislocated hip. Dickey, who had been battling Dan Pastorini for the starting job, gained 11 yards on a first-period run when he was hit by defensive ends John Hoffman and Chuck Walker. A team physican put the hip back in place on the field and Dickey was taken to a hospital.

Dickey, a second-year man from Kansas State, had completed 7-of-10 passes for 70-yards when he was hurt.

Pastorini, a second-year man from Santa Clara, threw three touchdown passes to boost the Oilers past St. Louis. Pastorini threw a 28-yard TD pass to Ken Burrough and hit Dennis Hughes and Rhett Dawson with seven-yarders. Charlie Joiner ran four yards for another score and Ward Walsh plunged over from the three for another. Gary Cuozzo threw two TD passes for the Cardinals

In news from the camps, the New Orleans Saints traded veteran defensive end Lawrence Estes to Los Angeles for a draft choice and released Mike Walker and veteran running back Hoyle Granger.

Pittsburgh said three players —John Fuqua, Rick Sharp and Bob Adams—will be out of action for the game against Baltimmore and the Cowboys said running back Calvin Hill will miss Satuday night's game against the Jets. Jerome Barkum, the wide receiver from Jackson State who was the Jets' No. 1 draft choice, is expected to make his pro debut against the Cowboys.

Rebuilding For Petaluma Grid

After a 3-6 season in 1971, and with most of last year's stars graduated, first year Petaluma High School head varsity football coach Tony Kehl faces the unenviable task of rebuilding an entire squad.

Kehl, whose football hopefuls began two a day practices yesterday, doesn't think of this as a rebuilding season, however.

"We aren't considering this a rebuilding year. We expect to have success immediately; we plan to win more than we lose. When a coaching staff treats a season as a rebuilding year, they overlook things and perpetuate mistakes," he commented.

Helping Kehl in his quest for a north Bay League championship contender are varsity coach John Pappas, who will work with quarterbacks and receivers, assistants Paul Nobmann, working with offensive and defensive backs, Jack O'Connor, Sam Tharpe, Steve Stedman and Dave Wilson, who will all work with the offensive and defensive lines.

The Trojans will be mostly composed of juniors, up from last year's junior varsity squad which Kehl calls "as good a group of J.V.'s as I've seen since I've been coaching. But fortunaely, we have a good group of seniors to stabilize the younger players."

Leading this group of returning seniors will be number one quarterback candidate, Steve Crawford. Crawford, 6-feet-1 and 170 pounds was the backup man last year, starting the final two games of the season.

Also back this year are Tom Mercado, a split end and defensive back and linemen Dennis Govan and Bob Yamasaki, and Vick Chadwick.

Klopfer, Dooley Compete In Second Olympic Games

Race Walkers Vied In 1968 At Mexico City

(Last in a series)

Of the athletes competing in the 1972 Olympics, only a handful has been through it before. Coincidentally, two San Rafael High School physical education aides enjoy that honor.

Goetz Klopfer of Larkspur and Tom Dooley of San Carlos both veterans of the 1968 Mexico City Olympics, will take part in the 20-kilometer walk Thursday in this year's games at Munich.

Neither man is given much of a chance against a field that includes 1968 gold medal winner Viktor Goloubnichy and co-world record holders Peter Frenkel and Hans Reimann of East Germany. But that doesn't daunt their enthusiasm. "I'm happy to be going, but I'm not expecting any miracles," Klopfer said before his departure for Munich.

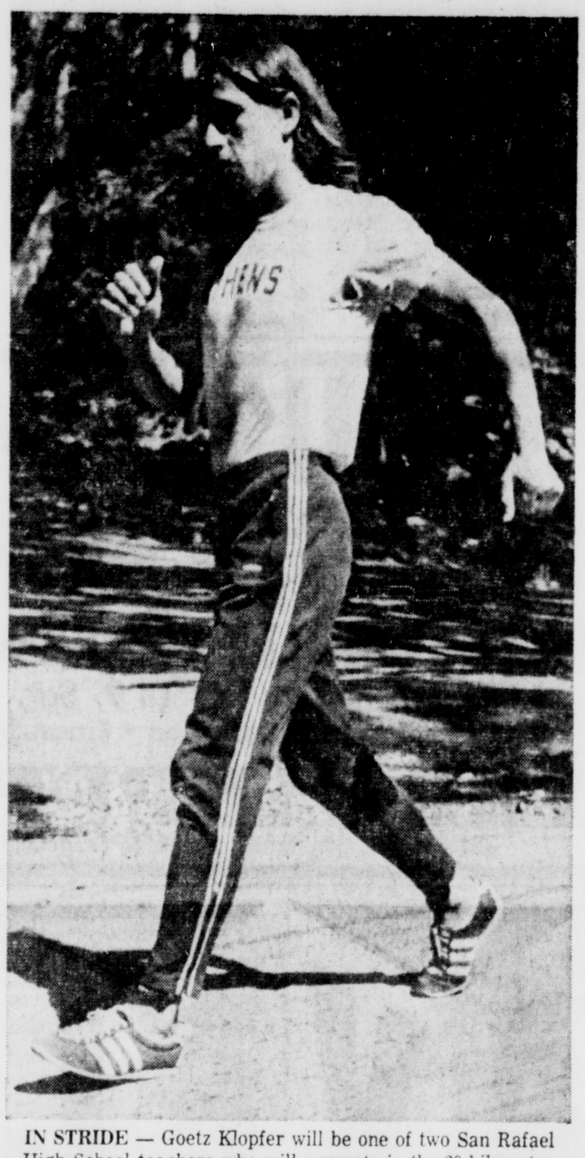
Klopfer and Dooley qualified for the 1972 games in Olympic trials July 1 at Eugene, Ore. They finished second and third behind Larry Young, who won the bronze medal in the 50-kilometer walk at Mexico City. Klopfer's qualifying time was 1:38.03, while Dooley came in at 1:39.10.

Klopfer, a 5-foot-6, 130-pounder, finished 10th at Mexico City. "That first time I was nine feet above the ground," he said. "This time, I won't be as nervous or overawed."

Klopfer, who set American records in the 30 and 25 kilometer distances, cut down on long workouts and concentrated on speed for this year's games. But it will take a lot of concentration to lower his time to the 1:26.15 that will probably be necessary to win.

In between Olympics, Dooley and Klopfer kept themselves busy, first by finishing one-two in the National Senior Amateur Athletic Union 20-kilometer walk last May in Golden Gate Park, and then by repeating the feat, except in reverse order, at the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, in August.

At the Pan Am games Klopfer, 28, was clocked in 1:37.30 over 20 kilometers, while Dooley, 26, finished at 1:38.15.



IN STRIDE — Goetz Klopfer will be one of two San Rafael High School teachers who will compete in the 20-kilometer walk in the Olympic Games in Munich. The other is Tom Dooley. Both went to the 1968 Games in Mexico City, but finished back in the pack, and will be seeking to improve their performances at Munich.

road by the Muir Woods parking lot.

BRUTAL

Next comes the brutal trek up Cardiac Hill, with runners ascending 1,200 feet over two and a quarter miles, much of it in the sun. Heat prostration is a danger on a hot day, Drew said. But this stretch provides the first prolonged opportunity for scratch runners to pass handicappers.

The crest of Cardiac Hill is marked by a lone pine tree named, appropriately enough, Lone Pine. Runners then descend sharply, 1,300 feet in a mile and a half, to Steep Ravine, the third danger spot. It is wet and slippery in foggy weather.

INSULT HILL

Before pouring it on at the stretch, however, runners are required to ascend Insult Hill. It's the smallest of the three, but doesn't seem like it after five and a half miles of running. Passing the crest at White Barn Gate, the runners have a downhill dash of a mile to the Stinson Beach Post Office. Theoretically, this is where scratch runners will finally catch handicappers for a stretch battle.

"People who have run the Dipsea before or who have worked out on the trail for several months have an advantage," said Drew. "The key to the race is being familiar with the trail."

Red Sox Recall Ex-Giant

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox recalled relief pitcher Bob Bolin Thursday from their Louisville farm club and asked waivers on reserve infielder Bob Burda. Both are former San Francisco Giants.

Bolin pitched in 12 games for the Red Sox before he was sent to Louisville on June 20. He had an 0-1 record and no saves. He appeared in 25 games at Louisville, compiling a 6-1 mark with six saves and a 1.83 earned run average. He hurled a complete game shutout in his only start.

Burda, who appeared mainly as a pinch hitter, had only 12 hits in 73 trips to the plate for Boston for a .164 average. He had two home runs and nine runs batted in.

Basketball

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Star guard Don Freeman was traded Thursday to the American Basketball Association champion Indiana Pacers from Dallas.

Freeman, a two-time ABA all-pro guard, was acquired in a cash deal of undisclosed nature and "future considerations", club Pacer officials said. Freeman is the ABA's fourth-highest all-time scorer with 8,303 points and a 22.8 per-game average, which is seventh. He ranks second in free throws with 2,184 and second in two-point field goals made.

Tennis

NEWPORT, R.I. — Second-seeded Chris Evert meets Wendy Overton and third-seeded Rosemary Casals meets Margaret Smith Court as quarter-final matches continue today in the $18,000 Virginia Slims Grass Court Tennis Tournament.

In quarter-final matches Thursday, top-seeded Billie Jean King of Palm-Aire, Fla., eliminated Pam Teegaurden of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-0, and unseeded Julie Heldman of Houston upset defending champion Kerry Melville of Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Auto Racing

ONTARIO, Calif. — Bobby Unser already has set records at six tracks in qualifying for the pole position and he appears headed for another one in the California 500.

On his first day of practice on the Ontario Motor Speedway Thursday, the Albuquerque, N.M., speedster burned up the track at 195.202 miles per hour in his Olsonite Eagle, nearly four miles an hour faster than any other driver.

Four others also surpassed the 190 m.p.h. mark Thursday to join Unser and Johnny Rutherford in the above-190 group. Going over the 190 mark Thursday were Mario Andretti, 191.574; Al Unser, 190.827, Gordon Johncock, 190.783, and Jerry Grant, 190.508.

Hockey

CHICAGO — The Chicago Black Hawks Thursday asked a federal judge to prohibit former star Bobby Hull from promoting the new Winnipeg Jets until his contract dispute is settled.

Federal judge James B. Parsons ordered both sides to appear in court today for a hearing on the issue of Hull's statements to the press.

TORONTO — Three living legends, two former greats and a hockey builder were inducted into the hockey hall of fame at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds here Thursday.

The new additions were former Detroit Red Wings superstar Gordie Howe; former Montreal Canadiens captain Jean Beliveau; Montreal and New York Ranger great Bernie 'Boom Boom' Geoffrion; Weston W. Adams, chairman of the board of the Boston Bruins; the late Reginald 'Hooley' Smith; and the late Harry 'Hap' Holmes.

The new inductees brought to 186 the number of members in the hockey hall of fame — 136 players, 43 builders and seven referees.

Daly City posed its lone threat in the fifth, when Bianchini walked the leadoff man. But Edralin erased him and the next batter by turning a line drive into a double play.

Los Angeles remained the only other undefeated team in the tourney by shutting out San Francisco earlier yesterday, 2-0. Endriss named Ruggles to start against them tomorrow.

Task Force On High School Location Acts

After a year's study on what to do with the 32 acre Marin City high school site, a task force appointed by the Tamalpais High School District has come up with two recommendations:

1. That part of the site be immediately developed as a park in cooperation with the Marin City Community Services District, and

2. that the district study eventually using some of the site for a 400-student learning center and letting the rest of the acreage go for commercial development.

To be considered at Monday's 8 p.m. meeting of the district board at the Tamalpais High School student center, the recommendations come in a task force report headed by trustee Bette Wallace.

The report states that the district has invested a total of $300,000 since it bought the land in 1958. It also owns potential high school sites in Tiburon and San Geronimo, "but grade projections show all existing high schools to remain almost at present enrollment levels through 1977, except for Tamalpais High School which drops 138."

Recommending that Marin City residents have a say in their own future, the report suggests an appraisal of all district-owned sites. The existing contract with the Marin County Housing Authority should be renegotiated because the long delayed planned growth of Marin City is now going to occur before 1976, adds the report.

Also before the board Monday evening will be personnel actions on approving salaries for the 1972-73 school year for administrative assistant Edward Neumeier and special assistant Lanny Berry, and for hiring four temporary teachers to replace regular teachers on leave of absence.

The board will meet at 7:15 before the meeting to tour the recently completed walkways project and to view areas where improvements are needed.

Child Plays, Then Snake Is Killed

A Sleepy Hollow father chopped the head off a coastal diamond rattlesnake Wednesday in his backyard — minutes after his year-old son had been playing there.

Roger G. Price of 4 Dutch Valley Lane, said he found the three-foot-long poisonous snake sunning itself beside the patio deck.

Price said he immediately grabbed a hoe and cut its head off. His 3-year-old son Gregory had reported seeing a snake an hour earlier, but it couldn't be found. In the meantime Andrew, 1, had played in the yard.

Lower Speed During Smog Alerts Eyed

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The prospect of a 40-mile-per-hour speed limit on Bay Area highways during smog alerts was raised yesterday by a committee of Air Pollution Control District directors.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort suggested the speed limit, noting it would cut emissions of nitrogen oxides. Their emission from motor vehicles rises sharply with increased speed.

No formal action was taken by the alert system committee, but the district staff was asked to explore the speed limit with the state Division of Highways.

The issue was debated Wednesday at an unannounced meeting. The state's antisecret meeting law, the Ralph M. Brown Act, requires 24-hour notice of such meetings, but notices were not received by the press until yesterday.

Supervisor Suggests Ferry Tax Exemption

Special state legislation should be sought to exempt the Golden Gate Bridge District from paying some $630,000 in sales tax on its new ferry fleet, Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum said yesterday.

Such an exemption would cancel the $157,500 that otherwise would be Marin County's share of the tax, as well as the state's $472,500 share.

The City of Larkspur, where the initial fleet of three vessels will be based starting in 1974, would not get a penny of sales tax revenue in any event from the purchase of the fleet. State law requires that the local share of the sales tax in this case go entirely to the county.

Wornum made his proposal to the bridge district's finance-auditing committee, which agreed to look further into it. He noted the Legislature would have time next year to pass such a measure because the first ferry will not be delivered until April, 1974.

"We're not a profit-making business anymore, God knows," Wornum said.

A state Board of Equalization official observed that no such exemption is enjoyed by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, which is slated to pay ten times more than the bridge district in sales tax on its trains alone.

Hospitalized Woman Motorist Improving

Dolores Roberta Carlson, 39, of 1295 Idleberry Road, Lucas Valley has been taken off the critical list but still remains in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital, hospital authorities reported today.

She was injured last Thursday when her eastbound car ran off the Lucas Valley Road, knocked down two county road paddle markers, a road sign and light pole before turning over and hitting a second pole, California Highway Patrol reported.

Resurfacing Bid

A $198,021 contract has been awarded Freeman Sondgroth Construction Co. of Mountain View, lowest of eight bidders, to resurface the westbound lanes of Highway 37 between Highway 101 and Atherton Avenue in Novato. The work must be finished in 60 working days.

Art-In-Park Show Slated In Petaluma

The Petaluma Art Association will present its 14th annual Art-in-the-Park Sept. 9 and 10 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Walnut Park.

Displays will include paintings, graphics, pottery, weaving and sculpture. Demonstrations will include wheel-thrown pottery, water color and oil painting, weaving and both a four-harness and a frame loom, stitchery and decoupage.

A section will be set aside this year for a children's arts and crafts display area.

Artists with work on display will include Lewis Barber, Pat and Frank Marshall, Barbara Ebbeson, Jean Noack Pratt and Marjorie Irving.

Track Their Ducks

BERLIN (AP) — East Berlin bird researchers have started placing multi-colored plastic rings around the necks of wild ducks to keep track of their movements.

Steps Proposal To Get Hearing

The San Rafael Board of Education will consider a proposal to remove the existing walk and install concrete steps at Santa Venetia School when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the district office.

He said the board will consider an implementation procedure for a personnel evaluation policy as required by the Stull Act, review the adult education program and discuss board policy regarding the transfer of teacher tenure rights.

DEATH VALLEY? — It may look like the barren wastes of a desert, but this is actually the Marin Municipal Water District's Nicasio Reservoir, viewed from the Nicasio and Petaluma-Point Reyes road. The major storage lake, which has a 7.5-billion gallon capacity, is now down to less than 2 billion gallons concentrated in a pond at the spillway in the distance. District officials estimate they will be able to pump from the lake for another month, then transfer operations to another reservoir. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Fog, Cooler Air Give Hand To Forest Fire Fighters

Condors' Refuge Still Safe

Combined AP & UPI

More than 21,450 acres had been blackened by the relentless flames which have plagued the state since Tuesday.

About 371 fire fighters Thursday night won their battle to check a 1,760-acre blaze in Sonoma County which flared Thursday and gutted eight homes, 18 other structures and 10 vehicles.

A spokesman for the state Division of Forestry said winds which had gusted to 30 miles an hour died down long enough Thursday night to allow a quickly cut fire line to effectively deter the flames from spreading to other structures in the Healdsburg and Geyserville areas.

While the fire had consumed mostly brush land, a few groves of California's famed redwood trees fell victim to the blaze.

A stubborn four-day-old fire in inaccessible terrain in Los Padres National Forest, Ventura County north of Los Angeles, continued to burn out of control, despite the tireless efforts of nearly 2,000 men from several western states, including Indian crews from San Carlos, Ariz., four aerial tankers, 10 helicopters and a fleet of ground tankers and bulldozers.

The U.S. Forest Service said any estimated time for containing the 16,000-acre blaze would be premature at this time. "We're a long way from containment," a spokesman said.

Residents of the small community of Ojai were endangered for a time Thursday as the wind-whipped flames forged to within seven miles of the town's perimeter. However, a Forest Service spokesman said today that Ojai no longer was considered in a danger zone.

He said crews worked through the night to build a fire line, but by daybreak had completed only five of the 24 miles necessary to harness the fire. Most of the work had to be done by hand due to the rugged terrain, he added.

About 350 acres of the Sespe

Council Finished Budget; Mill Valley Tax Rate Cut

With the mayor and one city councilman off on vacation, the Mill Valley City Council last night adopted a budget for 1972-1973 and set a tax rate of $2.84 per $100 assessed valuation, a drop of 4 cents from last year's tax rate.

The new tax rate means property taxes on a home with an assessed value of $40,000 will be $1,136.

The council wound up its 11th budget session after midnight and the final budget total was not yet available today, but was expected to be made than $2.3 million.

For months, the council has been plodding through first and second reviews of every departmental account. Last night, in a burst of activity, the three remaining councilmen reviewed the unfinished portions of the budget in which Councilman Gerald J. Hood called, "the most productive session we've had since I've been elected."

Neither Mayor Jean S. Barnard nor Councilman Robert E. Burton were present at the meeting. Both left on vacation with the understanding that the final budget and tax rate might be adopted by the time they returned.

Highlighting the city's new expenditures are one additional police patrolman, one fireman, an assistant planner and partial

Spassky Again Draws On Repetitive Move

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) –Bobby Fischer invoked the repetition-of-moves rule for the second consecutive time today and claimed and got a draw in the 18th game of his world championship match with Russian Boris Spassky to maintain his three-point lead.

Spassky, in a difficult position today, repeated one move three times and Fischer quickly called for a draw. Spassky had done the same thing in the 17th game, possibly a blunder because he then looked at the board in apparent disbelief. Today, as in past draws, the two players looked at the board, nodded and shook hands.

Grandmasters were puzzled over why Fischer claimed the second draw in two games, since he held a pawn advantage and a "winning position" from the adjourned position Thursday night. Spassky ad only hoped for a draw in today's game.

"I won't be surprised if Fischer is content to play the time out in draws," U.S. grandmaster Larry Evans said.

Fischer needs a combination of two wins or four more draws to gain the championship.

The draw means Fischer leads 10.5 points to 7.5 points and needs only two more points to become the second American world champion in history. The match consists of 25 games, and a draw counts as one half a point for each.

Fischer arrived 13 minutes late, played through five moves upon resumption of the game, then summoned arbiter Lothar Schmid just before making his own 48th move, and pointed out the move he intended to make.

TERRA LINDA ANNEX ISSUE ON BALLOT

At a brief public hearing attended by about a dozen people, four letters of protest were received and no one spoke in opposition to the proposed annexation, according to County Administrator John F. Barrows.

The district board, the San Rafael City Council and the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission have approved the merger.

Supervisors John F. McInnis and Arnold M. Baptiste were absent.

Two Water Stores At Low Levels

Two of Marin Municipal Water District's six reservoirs will be depleted below pumping level within the next month because of the past dry winter.

But Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger said the district is in no immediate danger of running out of water needed to serve its approximately 50,000 customers.

When Nicasio and Alpine lakes become too low for regular pumping, the district will transfer operations to Kent and Bon Tempe lakes, which have not yet been used this season.

"With Kent and Bon Tempe, we hope to squeeze by until the rainy season begins about the middle of October," Seeger said. Two small reservoirs, Phoenix, with 200 million gallons, and Lagunitas, with 300 million, have not been pumped and are practically full. These can be utilized in emergencies, Seeger added.

Currently, he said, Nicasio with a capacity of 7.5 billion gallons is down to 1.9 billion and should last another month before the district transfers to Kent, which presently holds 4.3 of its five billion gallon capacity.

Alpine with a capacity of 3 billion gallons is depleted to 1 billion gallons and will be accessible to district pumps for another two weeks.

At that time, customers served by Alpine will begin receiving water from Bon Tempe's 1 billion gallons.

"The last time the lakes were this low was in 1964," Seeger said.

He noted water still will remain in Alpine and Nicasio lakes even when they can no longer be pumped by perma-

South Vietnamese Retake Key Town, Fare Badly Elsewhere

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops reinforced with men flown in from Hue and Saigon today recaptured the key Que Son district capital below Da Nang only hours after their commanding officer had been fired for losing the town last Saturday.

Military sources in Saigon said the town, 30 miles south of Da Nang, was entered by a force of 500 troops who once worked for the U.S. Green Berets as mercenaries. They hauled down the Viet Cong flag which had flown there for nearly a week and hoisted the government flag.

But elsewhere in South Vietnam the government suffered sharp reverses, and the U.S. Command disclosed the loss of four more planes over North Vietnam, three of them last weekend and one of them today. Two F4 Phantom crewmen shot down today were rescued from the Gulf of Tonkin but the six lost in the North were reported as misuing, either prisoners or presumed dead.

So far the U.S. Command has reported losing 82 planes and 91 men over North Vietnam since the start of the Communist offensive last spring and the resumption of heavy bombing attacks on the North last April 6.

The worst government setback came in an ambush 40 miles north of Saigon where North Vietnamese forces surrounded a 500-man force of elite rangers, killing or wounding 67 and leaving 75 missing in two days of fighting.

Another came in the Mekong Delta, 45 miles southwest of Saigon, where Communist troops attacking near Cai Lay cut Highway 4, the rice lifeline between Saigon and the delta. The government rushed reinforcements into the area and a battle was reported continuing eight hours later.

Fighting continued heavy in the Quang Tri city area 30 miles north of Da Nang, and South Vietnamese marines trying to recapture the city were hit by another 1,700-round artillery and mortar barrage. The North Vietnamese made more of their daily forays with tanks but were beaten back. The Saigon command said the latest fighting killed 207 Communists at a cost of 15 marines dead and 58 wounded.

Brig. Gen. Pham Hoa Hiep, the general fired during the Que Son fighting, flew in a total of 5,000 infantrymen from the threatened Hue area and a

Blackout's Source Is Cable Fault

Downtown San Rafael's power failure yesterday was traced to a piece of faulty cable underground in front of Macy's on Fourth Street.

Robert H. Williams, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., said the dud cable had "probably deteriorated due to electrolysis."

The area of the outage was bounded by Third and Fifth streets and by Lincoln Avenue and C Street. PG&E reported 142 customers were affected by the power cut.

He said PG&E troubleshooters located the fault in about 45 minutes after the outage occurred at 9:53 a.m., but the cable is still dead.

"The system is so arranged that once you have your fault isolated you can work around it. We are going to pull all that section out and put new cable in."

Technicians traced the fault, said the superintendent, by testing section after section until isolating the trouble spot.

Security All Around As Hijack $1 Million Ransom Is Returned

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Most of the 147 passengers aboard a TWA jetliner which landed at Dulles International Airport Thursday were unaware of a special cargo—two suitcases crammed with $1 million in cash.

The money in the possession of two Delta Airlines officials represented the record ransom obtained by eight skyjackers who commandeered a Delta aircraft July 31 from Detroit to Algiers.

Algerian officials impounded the money and returned it to the Delta executives in Paris after detaining the hijackers.

The Delta officials—Shelby Demant, vice president for marketing, and security officer Eugene H. Stewart—said jokingly they "thought about" spending the fortune in Paris "but we wanted to get back to Atlanta (Delta headquarters) and not to the federal prison in Atlanta."

The passengers aboard the jet which carried the Delta couriers and their money were subjected to extensive searches in Rome, where the flight originated, and Paris, a stopover point without learning about the money.

"No kidding," exclaimed Pete Avery, 22, an Arizona State University student from Phoenix. "I wondered why the guy was there with the shotgun and everything. Fabulous!"

Two other passengers were Frances (Cissy) Farenthold, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor of Texas, and her 18 year-old daughter, Emily.

Mrs. Farenthold, who was runner-up in balloting for the vice presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention, said she had "no idea what was going on."

"I was deep in a book," she said. "But I never had such a thorough search in my life. They frisked us all up and down. They took us into little cubicles about the size of telephone booths and frisked us."

Capt. Carl Dowling, pilot of the jetliner, reported that "everything was very quiet" during the transtlantic flight. "It was very uneventful. The whole flight was normal."

Demant and Stewart were joined by FBI agents at Dulles to count the money, which Stewart said was "still in its original wrappers."

Stewart said the Algerians declined to tell them what happened to the hijackers. He said the Algerians were extremely courteous, but "politely evasive" when questioned about the fate of the group.

Belfast Security Beef-Up As Bombers Target Hotels

BELFAST (UPI) — Troops stepped up security around public lodgings throughout Northern Ireland today because of a wave of hotel bombings, a security source said.

In continuing violence soldiers killed one sniper and wounded another in Londonderry. The army said the fatal shooting occurred today in the city's northern side. The other occurred Thursday night in the Creggan district, a former "no-go area."

Earlier, a soldier died and three others were injured when two landmines exploded under their vehicle near the border with the Irish Republic.

The death brought to three the number of troopers killed in the past 24 hours and raised the army's death toll in three years of violence to 117. The overall death toll in Northern Ireland for the three years of violence stands at 531.

Police Raid Wake For Terrorists

Contributing to the tension was the expiratioN8today of the government-imposed deadline for ex-president Juan D. Peron to return from his Spanish exile if he is to run in presidential elections set for next March.

Peron, 76, who ruled Argentina from 1946 to 1955, when the army deposed him, has said he will return in October, and will be candidate of his "Justicialista" movement despite the government deadline.

Riot police used a small tank to knock down the door of "Justicialista" party headquarters Thursday night, then routed mourners with tear gas, truncheons, horse charges and trained dogs, to carry away the coffins of three guerrillas killed in a jailbreak attempt.

The coffins were taken to a graveyard for burial by the police. The Peronists had defied a mid-afternoon deadline for ending the wake—which had taken on anti-government overtones—and had announced it would last all night.

Two of the mourned guerrillas were women. They were among 16 recaptured terrorists killed by marines at Trelew Naval Air Station in southern Argentina Tuesday

Demo HQ Hearing Surprise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal judge says he wants to begin a civil trial in the alleged bugging attempt of Democratic national headquarters before the Nov. 7 presidential election to "insure the right of the public to know."

"It may be that, so far as the public is concerned, their interest might be better served by having a civil trial before the election," U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey told surprised attorneys Thursday at what they had expected to be a routine procedural hearing.

The $1 million civil suit filed by the Democratic National Committee against the Committee to Re-elect the President and five suspects in the alleged bugging stems from an attempted June 17 break-in at Democratic headquarters in the posh Watergate apartment-commercial complex.

A federal grand jury also has been investigating the case to determine whether criminal indictments are warranted. A Justice Department spokesman said Thursday that indictments may be handed down early next month.

Two Houston oil executives testified Thursday before the grand jury on GOP campaign donations linked to the break-in, according to government sources.

One of the oilmen, William C. Liedtke Jr., is Southwest regional fund-raiser for President Nixon's re-election campaign and president of Houston-based Pennzoil United, Inc. Also called as a witness was Roy J. Winchester, Pennzoil's vice president for public relations.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Abortion Ruling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women who have been unable to obtain state Medicaid to pay for abortions they want must now be granted such aid on request, a three-judge federal court ruled Thursday.

The court overruled a directive issued last year by state Social Services Commissioner George Wyman which barred Medicaid payments for abortions. The court said the directive violated constitutional rights by denying "indigent women the equal protection of the laws to which they are constitutionally entitled."

The court added that indigent women "alone are subject to state coercion to bear children which they do not wish to bear," while more affluent women "have complete freedom to make the choice."

Mexican Manhunt

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UPI) — Helicopters and small planes today combed the wild Sierra Madre mountains searching for guerrillas blamed for two ambushes in which 18 Mexican soldiers were killed this summer.

Seven soldiers were killed Wednesday on a mountain road only two miles from where 11 were killed last June 25.

McGovern Backed

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) broke a 56-year tradition yesterday and endorsed Sen. George McGovern for president.

The group, after hearing McGovern speak at midmorning, also decided to give him up to $250,000 of the AFT campaign chest.

Russ Tax Flayed

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel may demand that the United States immediately cut off trade with the Soviet Union unless the Kremlin drops the head tax imposed on college educated Jews who want to emigrate, a Tel Aviv newspaper said today.

"Political circles feel that only an American economic boycott of the Soviet Union can persuade the Kremlin to cancel the tax decree," the front-page story in Ha'Aretz said.

A Foreign Ministry source said he was not aware of any request for the United States to stop trading with the Soviets. He said the Israeli Embassy in Washington has been given no instructions to make such a request.

Casals Released

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)— Cellist Pablo Casals, 95, was released from Auzilio Mutuo Hospital Thursday after a checkup and a spokesman said he was in good condition. Casals underwent a series of examinations related to a kidney infection he had two years ago.

Rogers On Vietnam

"We are being urged by some now to quit — to refuse to give any further support, economic or otherwise — to throw up our hands — to abandon the people of South Vietnam — to forget all that we have said as a nation, and to forget all they have done as a nation," Rogers said in a speech.

"This the President will not do."

Pravda Criticizes U.S. Peace Corps

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets today called the American Peace Corps an espionage corps that failed and said no amount of reorganization could save it from total collapse.

An article in Pravda, the newspaper of the Soviet Communist Party, said 11 countries had expelled volunteers for espionage and said the number of Peace Corps workers had been halved.

China Says It Would Block Bangladesh Entry To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— China told the U.N. Security Council Thursday that it would cast its first veto to block the admission of Bangladesh to the United Nations.

But there were indications that further procedural tactics by the supporters of China in the 15-nation body would delay any vote on the matter. China has not cast a veto since joining the world body last year.

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua Thursday introduced his country's resolution that would have the council postpone consideration of the Bangladesh application until such time as Pakistani prisoners of war and other civilian detainees are released.

That resolution has no chance of passage. A measure sponsored by the Soviet Union, Britian, India and Yugoslavia demanding outright recommendation of Bangladesh admission to the General Assembly is known to have the support of at least 11 council members. Among them are all the other big powers except China

Thursday's debate was terminated by a procedural vote on a motion by Sudan—one of three African countries supporting the Chinese position. The others are Guinea and Somalia.

The Sudanese proposal was to delay the vote on the issue until 3 p.m. EDT today in order to "save the situation from a fatal collision"—a possible reference to the Chinese veto.

Sudanese Ambassador Salah Ibrahim expressed the hope that in the intervening time delegations would "change their positions"—but he did not say how.

Huang, in introducing his resolution, said he was defending the "spirit of the U.N. charter" against new member states that proclaim adherence to the document but are not in fact qualified.

Algeria Threats To Cleaver, Wife Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Kathleen Cleaver says her exiled husband, former Black Panther chief Eldridge Cleaver has received "verbal and face to face" death threats while in exile in Algeria.

The 27-year-old Mrs. Cleaver said conditions were "intolerable" for Black Panthers in Algeria and that her husband wanted to return to the United States legally.

Cleaver jumped $50,000 bail in California in 1968 and fled the country to set up the international wing of the Panther Party in Algeria.

Mrs. Cleaver said recent decisions by tha U.S. Supreme Court on the legal rights of parolees gave Cleaver hope that he could return without being tossed in prison as a parole violator.

She said the former panther leader would be happy to return and face a felony charge stemming from a shootout with policemen in Oakland.

Mrs. Cleaver said her husband's fleeing the country was "ordered" by Newton, who now says the party has put aside guns and violence to work within the system.

KATHLEEN CLEAVER
"Intolerable" conditions

"My husband had other plans on how not to return to prison," she said of the 1968 escape.

She blamed the CIA and American business interests for the threats on Cleaver's life.

"We would not put it past them to get the cooperation of reactionary forces in that area," she said. "In Algeria, politically, anything can happen."

Alioto Says City Tax Cut By 12 Cents

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has announced happily that the city tax rate will be cut 14 cents this year.

"I have some disappointing news," he told newsmen Thursday with sarcasm. "I am sorry to disappoint those local geniuses who predicted that last year's tax decrease was an election-year gimmick."

The new tax rate recommended by Controller Nat Cooper is $12.59 per $100 as compared to last year's $12.73, which in turn was a drop from the $12.82 of the year before.

The mayor also predicted that Nixon Administration programs would go to help the Haight-Ashbury and Hunters Point areas.

In his wide-ranging news conference, he also confirmed that Dr. Thomas Shaheen was indeed leaving his position after negotiating a settlement with the Board of Education.

Jane Fonda: 'Proud To Be An American'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Actress Jane Fonda joined an anti-war rally in San Francisco Thursday and told about 3,500 persons that her recent trip to North Vietnam taught her to "be proud of being an American."

She said the North Vietnamese are teaching their people "that there is a difference between us —the American people —and Richard Nixon."

The actress accused the president of "betraying everything we stand for," and asked for the support of Sen. George McGovern "if that will save Vietnam."

Demonstrators hoisted placards and some carried Viet Cong flags. A police car and an American flag were burned near the end of the 3½-mile march, but no arrests were reported.

Miss Fonda told the rally that "Vietnamization has failed."

She said that between April 16 and July 31 there were 150 attacks on dikes that protect the North Vietnamese peasants from floods. She said the dikes were severed in 92 places and that she personally witnessed three of the breaks.

The actress said another anti-war rally would be held Saturday at the main gate of Travis Air Force Base.

Novatans Resume Battle Against Offramp Threat

"That is the "G" route which was unanimously rejected by the Novato City Council Dec. 9, 1969," she said.

Under the present Highway 101 bypass construction, the east end of the De Long Avenue interchange will be "stubbed off," but residents are worried about a potential extension to the east.

"We don't oppose a single family subdivision" but "we don't want an offramp behind the homes in Gnoss Estates," Mrs. Stahlbaum said.

Petitions are being circulated asking that the subdivision plan by Kaehler-Timmer "be modified to conform" to the council decision to eliminate the "G" route, she said.

Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps and Planning Director Brian W. Mattson aren't following the council's decision and "Temps has been pushing this offramp," Mrs. Stahlbaum said.

The "G" route which would extend to Olive Avenue near Rita Court, should have been marked off city plans and the developer should have been told that route wasn't open, she said.

Residents are scheduled to protest when the Novato Planning Commission holds a hearing on the tentative plan by Kaehler-Timmer for Valley Oaks Estates at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The firm plans 83 single family homes on 42.3 acres south of Olive Avenue and north of the Novato Sanitary District property. If a De Long avenue extension is constructed.

Mrs. Stahlbaum said she doubted there was a need for an extension, claiming there would be ample access to the Highway 101 bypass from the Gnoss Estates area without it.

McGovern Ready To Unwrap Welfare Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George S. McGovern today told a cheering group of his labor supporters that he plans to make unemployment "issue No. 1" of his campaign against President Nixon.

McGovern told the union officials who make up the National Labor Committee for McGovern-Shriver that his tax and welfare proposal to be unveiled Tuesday "will put people back to work, place the number one emphasis on providing a job for everyone who is able to work."

The committee, which includes officials of 29 AFL-CIO unions who disregarded president George Meany's order of neutrality and the independent United Auto Wrokers announced a $250,000 budget to aid McGovern in his contest against Nixon.

Earlier in the day, in a question and answer session with managers of rural electric cooperatives, McGovern hinted he might propose a system of direct subsidies to farmers to partially replace price supports.

McGovern indicated he had made no decision on the subsidy plan but if passed by Congress, it could increase farm income without boosting the prices paid at the supermarkets.

McGovern received an enthusiastic reception from the union leaders and was cheered lustily when he criticized Nixon for permitting the unemployment rate to increase from a little over 3 per cent to 5.5 per cent.

"Unemployment — 5 and a half million or I suspect maybe six and a half or seven million people, walking the streets looking for jobs —that's issue No. 1," he said.

Earlier, McGovern issued a statement accusing Nixon of turning the nation's economy into "a palace for the privileged few."

"But we Democrats had a lot to do with building that structure in the first place," he said. "And we're tired of Richard Nixon turning it into a place for the privileged few."

The theme of the statement was seconded by a full-page advertisement in the Washington Post bought by the labor unions which have shunned AFL-CIO President George Meany's neutrality edict and endorsed McGovern.

"Working people can no longer afford the Nixon administration," the advertisement said.

In a statement to a meeting of managers and editors of statewide associations of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in his Senate office, McGovern pledged full backing of government programs to provide electricity to the nation's farms.

"When I become President of the United States, I intend to see to it that REA (Rural Electrification Administration) and the rural electric cooperatives will be able to have the resources and the backing they need to fully meet the challenges they face," he said.

He said Nixon blonked three attempts by Congress to increase REA loan funds.

Hitchhiker's Tip Spurs Two Arrests

Two men from British Columbia arrested in Marin Wednesday after a hitchhiker told sheriff's deputies the pair had "shot speed" six times while he rode with them were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on drug charges.

Leroy Glenn Jeffery, 19, of Vancouver, and Harry Woodford Swingler, 19, of Surry were to return to court today to enter pleas to charges of possessing dangerous drugs, needles and a syringe.

Sheriff's deputies said an informant called them Wednesday afternoon to say the two were headed sough into Marin on Highway 101. The informant told officers he had ridden from Coos Bay, Ore. to Santa Rosa with the two men and they not only had injected drugs six times but also had a stolen credit card and improper license plates.

He said the men were keeping the drugs in a refrigerator in a towed housetrailer. The informant also said he thought one man was an Army deserter and the other a parole violator from Mississippi.

Deputies stoped them on Highway 101 and found six bundles of white crystalline powder in the refrigerator along with needles and syringe. A stolen credit card was found in the back seat of the deputies' patrol car after the men had been placed there, they said.

group of rangers from the Saigon area. He had ordered his 10,000-man force to capture Que Son today but his troops were a mile away at the time and the prediction appeared premature.

But by the time his troops had carried out the order, Hiep had been officially relieved of command by an executive order issued by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

His firing followed by one day the arrest of the regimental commander whose troops fled Que Son and nearby Ross Aug. 19. Hiep was overall commander of the 2nd Infantry Division and of all troops in the Que Son area.

The general was replaced by Col. Tran Van Nhut, chief of Binh Long Province north of Saigon and considered one of the heroes of the government stand at An Loc province capital. Nhut stayed in An Loc throughout the heavy fighting in April and May and personally destroyed one Communist tank with an anti-tank weapon.

New Truck Missing From Agency's Lot

A brand new orange pickup truck was reported stolen from Campbell Bishop Chevrolet, at 5880 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera police said today.

Sales manager John Saia said the truck was parked on the lot without keys, and was stolen some time between Aug. 18 and 22. It had no license number.

CHESS

Fischer held out his hand to Spassky for the handshake. Then Bobby stood up, took a sip of water and walked out.

"There must have been danger in the air, otherwise Bobby would not have offered a draw," Yugoslav Grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric said.

The enforced repetition-of-moves rule followed a similar draw in the 17th game in which Spassky held the advantage but had to settle for a draw when Fischer pointed out three moves in which the position had not changed on the board. The rule, a basic chess rule taught in every chess primer, says that if the same position occurs three times during a game with the same player to move, it is a draw should one of the players make the claim.

The three repetitions came on the 45th through the 47th moves in a maneuver between the two over their queens.

During the past winter, unusually low rainfall filled the district's reservoirs to only 75 per cent of their 17 billion gallon capacity. While the district watershed normally produces an annual firm yield of 30,000 acre feet, it produced only 21,000 acre feet this year.

Trial Set For Pair On Burglary

Paul Brent Caldwell, 25, of Sonoma, and Danny Ray Pyles, 23, of San Rafael, are to be tried the week of Oct. 24 in Marin Superior Court on charges of robbery and conspiracy.

They are accused of being two of four persons who robbed a 79-year-old invalid in his San Rafael home on July 11.

Police said they went to the home of Ralph D. Hoy on the pretext of needing television repair service which he conducts in his home.

Police said the assailants held a toy gun at Hoy's head and took his wallet containing $300.

A 13-year-old boy believed to be one of the four was turned over to juvenile authorities and another man is still sought by police.

Woman Charged In Fairfax Check Case

A Lagunitas woman arrested Wednesday in Fairfax was charged yesterday in Marin Municipal Court with three felony counts of possessing checks with intent to defraud.

Cathleen Vedder, 29, was to return to court today to enter pleas to the charge that she cashed $192 in forged checks at the Cala Market.

Homeowners Nab Suspect In Break-In

A 24-year-old man who reportedly had tried to break into a house trailer parked in front of a Terra Linda residence early this morning was captured and held by the homeowner and his son.

Sheriff's deputies said they were called to the Gerald R. Kerby residence at 1020 Las Gallinas Avenue shortly after midnight.

Kerby told the officers he had gone outside after his wife was awakened by the sound of broken glass. He said he found the front window of his trailer broken and Jacobs outside.

Jacobs was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of attempted burglary as well as possessing narcotics paraphernalia after officers found he had a plastic bag containing a teaspoon, needle and syringe with him. He was held to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Creek sanctuary, home of the near-extinct California condors, was burned yesterday before flames could be diverted, he said.

A wildlife biologist said no nests were burned and that the birds, of which 60 are known to exist, were in no danger, although 15 condors were spotted in the sanctuary some eight miles to 10 miles from the fire. Most of the condors, largest birds of prey in the world, are at a seasonal home in the sothern Sierra Nevada mountains northeast of the sanctuary at this time of year, he said.

The cool air, surging inland from the ocean, brought optimistic predictions from firefighters facing another brush fire to the southeast. That blaze had burned through 3,440 acres in the San Jacinto Mountains in Riverside County by today. But state Division of Forestry spokesmen said they had it 90 per cent contained —ringed by fire lines — and expected full containment today.

A crew of 400 firefighters today contained a 370-acre blaze near the small Butte County town of Pulga and hoped to control the fire by midnight.

The fire has been burning since Wednesday in rugged terrain along the North Fork of the Feather River about 25 miles northeast of Oroville.

Fire Weather Warning In Marin

Marin is in the midst of dangerous fire weather expected to continue through tomorrow, with high winds and temperatures and low humidity, County Fire Chief Richard D. Pedroli warned today.

He asked residents to be extra cautious during the period and said no outdoor fires, including recreational fires, will be permitted.

Temperatures will be in the 90s, with north to northwest winds of 30 to 40 miles an hour. Humidity will be 15 per cent.

OBITUARIES

John W. Glenn, Veteran Golf Player, Dies At 90

Funeral for John W. (Jack) Glenn, past president of the Meadow Club will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Glenn, who was 90, died Wednesday in his San Anselmo home after a long illness.

Glenn, one of Marin's most enthusiastic golfers, continued to play 54 holes of golf each week until a few years ago and shot a hole-in-one on the eighth hole of the Meadow Club when he was 84 years old.

A native of Virginia, he moved to Marin County in 1921. The next year, he founded the Glenn-Rowe Cigarette Vending Co. of San Francisco. Prior to that, he had worked 35 years for the American Cigar Co. He was also a member of the Lakeside Olympic Club in San Francisco.

Entombment will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery. Memorial contributions to charity are preferred.

A native of Elk, California, Smith had lived 42 years in Marin County.

Smith was a San Francisco fireman for 48 years. He retired in 1962 with the rank of battalion chief. He belongedto American Legion Post No. 397, San Francisco, and to the Widows and Orphans Association of the San Francisco Fire Department. He made his home at 60 Walnut Avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Mildred G.; a daughter, Gladys Vroom of San Jose; a son, William P. of Mill Valley; three sisters, Catherine Smith of Fruitvale, Ann Crow of Martinez, and Mary McGuinnis of Oakmont; a brother, John Smith of Santa Rosa, and four grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be said at 9:30 a.m. Monday at Saint Patrick's Church in Larkspur. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Keaton Mortuary in San Rafael.

Burial will be private.

O. W. KAY JR.

Private funeral for Oliver W. Kay Jr. of San Anselmo was held today in San Rafael.

He was born in Nevada and had lived most of his life in Marin County.

Until his retirement in 1963, Kay was vice president and a partner in the food brokerage firm of Cooter, Kay and Stewart in San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Helen; a son, Richard E. of Fremont; a daughter, Carol J. Morey of Sacramento; two brothers, Lloyd W. Smith of Minneapolis, Minn., and Edgar Smith of Independence, Mo.; his mother, Frances B. Mass of Pacific Grove, and seven grandchildren.

Burial was at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Memorial contributions to charity or to the Marin County Humane Society are preferred by the family.

J. H. CRAWLEY

J. Henry Crawley, a 43-year-old resident of Mill Valley, died in a local hospital yesterday after a brief illness. He was 84.

A native of Minneapolis, Minn., he had lived in California for 59 years. Until his retirement 20 years ago he worked as a longshoreman for 52 years. He was a member of ILWU Pensioners' Club of San Francisco, Local 10, and of the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

He is survived by a son, James Crawley Jr., of Corte Madera; five daughters, Julia Welsh of Fairfax, Patricia Hearn of Mill Valley, Eleanor Welsh of Petaluma, Betty Crawley of Mill Valley and Sally Trulson of Mill Valley; a sister, Julie Battson of San Carlos, and six grandchildren.

Funeral will be Monday when a Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. at Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Mill Valley. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetry, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Sunday at the memorial chapel of Russell & Gooch, Mill Valley.

'Striking' Sonoma Inmates Ask Jail Policy Changes

I-J Special Rport

SANTA ROSA – Sonoma County jail officials were to meet with prisoners today to hear complaints about jail policies.

Undersheriff Robert Hayes said many prisoners have been on a hunger strike this week to protest several jail policies. He said specific requests were to be received at the 1 p.m. meeting with inmate leaders and that his office was prepared to negotiate in an effort to settle the dispute.

Prisoners have complained about the quality of food and general health standards, Hayes said. Some prisoners have told attorneys and probation officers that inmate trustees working in the kitchen have not been screened for illness and that some serving time for drug offenses may have hepatitis.

But Hayes said all inmate trustees are screened by the staff physician before being assigned to food service and that all have been reported healthy.

Hayes said prisoners have requested access to telephones at any time they wish and have complained that public defenders are not always available when needed to prepare legal work.

The dispute so far has been very low-key, Hayes said, and he does not expect a recurrence of violence that happened last year when part of the jail was damaged by fire and inmates were temporarily housed at San Quentin prison.

Inmates said that if requests are not met they will send petitions to the Sonoma and Marin boards of supervisors, to Marin and Sonoma judges and to public defenders. Some Marin prisoners are housed at the Santa Rosa jail after sentence.

Hayes said Santa Rosa attorney Robert Y. Bell met with prisoners yesterday to give legal advice on how to proceed if their requests are not satisfied.

Hayes said the hunger strike also was expected to end after today's meeting. He said earlier this week that 36 of the 108 inmates had appeared for meals, but that this morning 87 had reported for breakfast.

Tree Control Proposed In Cotati

The Cotati Planning Commission last night approved a tree odinance requiring use permits for tree removal.

Commission Secretary Donna Olson said the commission made the proposed ordinance more strict and forwarded it to the city council for adoption.

The ordinance requires any person wishing to remove a tree to get a permit approved by the city council. The commission agreed that a penality section should be added for persons who violate the ordinance, but did not recommend a sepcific fine. commission strengthened the ordinance to require that any person wishing to remove a tree because of disease must bring an expert to the city council to attest to the disease.

The ordinance also requires that persons developing open land must replace trees that are removed. The commission relaxed the ordinance somewhat in allowing the replacement trees to be placed in approximate location of the original trees rather than the exact spot.

The commission also approved the application of Morrison Homes to rezone 13 acres at 1040 East Cotati Avenue to single family residential. One small section of the land was rezoned for commercial use and will be the location of model homes.

Sonoma Radio Tower Approved

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Plans for a radio relay tower atop Sonoma Mountain near Petaluma were approved yesterday by the Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments.

Marvin Hansen was granted a use permit for a 40-foot antenna and a small storage shed at 2000 Sonoma Mountain Road. It will serve as a relay site for citizen band radios and will become part of the civil defense system.

Span Board Reserves Fight Ends

A move by San Francisco supervisors to force the Golden Gate Bridge District to keep $10 million in reserve collapsed today.

The policy postion adopted Aug. 14 by the supervisor was vetoed yesterday by San Francisco mayor Joseph L. Alioto. The prime mover of the policy, supervisor John Molinari, today conceded there was no prospect of getting by the mayor's veto, and dropped his campaign for the $10 million reserve.

The policy position had threatened to raise a storm at today's meeting of Bridge District directors. A committee of district directors previously had recommended the reserve be held at $7.5 illion at least until the end of next fiscal year.

The bridge district staff had warned that a $10 million reserve could force either cuts in transit operations next fiscal year or increases in fares and tolls.

Alioto's veto message said the $10 million reserve could interfere with the district's planned ferryboat system.

San Francisco has nine of the 18 votes on the bridge board, thus giving it effective control because it takes 10 votes to approve expenditures.

Reno Skyjacker Gets 30 Years Punishment

RENO, Nev. (UPI) –Robb Heady, 22, was sentenced to 30 years in prison today for hijacking a jetliner here June 2 and holding it for $200,000 ransom.

Heady, a Vietnam veteran and sport parachutist from Reno, pleaded guilty to federal air piracy charges June 30. Sentence was pronounced by Federal Judge Bruce Thompson, who said punishment was apparently the only deterrent to such crimes.

Heady heard the sentence handed down after his father, Howard, and attorneys Keith Lee and Coe Swobe made impassioned pleas for leniency on the basis of the man's good past record.

The father said his son was sent to Vietnam after six months military training and was immediately in combat. He said the war experience changed his son, and he felt there was inadequate rehabilitation when he was discharged and sent home.

He said the boy entered the University of Nevada for law training but had trouble meeting his grades.

He was working as a part-time parking lot attendant when, wearing a pillow case over his head, he approached a United Airlines 727 enroute from New York to San Francisco as it was parked near the terminal.

He held the crew at gunpoint, ordered passengers to get off, and demanded $200.000 and para-chutes. The money was provided by two gambling casinos.

Heady bailed out near Washoe Lake 15 miles south of here. He was arrested the next day as he approached his car which had aroused suspicions of authorities. The money was recovered.

Asked by Thompson if he had anything to say before sentencing, Heady said he was"frustrated in my goals."

Thompson said he would grant probation "without hesitation if this were a normal crime.

"I wonder what would have happened if the first pilot held up would have said 'Forget it' or if the first faced with a ransom demand said 'You can't get it,'" Thompson said. "Perhaps then there would be no such offense as air piracy. But the ransom is paid because of the value placed on the planes and crews.

"Punishment is a deterrent and probably is the only thing that motivates me in imposing the sentence. It is my responsibility to do what I can to deter further offenses," Thompson said.

Woman Hurt In Highway Mishap

A San Rafael woman was injured in an automobile accident at 12:30 a.m. today on Highway 101, north of Tiburon Boulevard, the California Highway Patrol said.

Rita Sue Griffin, 26, of 23 Marquard Avenue, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital after being treated for a fractured pelvis.

Chico Factory Strike Grows

CHICO (UPI)—An additional 180 workers today refused to cross picket lines set up at the Diamond International Co. mill by 270 workers who went on strike in a dispute over the firing of three employes because their hair was too long.

Union officials said the additional workers backing the strike are members of a match workers union local.

Old Vienna Accessible Again; Austrian Food For Mill Valley

Now that Third Street traffic in San Rafael between Irwin and Grand is no longer obstructed by street work, there is less difficulty in gaining access to the popular little Austrian restaurant Old Vienna across from United Market.

Actually there is offstreet parking in front of the restaurant itself for a few cars, or at night you can park in the area across the street or on Grand near Stan's for Sports.

The old saying that you cannot measure the worth of a restaurant by its size holds true here. It's too bad that the Old Vienna doesn't have more tables, and a full house is seating for somewhere between 30 and 40. The menu and service of owners Karl and Edith Klauda could easily support twice that.

But there is only so much room and nothing can be done about it. I don't know what to advise except to peek in the door first. If there's a table and no one is waiting, grab it.

As you would expect from the name, the food is on the Germanic side, though Karl, who cooks it, insists it's Austrian, not German. There is a difference, of course, as you will discover in the wiener-schnitzel or the pork tenderloin and lighter touch. That is Karl's wife, Edith, who does the serving, by the way.

Prices are very reasonable and the Austrian wines are superb.

ON THE SUBJECT of Austrian restaurants, another one to be known as Paprika will open about the middle of next month at 52 Throckmorton Avenue in downtown Mill Valley.

This will be where the little Redwood Restaurant is now, which will close after tomorrow night. Owners Bob Dean, Joeen Arnone and Leon Alvey are giving up their serving of South American and Mexican food. They are considering opening elsewhere in the county, but plans are not completed.

Paprika will be owned and operated by Stephen Wyle and his wife, residents of Mill Valley for the past two years. During the past year or so they have been in Europe where Stephen was general manager of Les Ambassadeurs Club in London.

He is another restaurateur who started in his field at a very early age and has had 27 years experience. For eight years he was supervisor at Trader Vic's in San Francisco.

During the two weeks or so the Throckmorton Avenue restaurant will be closed it will be given a Tirolean decor by the Wyles. When opened it will serve dinner service six days a week from 5 to 10:30 p.m. (closed Tuesdays). The fare will feature Austrian specialties, homemade pastries and bread and wines and beers will be served.

WORK HAS BEEN COMPLETED on the outdoor creekside patio at the Lark Creek Inn in Larkspur and this picturesque area is now being used for lunch groups and for cocktails. It sets off an already carefully planned, colorful dinery and takes advantage of the area's natural endowments.

EDITH KLAUDA
Serves at Old Vienna

It should be a great place to show off a bit of old Marin to your out of town friends.

SUNDAY ENTERTAINING GROUP Dick Saltzman and Co. at Holiday Inn in Terra Linda has a new bass player. He is Steve Swallow, whose line of credits with name bands is several miles long, performed over many years. He has recently moved to Bolinas.

THE SUNDAY live jazz and spaghetti feed at the Executive Club in downtown San Rafael is still going strong trong from 4 to 9 p.m. For $1.50 covering both, it's a good deal.

Since it was started several weeks ago, there have been at least two additional sit-in musicians joining the performance each week. Last week there were three.

THE NEW ALBUM of organ recordings, "Larry Vannucci Plays Music for Teenagers of All Ages," is now out and the most obvious place to acquire one is from Larry himself at San Rafael Joe's where he performs in person at the Baldwin Tuesday through Saturday nights.

So much are they in demand, he occasionally runs out of an evening's supply. But there are not many places you can go and get a sample from the musician himself before buying his recordings.

It is recorded on a larger organ than the one he uses at Joe's — a specially built Rodgers called the Bob Powers Special — an instrument that closely simulates the pipe organ and its theatrical qualities. The record contains 12 of Larry's best known popular playings.

I believe Tom McGruder at the corner of Fourth and Lootens Place also has some of the records at his store.

IT TAKES A FEW CLOUDS in the sky to complete a fine landscape picture and if the prospect of a few showers over the Mendocino coast holds you back from making a trip there, don't let it. At this time of the year a photographer can go wild over the supply of excellent material for his lens.

A recent trip to Noyo River Inn just south of Fort Bragg to visit with former Marinites Gregory and Mary Alyce Seubert showed up this dinery to its best advantage yet. I recommend an early dinner — from 6 to 7 p.m., when the dining room outlook over the Noyo River Yacht basin is particularly inspiring. And you, too, may find a few clouds in the background to give the picture its final touch.

Noyo River Inn has now attained its maturity. The action is smooth and the staff is now well trained. The food brings back recollections of Gregory's Corte Madera service. And indeed the German enchiladas are still among Gregory's best selling entrees.

The menu also features a number of seafoods from the local fishing boats. A new item added is called "Seafood Coquille Noyo." Gregory has also recently added steak and lobster and a "lady's steak" for small meat eaters, along with stuffed shrimp, beef brochettes and fresh trout from a local trout farm.

You're likely to run into someone from Marin anytime you go. Some folks make it here for the weekend; others have second homes to visit.

Again — your best time is early, during the family hours and when the light is good. On Saturday nights there is dancing later to a nice combo — but this is more for the local people who get coast scenery in full measure and want some action with their night out. You can get that here at home.

NOW BACK from his European travels is former San Francisco restaurateur and Greenbreae resident Pietro Pinoni. He reports that he and his wife had their best food in Lisbon. Wines were good, too, but he gives California vintages an edge for their uniformity.

Bird Import Crackdown Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department today imposed a ban on commercial imports of canaries, parakeets, mynahs and other exotic birds to ward off threats of disease to U.S. birds and poultry.

Agriculture officials said there was no means of determining how long the ban would remain in effect.

The prohibition was aimed at preventing carriers of a virus known as Newcastle disease from spreading the infection in the United States.

There was an outbreak of Newcastle disease in Southern California last winter, resulting in the deaths of 3.9 million pet and wild birds, chickens, turkeys and other fowl.

Although the disease can not infect man, agriculture officials said an epidemic could cause shortages of chickens, turkeys and eggs, resulting in higher retail prices.

A series of quarantines, innoculation programs and slaughter campaigns have since been used to check the spread of the disease in the United States.

But the Agriculture Department feared more outbreaks because of the refusal of foreign countries to cooperate with U.S. inspectors. Screening stations were set up overseas to inspect bijs before they were shipped to the United States, but U.S. inspectors were blocked when they tried to check the facilities.

Agriculture officials said the ban on commercial imports of finches, canaries, parakeets, parrots, mynahs and other exotic birds will remain in efect until adequate protective procedures can be developed by exporting countries.

Individuals can bring as many as two caged birds into the United States provided the pets pass stringent tests, including a 30-day quarantine, and have a notarized statement of health.

Ballots Available For Bond Election

Absentee ballots for the San Rafael open space bond election on Sept. 19 are available at the County Elections Department Civic Center, Jerry Russom, co-chairman of the San Rafael Open Space Committee, said today.

He said the next meeting of the campaign is set for 8 p.m. Aug. 30 at San Rafael High School. Precinct maps will be issued at the meeting, he said.

ALIVE AND WELL IN MIAMI

Bob Finch Eyes His Future As A California Candidate

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) —His California supporters will be happy to know that Bob Finch was alive and well in red flared pants, a moddish white shirt with blue polka dot elephants, entertaining home state politicians and newsmen aboard a yacht named "The Free Spirit."

He looked every bid a candidate for governor or the U. S. Senate in 1974.

At the same moment on another yacht in Miami, Gov. Ronald Reagan was hosting a gala party for the likes of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, singer Frank Sinatra, foreign affairs adviser Henry Kissinger and other White House staffers. Finch wasn't invited.

There never has been much love between Reagan and Finch, ever since they took office together in 1967 as Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Finch, 46, plans to return to California after the November election and size up his chances of winning either a Senate or gubernatorial race in 1974. And one of his problems could be Reagan, who also is eyeing a Senate race.

Would the politically moderate Finch run against conservative Reagan in a Republican primary? "But I wouldn't rule it out."

Finch has many other political problems, however.

Although he outpolled even Reagan in 1967, Finch has been away from California for nearly four years, first as HEW secretary and now as a Presidential counselor. There is an old political adage about "out of sight, out of mind." Private polls reflect this, showing that Finch's name recognition has slowly decreased.

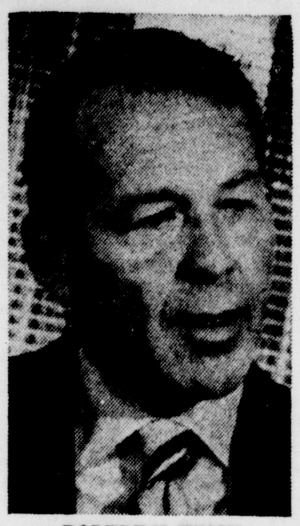
That was a main reason Finch took advantage of the yacht party—hosted by White House communications director Herbert Klein of San Diego—to touch base with several score Californians.

Another political problem is that Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston is regarded, says Finch, as "certainly formidable." And he is rnning for reelection in 1974.

And in the gubernatorial race, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, controller Houston I. Flournoy and Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke are unofficially prancing around the starting gate.

So Finch really hasn't decided just what to do in 1974, if anything.

"After January," he said,



ROBERT H. FINCH
May face Reagan

"I'll look at both (Governor and Senate) very seriously. We'll take some polls and travel around the state and try to make an early decision. I'm inclined to be pretty dispassionate and objective about it."

"A third possibility," Finch said, is to wait until 1976 and challenge Democrat Sen. John V. Tunney. "He might be easier to knock off than Cranston," Finch said, pegging the odds on this course at "less than 50-50."

It was just four years ago that Finch was offered the Vice Presidency by his longtime friend and political mentor, Richard M. Nixon. Finch turned it down and Spiro T. Agnew took it.

Does Finch have any regrets? "No, I don't," he said firmly. "I feel very strongly about that, because I have no interest — have never had—in the Presidency. And I say that as someone who probably knows that office as well as anybody.

"I'd like to stay in California politics."

Finch, who has been in the "Political Game," as he calls it, for 26 years—as long as Nixon—will campaign in more than 30 states for the President this fall.

Then he will move into a Spanish-style home in San Marino, teach a political science seminar at his alma mater, Occidental, practice law "and try to make some money. I've been on short rations for the last few years."

San Rafael Car Thefts Reported

Two cars were stolen in San Rafael, police reported yesterday.

A 1964 Cadillac owned by Orville L. Lymburner of 107 J Street, San Rafael, was taken between 7:15 a.m. and 10 p.m. Wednesday from the city parking lot at Third and Hetherton Streets, according to police.

Planning Commission Reschedules Meeting

The San Anselmo Planning Commission has canceled a meeting originally set for Monday on a proposed building moratorium and will meet instead at 8 p.m. Thursday in city hall, commission chairman Duane C. Ragan said today.

He said that the citizens advisory committees on housing and open space would meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Robson House, 327 Crescent Road, as scheduled.

Court Test Stalls Busing In Detroit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)— The school year in the Detroit area will open without massive, cross-district busing of students as previously ordered.

The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday took under advisement an appeal against an order by U.S. District Judge Stephen Roth to bus pupils between Detroit's largely black schools and 52 predominantly white suburban school districts.

"It will not be possible to issue a decision before the opening of school," Chief Judge Harry Phillips said after hearing more than three hours of arguments. School opens Sept. 6.

The Justice Department intervened in the case, saying the recent legislation that busing for the purposes of integration could not go into effect until court appeals were exhausted applied to the Detroit case. President Nixon signed the legislation, an amendment to the Higher Education Act.

Attorneys for suburban school districts argued that no finding of segregation had been made in the suburban districts and therefore those districts should not be made a part an intergration plan for Detroit.

Michigan Court Ends Total Abortion Ban

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)— Improved medical techniques have made abortion a relatively safe operation, so Michigan's 126-year-old abortion law allows a licensed physician to perform the operation in an accredited hospital, the state Court of Appeals ruled Thursday.

In a 2-1 decision the court said that a doctor could perform an abortion under those conditions on any consenting woman during the first three months of her pregnancy.

It specifically rejected the contention of most antiabortion forces that the statute was designed to protect the right of the unborn child or the fetus.

The court said the 1846 law was drafted solely for the protection of the mother in an era when abortion was an unsafe medical procedure often resulting in the woman's death.

"Not only has modern medical science made a therapeutic abortion reasonably safe, but it would now appear that it is safer for a woman to have a hospital therapeutic abortion during the first trimester than to bear a child," the court said.

"Faced with this evidence, we are forced to conclude that the intended purpose of (the abortion law) is no longer existent as it applies to licensed physicians in a proper medical setting. There is no longer a sufficient state interest to justify continued prosecution of licensed physicians for the mere act of artificially inducing a miscarriage of an unquickened fetus."

Reaction to the unexpected ruling ranged from joy among advocates of a liberalized abortion law to a vow to continue the fight against such operations by antiabortion forces.

The ruling grew out of two separate abortion cases, one involving a Bay County doctor and the other an Oakland County layman who were convicted of performing illegal abortions.

The conviction of Dr. Robert S. Nixon was upheld because he performed the abortion in his office while the conviction of Samuel Bricker was upheld because he is not a licensed physician.

London's Crime Rate Increases

LONDON (UPI) — Serious crime in London has reached its highest peak, Scotland Yard said today.

Provisional figures released by the yard for the first six months of this year show crimes of violence—assault, robbery, wounding—especially on the increase. Figures for rape have risen by half.

The figures put the crime total for January-June, 1972, at 7.8 per cent higher than for last year's equivalant period. The June figure of 35,163 indictable crimes is the highest ever recorded for one month and over 2,000 above the previous highest monthly total—for December, 1972.

While crime is soaring, the rate of detection is also up. Police working with the same manpower as they did for the first half of last year, have arrested 3,377 more personss for all crimes.

The figures showed there had also been a marked increase in shoplifting and fraud but a decrease in the number of homicides.

West's First Black Head Of University Will Face Trouble

SACRAMENTO (AP) — James G. Bond, the first black named to head a large university in the West, will find racial troubles in his own backyard. But he says militants will have to learn that great social changes often take time.

"I think my own minority background will aid me in being sensitive to the needs of people-particularly those like the minorities that have suffered," the round-faced, 48-year-old psychologist said this week at his first news conference since being named head of Sacramento State University last week.

But Bond - who hears many stale jokes about his name being the same as the hero of the Ian Fleming spy novels - was not specific when asked how he'll deal with racial problems.

Last November the 17,500-student, tree-lined campus in the flat, largely rural Sacramento Valley, was thrown into a frenzy over the appearance of a speaker blacks labeled as a racist.

JAMES G. BOND

The school's dean of students, Norman Better, said the incident would have been soon forgotten on many of the other 18 campuses in the state university and college system - not to be confused with the nine-campus University of California system. But charges and counter-charges followed the Shockley incident and emotions were high on all sides, he said with the incident still much in the minds of many students and faculty members.

"We are usually a very quiet campus," said Better, "but this issue has remained with us long after it happened."

Bond, who was a vice president of the Bowling Green campus of Ohio State University, was appointed last week to succeed Dr. Bernard L. Hyink who is returning to teaching.

The Shockley speech might have turned out better if it had been set up in a debate fashion, Bond said, adding, "When you have a controversial figure on campus, you should have both sides presented. I don't care who the speaker is."

Asked how he will deal with militants who press for higher minority admissions quotes, Bond says he backs away from quota system of any kind because that "puts us in the pattern we worked long to get out of." Currently some 800 students at the college are black.

To the students who want change immediately, Bond cautions: "Everyone wants these problems solved yesterday. But it may take a generation to get some of these changes."

A native of Lorain, Ohio, Bond and his wife have three children ranging from 13 to 20 years old.

Strikes Record For New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—A record number of nearly 7 million working days were lost in the New York metropolitan area last year because of strikes, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reported Thursday.

BLS Regional Director Herbert Bienstock said the lost days in 1971 eclipsed the previous high of 4.7 million in 1968, the year of the prolonged New York City teachers' strike.

More than half of the man-days lost last year resulted from a strike by 50,000 New York telephone workers, Bienstock said.

11 Hurt As Support Structures On A New Freeway Collapses

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Eleven persons were injured Thursday night when support structures for a new freeway collapsed and trapped motorists under tons of huge steel beams and debris.

The California Highway Patrol said two persons, both believed to be highway workers, were critically injured when the beams and other debris crashed to the highway below.

"I couldn't even see the cars that were buried. I could hear the people screaming," said Ed Williams, who was driving home from work and narrowly escaped being crushed when the structures fell.

Larry Stitt, state resident engineer on the bridge project, said workmen were removing heavy beams in preparation for the opening of the bridge, which will carry U.S. 50 traffic.

He said when the beams were removed support gave way and produced a "dominoe effect."

A CHP officer at the scene said "when one support began to move the whole thing fell over like an erector set of a kid."

Traffic was moving in one lane each direction as workmen were removing the support structures.

Bill Miller, a spokesman for the sheriff's department, said the bridge itself did not collapse but the support beams "weighing at least a 1,000 pounds each crushed a truck and what looked like two cars."

Traffic Tragedy Grips Holland

BREDA, The Netherlands (UPI)—Dozens of cars, trucks and tankers crashed today on the fog-shrouded Breda-Rotterdam motorway in what police called Holland's most serious traffic tragedy.

They said at least 16 persons were killed and 30 injured. Five trucks or tankers and several cars burned.

More than 30 ambulances took victims to hospitals.

The collision occured on both directions of a four-lane highway which had a separation barrier in the middle.

Canadian Official Reports China Trip Altered Views

CANTON, China (UPI)— Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flew home today at the end of a nine-day, 2,000 mile tour of China which he said "changed my view of the whole world."

"I think it is quite impossible to come to China without seeing the world in a different perspective as a result," Sharp said in an interview before he left for the neighboring British crown colony of Hong Kong and his flight home. "It has changed my view of the whole world."

Sharp, the first Canadian foreign minister to visit the Peoples Republic of China, met Premier Chou En-lai, Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei, visited five cities and two communes and opened the $3 million dollar Canadian Trade Fair in Peking, the biggest ever held in China.

Although Peking has not in the past put great emphasis on international trade and has stressed rather internal self reliance, trade sources feel part of China's recent efforts at more open diplomacy foreshadow a considerable leap forward in international trade. It is estimated that last year China's total international trade reached a record high of $4,700,000.

Reporters noted in a tour of the Canadian trade fair that almost one half of the 200-odd exhibitors represented Canadian subsidaries of U.S. companies, although all but one of the exhibits, a Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. copier, were actually made in Canada. From that point of view the Fair provided the first opportunity for the Chinese to see American as well as Canadian goods in such profusion at first hand.

Sharp said he believes China's new effort to expand foreign trade "differs from any previous economic development program of any other major country. It is based on agriculture. It is not an attempt to industrialize China but an attempt to raise the living standards, beginning with food, followed by clothing and the other necessities of life, and finally heavy industry."

Sharp admitted he had come to China prepared to meet "The inscrutable Chinese." That is not what I encountered," He said. "I found a frankness which was comparable to that shown in talks with other friendly countries and this was very reassuring. I was very pleased and satisfied with the results of my visit."

"The spectacle of so many hundreds of millions of people at work in an area the size of China, after having lostcontact over a period of years, is a rather startling phenomenon," Sharp said. "Social experiment going on, you see every square foot of land being cultivated. You see the rivalry between the two great Communist powers. All of these things—seen at first hand—affect your ideas about world affairs and the probable course of events."

Seaplane Landing Ramp Plea Denied

The Marin County Environmental Protection Committee, which previously had approved a platform, ramp and pier, denied the request this time around. The committee did approve repair of a storm damaged rock.

The earlier approval had been appealed by neighbors and conservationists and the decision was reversed by the county planning commission and board of supervisors, the latter acting in O'Keefe's absence. O'Keefe, later told the board he had failed to show up because he'd mixed up his dates and was told he could apply again to the enviornmental committee.

Committee members told neighbors and conservationists yesterday that it was acting only on construction of the platform, not on O'Keefe's right to use a seaplane.

The committee than ruled that since he could use his beach or yard for landing there wasn't sufficient need to justify a platform.

The Marin County Environmental Protection Committee also:

PIER EXTENSION — Continued until Sept. 14 a request from Peter D. Whitney to add 48 feet to a pier on his property in Tomales Bay near Chicken Ranch Beach. The committee said it needed criteria to establish guidelines for the minimum necessary for "practical navigability," and would study the issue.

HOUSE CONSTRUCTION — Denied a request by Arthur Bostow to build a four-bedroom house on his property on the eastern shore of Tomales Bay on the grounds that the site was frozen by a pending lawsuit against the county filed by Whitney.

DREDGING — Approved a request from Peter Lind of Western Dock Enterprises to dredge 90,000 cubic yards of earth from Black John Slough near Marin County Airport in Novato. The favorable ruling came over objections from the environmental control division of the county health department on the grounds that it increases the likelihood of water pollution.

CATTLE FENCE — Approved a request from Joseph Brazill to build a 60-linear-foot fence near Tom's Point in Tomales Bay to keep cattle from leaving pasturelands during low tide. The committee granted approval on the conditions that a pedestrian access route be continued and that a wooden fence be constructed instead of a proposed barbed wire one.

Mosquito Control

NEWARK, Del. (UPI) — King-sized model airplanes are being used at the University of Delaware to find safer and more accurate methods of spraying for mosquitos.

Campaign Coffees: A New Twist?

Campaign coffees, a traditional staple of Marin politics, apparently will get a new look this fall in the Second Supervisorial District.

Instead of the usual round of coffees at which each candidate ends up addressing small crowds largely already backing the candidate, joint coffees may be held as well.

Incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. made the proposal to his challenger, Barbara Boxer, saying "proper scheduling could transform an ordinary coffee into an exciting open debate." He suggested they appear jointly "at all coffees."

Arrigoni said he was certain that Mrs. Boxer agreed such joint coffees "would be educational for the voters — especially those who attended your primary campaign coffees and were offered information which could bring chaos to Marin County."

Arrigoni's letter, however, did not define "proper scheduling."

Mrs. Boxer, praising the idea, wrote Arrigoni she will appear at any coffee "you can arra nge." She told the supervisor she was "pleased that your attitude toward open debate has changed, since during the primary you failed to appear at two well-attended candidates nights, left one hour early from another, and flatly refused to participate in three other debates arranged by Dr. (William Filante."

Anti-Rabies Campaign

Federal Rules, Blood Bank Cleanup Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Friday moved to bring all blood collection centers — which collects 8 million pints of human blood a year for medical use — under federal control for the first time.

Dr. Charles C. Edwards, commissioner of food and drugs, said the control would help screen out contaminated blood —the cause of 1,500 to 3,000 deaths a year from infectious hepatitis alone in patients who receive transfusions.

Edwards said the proposed regulations also would guard against "exploitation" of blood donors, some of whom sell their blood to commercial blood banks.

The two-pronged program announced by Edwards would require federal registration and inspection of up to 5,000 blood collection facilities not now operating under federal license. It would require federal licensing of about 200 centers that collect and process plasma as a source of blood products.

Currently, only about 530 blood banks operate under federal license —all of them major facilities shipping blood in interstate commerce and supplying about 85 per cent of the whole blood collected across the country.

The other 15 per cent is collected by about 4,000 blood banks operating solely within a single state under widely varying local laws. Many of them subscribe to standards of such groups as the American Red Cross and the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB).

"This is not to say that all intrastate blood is unsafe or poorly regulated," Edwards said in his prepared statement at a news conference. "It is not!... But these voluntary programs lack adequate enforcement authority to stop intrastate collection and distribution of substandard blood."

Edwards and Dr. Harry M. Meyer Jr., director of the FDA's Bureau of Biologics which has responsibility for blood and its products, said the organization did not see the proposed plan as "being in conflict with the goals" of organizations concerned with blood quality and safety.

But Dr. Robert D. Langdell, president-elect of the AABB, did not agree. He said later the AABB had not been consulted about the proposals and that the regulation of blood banks in particular came as a "major surprise."

"We have been in inspection and accreditation for 20 years and have a certain amount of expertise," he told reporters. "I don't think that we ought to be regulated out of existence."

Highway 101 Road Work In Progress

Projects in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect flow of traffic Monday were announced today by the State Division of Highways.

Sections of freeway involved are:

1. Richardson Bay Bridge and one-quarter mile south, two inside southbound lanes closed between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. for paving.

2. Near Kastania Road, south of Petaluma, outside southbound lane closed between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. for filling area under freeway.

3. At Atherton Avenue in Novato, a temporary signal light will begin operating weekdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for about a month to permit hauling of dirt across the roadway. No left turns will be permitted from the freeway onto Atherton while the signal is operative.

Fiasco On Banners For County Fair

Is Marin's county fair a commercial enterprise subject to a city ordinance which forbids "windblown devices, such as banners, posters, pennants, ribbons, streamers, strings of light bulbs, spinners, balloons or other inflated objects" as advertising signs?

San Rafael city officials, including His Honor the Mayor, seem to think it is. And county supervisors didn't even argue with them.

However, Marcelle McCoy, county fair manager, believes (as we do) that the fair is nonprofit and cultural, and that therefore its banners are specifically exempt from the sign ordinance.

THE BANNERS we're talking about are those hung from electric light poles along Fourth Street in downtown San Rafael, advertising the county fair which starts next Thursday on the Civic Center grounds (also in San Rafael).

The city says the county must take down the banners.

The county supervisors have agreed to do so, if the contractor who hung them can be found.

The whole thing is a comedy of errors which reflects no credit on either city or county officialdom.

THE COMEDY started, we're told, when Fair Manager McCoy called City Mgr. James H. McCown to ask permission to hang "flags" from utility poles for the county fair.

The city manager apparently heard the word "flag" and thought immediately (after all, he's a retired Air Force man) of the Stars and Stripes. "You'll have to call the chamber of commerce about that," he said.

The chamber of commerce referred the flag inquiry to the San Rafael Jaycees, who have a project of displaying United States flags for holidays — the flagstaffs being placed in holes provided for them in the Fourth Street sidewalk pavement.

A Jaycee official told Mr. McCoy his organization had no objection, so she told the contractor to go ahead and put up the banners. He did.

THEN CAME a call from City Manager McCown. The banners would have to come down, he said. Such advertising displays are forbidden by San Rafael's 1971 sign ordinance.

Mrs. McCoy called Mayor C. Paul Bettini. Sorry, said the mayor, but the ordinance did indeed prohibit the banners. "We had to turn down the Renaissance Faire and the Greek Festival, too," he apologized.

Mrs. McCoy protested mildly that the county fair scarcely seemed in the same category.

When the supervisors were informed of the fiasco, they were rather apologetic about violating a city ordinance.

NOBODY, apparently, bothered to look up the sign ordinance, with its specific exemption for "temporary display posters without independent structural support" for nonprofit, cultural events.

Our advice to the county: Don't look too hard for that contractor until after the fair ends on Sept. 4.

Our advice to the city: Inform the county you goofed. And next time know what you're doing.

Worst Of Early Schooling: Triumph Of Collectivism

By RUS WALTON

Early schooling — formal education for children starting at age four: is it a way to give kids a head start in life? Or, is it a threat to their mental health and maximum development?

There is a great and growing body of research which demonstrates that early schooling is a threat to the child's well-being; that it can lead to acute anxieties, severe emotional and motivational problems.

Further, there is a wide variety of studies which clearly indicates that early schooling may have a hare-and-tortoise backlash: by the time they reach high school, children who start school at a later age generally excell over those who started earlier.

But perhaps the most devastating effect of early schooling occurs because the young child is taken from the security of the home and the loving care of the family, especially the mother.

THIS IS ONE of the findings of Dr. Raymond Moore, head of the Hewitt Research Center and professor of education at Andrews University, Mich. Dr. Moore and his investigating team base these findings on a coast-to-coast study of early childhood research involving educators, physicians, legislators and scholars.

"Maternal deprivation" due to early schooling is listed by Dr. Moore as the principal reason for childhood maladjustment, motivational loss, deterioration of attitudes, visual and auditory handicaps, and a wide variety of other physiological and behavioral problems.

Yet State Supt. Wilson Riles contends that early schooling would be good for California. "It will be far less costly to spend imaginatively for our very young children than to pay year after year the increasingly high remedial and social costs of school failures and school dropouts." So says Wilson Riles.

Riles is an energetic pusher of early schooling. His five-year plan for phasing early schooling into the public education system would cost at least $359 million annually by the fifth year.

THERE IS A CONSIDERABLE body of evidence to indicate that Riles is pushing in the wrong direction; that early schooling tends to generate — not prevent — mental and personality problems.

Psychiatrists have found that even partial maternal deprivation "brings in its train acute anxiety, excessive need for love, powerful feelings of revenge. . . . and guilt and depression." Further, researchers assert, the earlier a child is forced to go to school the more likely he is to develop a negative attitude toward school in later years.

Dr. Moore, a former teacher, principal and superintendent, is blunt in his appraisal:

"It is difficult to find research support for generalized early schooling as described in tha California (Riles') task force report. In fact, it is difficult to understand — in the face of substantial evidence to the contrary — how educators can justify existing generalized schooling down to ages five and six, or compulsory education below age eight."

PARENTS WHO OPPOSE early schooling are viewed by early school advocates as ignorant or obsessed with a "freedom syndrome" — the disinclination to permit the state to bend their twigs or aim their arrows.

Early school zealots charge such parental obsession deprives children of the care needed for optimum development. Sen. Javob Javits, R-N.Y., is quite candid. He proclaims: "We have recognized that the child is a care of the state."

For whom does Javits speak? Not for me. I believe the child is the care of the parents.

I prefer Dr. Albert Schweitzer's admonition:

"Humanitarianism consists of never sacrificing a human being to a purpose. The great conflict of our times is personality versus collectivism."

Personal Experience With Fluoridation

We were lucky enough, coming from Michigan 11 years ago, to have had one of our children raised to the age of 10 years in an area where the water was fluoridated. At his first checkup in California, the dentist asked where we came from, explaining that he knew with one glance in our boy's mouth that we had come from an area where the water was fluoridated. At age 21 our boy has had only one cavity, primarily attributable to the fact that his first and most important years he had the benefit of fluoridated water.

Our other children, raised in California, have been typical, with many cavities. How can we deny our children this advantage? The voices of doom can say that fluoridation is just the beginning of additives, etc., and that you can purchase fluoride tablets, but it doesn't happen that way even in families that can afford it. The loser — the child!

Incidentally, 23 years later Michigan has still added only fluoride to the water.

Dentist's Fluoridation Arguments Attacked

The simplistic approach taken by M. L. Harris, D. D. S., on Aug. 16 completely boggles my mind. His first fact extolling the virtues of fluoridating our water supply was that there are 95,584,895 persons now being subjected to this invasion of the right to pure drinking water.

An increase in mongoloid births in fluoridated communities has been reported by French researchers. In Sweden, a Nobel Prize scientist persuaded the Diet to make fluoridation illegal. Denmark has banned artificial fluoridation and prohibits the sale of food, drink, or cosmetics to which fluoride has been added. Dr. Harris' reaction to these facts was "Sweden can make its decisions for itself" and as for something "rotten in Denmark, it is probably the teeth that are rotten if they don't have fluoridation" . . .

Canal Street Story Brings Improvements

Several weeks ago you published a report headed something like "Minor Crime Wave on Canal Street." No doubt you had complaints from some who have a financial reason for their desire to hide the fact that crimes are committed in San Rafael as well as from the local and peninsula based representatives of the numerous absentee apartment house owners.

There is another side to that story. I have lived in an apartment at 260 Canal Street since April 1, 1966, and feel that I do know something about it. Quite a number of the tenants in the 60 apartments were greatly pleased with what they considered your excellent and very necessary coverage. At least six different tenants acting on their own impulse clipped the item from the Independent-Journal and mailed it to the Sunnyvale-based management firm who represent the shy owners. Most included a few well-chosen comments on the management.

The results were immediate and very gratifying and they are continuing. All maintenance and security has been tightened up and there are frequent inspections of the property by the Sunnyvale people.

I expect to spend many more years at this address and am happy to look forward with confidence to there being years of mutual understanding and respect between the owners, the management and the rent paying tenants. I thank you for your story as it shook us up and we shook others up. After all we do pay the bill.

Legislation Limits Center Eligibility

At the College of Marin, we are certainly sympathetic to the circumstances outlined in the letters to the editor of Aug. 17 by Sharon Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Wik. We, too, wish that our center could be used by all those who wish to come to the college and cannot afford child care.

Regrettably, our policies for admission must be governed by the requirements of the federal legislation (Title IV of the Social Security Act) and state legislation (AB734) under which our proposed children's center is to be funded. Under these acts, 75 per cent of the operating expenses of the Center are met by federal funds; 25 per cent are met locally. Without such support, the annual cost to the local taxpayers would be in excess of $30,000 as opposed to a projected $7,500 if federal funds are applied.

However, by law, these federal funds may only be used to pay the expenses of children whose parents are certified to be welfare recipients, or who meet legally defined criteria as potential welfare recipients.

For so-called non-certified children, expenses must be met entirely by local tax revenue, through student body funds, and through fees assessed to parents. . . The proposal authorized by the Marin County Board of Education and the Marin Community College District Board of Trustees included $2,923 in local tax revenue to allow 70 per cent of the center's children to be non-certified. . .

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

McGovern-Nixon Confrontation Realigning Political Parties

MIAMI BEACH — From everything that happened here at both conventions, it is evident that we are in for a most unusual, untypical, unorthodox presidential election.

How unusual, how untypical? Enough so that politics is not going to be the same this year.

THINGS AS FUNDAMENTAL as these are going to be decided:

1—Whether the Democratic left, as led by Sen. George McGovern, is the wave of the future and will soon become the base of a new national consensus.

2—Whether Richard Nixon can mobilize a clear majority at a political center more liberal and more activist than any Republican President since Theodore Roosevelt.

3—Whether McGovern's special appeal to the millions of newly franchised young people will be offset by Nixon's support among Democrats.

4—Whether the often-predicted, never-forthcoming realignment within the two parties — basically liberal versus conservative — is now at hand.

THIS IS ENOUGH to make the election a political watershed. The signs thus far are that it will be.

It is already clear that both presidential nominees are marking out new political and ideological ground for themselves.

McGovern is rejecting the traditional political center of the Democratic Party on the premise that the Humphreys, the Meanys, the Muskies and the Jacksons no lOnger reflect the thinking of the majority of the voters.

Nixon, as is evidenced by the whole thrust of the Republican platform, is rejecting the traditional political center of the Republican Party on the premise that he can no longer deal effectively with the nation's problems without moving to the left of his own party.

These are factors capable of creating a large cross-flow of voters between the major parties this year which will become more evident as the campaign proceeds.

THIS REALIGNMENT is already taking place at the top. Nixon and McGovern each point the way and beckon to a new coalition of voters to come with them.

The most striking evidence is that Nixon is nearer to the policies of Presidents Truman, Kennedy and Johnson than McGovern.

Truman created NATO as a shield for the security of Western Europe; Nixon is intent upon preserving it.

Kennedy, in his famous American University speech, called for rethinking U.S. foreign policy with respect to Russia and China; Nixon carried it forward.

Nixon turned to wage-price controls to fight inflation, accepted huge budget deficits to stimulate employment, and supported a guaranteed family income to replace the old welfare system.

AS NIXON MOVED away from the traditional Republican center, McGovern has moved away from the traditional Democratic center.

I am not presenting Nixon's policies as better than McGovern's. I am simply saying that together they are bringing signs of a considerable switch in party alignment this year. Two separate surveys, Gallup and Daniel Yankelovich, find that from 30 per cent to 40 per cent of Democratic voters are moving to Nixon's side.

What is happening is that on the basis of more liberal policies the President is in the process of building a new Republican majority out of Democratic voters McGovern is apparently losing.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Pat Nixon Shows America The Advantages Of Ladyhood

MIAMI BEACH — This will be resented in female chauvinist circles, but: I like Pat Nixon better than I do Germaine Greer, and I like Jill Ruckelshaus better than I do Betty Friedan, and I like these braless Republican girls who seem to take showers every day better than I liked those braless Women's Libbers who were so numerous here last month, and who seemed not to.

Mrs. Nixon is everything Women's Lib stands against. Wife of an apprentice lawyer, Navy wife, politician's wife for 26 years now. Wife, wife, wife. Since she and her husband honeymooned in Mexico, she has never been out in public in any role other than that of Mrs. Richard Nixon. Even the President's admirers will concede that has been a difficult one, considering the constant campaigning and occasional bitter defeats in his career. What his nonadmirers would think of it boggles the vocabulary.

She is, her press agents say, the most widely traveled First Lady in history. She has gone to Peru to look at an earthquake, to Peking and Moscow with her husband, and in Africa she was decorated with the Grand Cordon in the Most Venerable Order of Knighthood of the Pioneers of the Republic of Liberia. She has pushed volunteer work at home, and taken serious interest in improving the White House.

BUT SHE IS NOT Eleanor Roosevelt, and it is doubtful that the photograph of her wearing an African costume somewhere near the Gulf of Guinea will last in the pictorial history books as the one has of Mrs. Roosevelt rubbing noses with a dark-complected lady during her wartime travels.

She is not Jackie Kenndy, and she is not Lady Bird Johnson, and she is not Abigail McCarthy or Eleanor McGovern or Muriel Humphrey, although she and Mrs. Humphrey probably match up closest.

When she came to town Sunday, the lady reporters who covered her thought it mattered that she wore a long-sleeved pink-and-white print dress. What she said when she saw all the Nixonettes in red, white and blue costumes was that she was deeply touched because 3,000 youngsters reportedly had paid their way here to help at the convention. "That's the winning spirit," she said. Nobody expected her to add the aside that they paid their own way because they could quite well afford to, and she didn't.

On arrival and at the women candidates' breakfast the next morning, at the Pennsylvania caucus, the Indiana-Connecticut-Vermont-Rhode Island caucus, the tribute to Ike, the cocktail party for Mr. Agnew and up to the "tribute to the First Lady" at the convention hall, she could be relied on to do exactly what was expected of her. The occasion on which she has ever embarrassed her husband or anybody else, or when she even dropped an accidental hell or damn in public, escapes the memory.

And it comes as a nice relief, in these days of Shirley MacLaine in politics. Shirley is as ingenious in finding ways to use That Word as S/Sgt. Harry Sinclair used to be back at Quantico 20 years ago.

LEST THIS tone poem lead you to think I have gone soft in the head or heart or someplace, please note the hard political fact that a lot of voters out there are making the same contrast. Despite what looks at times like glassy-eyed fatigue, and despite what must be a constant sense of having done it all before, Mr. Nixon's wife has contributed a lot of points for her husband in these 26 years of politics.

That her existing purely as an auxiliary of her man could be productive nevertheless has to infuriate the fem-lib girls, who were not as a group devoted to the welfare of the Republician Party anyhow. That this convention gave brief shrift to most articles of their faith, for example omitting any abortion plank from the platform, cannot be said to disillusion them because they had no illusions to start with.

Yet the long-range cause of women's rights, including that of abortion on demand, may have been served better by events here than by the marching, shouting and television talking of months past. This time, women at home saw one of the brightest, most attractive wives of the Establishment — Mrs. William Ruckelshaus — making their case before the platform committee.

When someone with her class comes out front for what used to be a radical idea, it moves much closer to common acceptance than when its most noticeable champions are also militant advocates of free love or lesbianism. And when someone like Mrs. Nixon makes a lifelong decision that she can be most effective by being most wifelike in the old-fashioned sense, there is a message there, too — Germaine, Gloria, Betty, Ti-Grace, Shirley, Jane and the other girls notwithstanding.

COUNTY COMMENT

Cost Of Maintaining Brasilia: $3,359,095 This Fiscal Year

You probably will like to know whether or when I received the balanced transportation report that I told you of ordering from the Marin County planners.

It came in the mail one week after I ordered it, but too late to change the copy for last week which I had prepared and filed hours before. I will tell you about it further on. But first this:

WHENEVER TV Channel 4 is tuned in, there appears at many of the station breaks clear across the tube the long stretch of roof-line and building of Brasilia.

As we all have "a piece of the Rock" this was built on hilltops and the open space of beautiful peaceful grazing land that was violated. I have thought from time to time that I would do some checking as to the cost of maintenance which will be with us from here on out.

These are the "numbers." They can be found in the budget under the heading of "General Property Management (Maintenance)." For the years 1970—'71—'72 and budgeted for fiscal '73 the price tag is $3,732,328. Of this, 90 per cent is applicable to the buildings and grounds of Brasilia. This figure is $3,359,095. To this of course must be added the years that the courthouse was being used. It would have been hard to unscramble and allocate the proper amount to the above.

This dollar cost will probably increase as time goes on. As a matter of fact, the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation was all set to go with more and more beautification, but being election year they so startled and scared the throne room bunch that they are probably not over it yet.

ANENT THE BALANCED transportion report: I mailed it on Thursday. They received it on Friday. The girl who handles such things works two days a week and came back to work on Tuesday —didn't get to my letter until Wednesday. The most beautiful production was mailed to me and it arrived Thursday. So there!

The report is truly a thing of beauty — a work of graphic art — a fine promotional job. The cover, a lovely coffee-cream color, encloses about 96 pages of rich cream-colored art paper — nice heavy stock.

The first page is a letter from Werner von Gundell, the director. It was dated June 8. He states that, "Phase III is scheduled to begin in July and will be aimed at implementing the recommendations made by this report."

The next four pages are devoted to credits, such as are seen on the TV screen. These pages are all done with carefully shaded paneling. The next page is a table of contents, nicely grouped with separate headings, and the next page is devoted to list of figures and list of tables.

These pages all have Roman numerals from i to xii and cover "Summary — Recommendation — Findings and Conclusions." The following page is covered with an artist's whimsical drawing of the Golden Gate Bridge, with these conversational balloons: "But think how bad this would be without that bus," and "Tell me, dear, how do they get all these other cars into that one other lane to go home at night?" Then, "There goes that balanced transportation man!@!%★" This drawing would seem to be a planner's contribution to the cartoons of the day. It shows the bridge loaded with cars and buses with the exception of one lane that is open with just two cars — one is being driven by "@#!%•"

What was that oldtime depression word?

Hearing Set In $23,000 Grand Theft

The Tiburon man accused of stealing $28,000 in cash from a Napa restaurateur in Tiburon has pleaded innocent to charges of burglary and grand theft.

A preliminary hearing for William Andrew Stephen Hodge, 34, who is being represented by the public defender, has been set for next Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Hodge surrendered to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in Indianapolis, Ind., reportedly after an unsuccessful attempt to leave the country.

He is charged with stealing a briefcase containing $28,000 in cash from Lee Carbone's room at the Tiburon Lodge. Hodge had reportedly spent the evening of Aug. 3 wining and dining with Carbone and his wife in Tiburon.

Hodge also faces a federal charge in Indiana, where he is accused of arranging to have an Ohio warehouse burned down in order to collect insurance benefits.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By JAY GOODWIN

Five Years' Grace — Plus One; But Nonconforming Signs Remain

More than six years ago, the Mill Valley City Council passed a sign ordinance which spelled out the maximum size and height of commercial signs in the city.

The ordinance was designed to preserve the beauty of Mill Valley's few commercial avenues by prohibiting large or garish signs.

As could be expected, store owners were not delighted to learn that their expensive signs had just become illegal. Accordingly, the city council gave merchants with signs that were too large, too high or too ugly five years to take them down.That was back in 1966.

One year ago, the five-year grace period expired, but, according to Planning Director Tom W. Newton, not one nonconforming sign was removed.

ONE QUICK DRIVE down Miller Avenue reveals an illegal old washing machine perched high atop a self-service laundromat, a neon sign for a bar hanging illegally out over the sidewalk, and an enormous sign for a drug store.

These signs are flagrantly violating the sign ordinance, but Newton says they're only the most obvious abuses.

In fact, he guesses that 90 per cent of the businesses in town have one or more sins that are prohibited under the ordinance.

TALK WITH MOST merchants and they'll tell you that bigger signs mean bigger profits.

Not true, says Newton.

"Naturally, merchants have to have signs to attract attention to their business," said the planning director. "But, as soon as one guy puts up a bigger sign, his competitor will also put up a new sign. So neither of them is better off."

Three months ago, Newton sent an old list of 14 merchants with illegal signs to the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce. He asked for the chamber's help in seeking voluntary cooperation from these merchants. To date, says Newton, only one merchant has bothered to inquire about the ordinance and not one illegal sing has been taken down.

Illegal signs clearly detract from the beauty of Mill Valley, but in the absence of any enforcement policy from the city council, it appears the signs are here to stay.

Napa Firm Applies To Install New Berm

Basalt Rock Co. Inc. of Napa has applied to the Army Corps of Engineers to install an earth berm on marshland along the shoreline of San Rafael Bay along San Pedro Road from the Basalt quarry to McNear Co. access road.

Anyone wanting to protest should do so in writing, in triplicate, to the Corps of Engineers at 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco before Sept. 11.

Girl Sentenced For Passing Bad Checks

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court has placed Janet Lynn Wise, 21, of San Francisco, on probation for three years and ordered her to make restitution for bad checks she passed in San Rafael stores last October and December.

He also sentenced her to jail for 60 days but stayed the sentence until she completes a drug abuse program in San Diego.

$160 Calculator Reported Stolen

A calculator valued at $160 was taken between 12:30 and 12:45 p.m. Wednesday from Redwood Typewriter Co. at 637 Fourth Street, San Rafael, owner Steven A. Broden reported yesterday to San Rafael police.

Two young men were shopping in the store at the time and the calculator was missing when they left, according to police reports. One was described as a young white male, six feet tall, weighing about 180 pounds, with long brown hair and full mustache. He was wearing a tan shirt and blue pants.

The other was a young white male about five feet nine inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds, with regular length brown hair, clean shaven and wearing light clothing.

CIRCUS REVIEW

By PAT PERRY

OAKLAND — From the daring young men on the flying trapeze to the roaring tigers, from the silly, silly clowns to the super-dazzle spectacles, it was just about everything a circus should be.

It was, in fact, almost too much circus.

For sure, if just one more sequin-soaked elephant had plodded into the ring last night, the roof of the Coliseum would have exploded and Oakland would have been knee-deep in spangles this morning.

The 102nd edition of Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus opened last night at the Oakland Coliseum, and in lavish fashion manages to combine the splendor and spectacle that modern audiences demand with the simple fun that circus means.

But without exception they loved the clowns. It's one of the great myths of the 20th Century that everyone loves a clown and it's even mythier to suppose that all children love a clown. Too often they've been stuck with tired old men lamely slugging each other with wet mops.

The clowns in this circus are bright and fresh and funny and had the blase Bay Area youngsters in stitches from start to finish. Products of producer Irvin Feld's college of clowns, they're undoubtedly going to revive an honorable profession.

When the troupe of clowns tumble one by one from a tiny car in a hilarious variety of getups it's as if all the gentle fun of childhood pops out before your very eyes. Clowns in cow suits, clowns with funny feet and faces, clowns with silly hats and daft walks, clowns with watermelons that squirt water, clowns upon clowns.

There are so many acts and so many thrills it's difficult to single out many. My own children particularly loved the fat animals, simply because they looked so lovable.

Fat animals?

Well. . .there's the Jacki Althoff performing bears. With their short fat hairy legs and dainty feet they looked for all the world like plump matrons as they waddled around the ring on their hind legs.

And there were a couple of obese lions who had difficulty raising a convincing roar, let alone opening their mouths wide enough to let Spaniard Pablo Noel shove his head inside.

They didn't, however, go much for the traditional whipcracking that accompanied the lion and tiger acts. Today's generation of children isn't prepared to accept any indication of subjugation of animals by man, and it's a pity that this token of former cruelty is allowed to remain.

The spectacle numbers are splendidly costumed and when the cast floats upwards in a dazzle of lights it really is like being pitched into a kaleidoscope.

Undoubtedly the best act is the Flying Gaonos of Mexico. When they strode into the ring in long velvet cloaks, muscles and spangles rippling, we all roared our approval.

And as they soared from trapeze to trapeze with all the perfect timing of a space launch, it was infinitely reassuring to know that the lifestyle of the circus, at least, hasn't changed.

The circus continues at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena until Tuesday, then from Wednesday through Sept. 4 will be at the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Girl Flees Iron Curtain; Red Tape Pulls Her Back

GORIZIA, Italy (UPI) — Elizabeth, 11, made it safely across the border from Yugoslavia, in the hazardous manner of thousands of refugees from Communist lands since World War II.

But for Elizabeth, there will be no new life in the West.

Authorities sent Elizabeth back to Yugoslavia because, they ruled, she is too young to request political asylum.

Authorities said they could remember no case like it before.

The girl was not identified except as Elizabeth, a Polish citizen who slipped across the border late Wednesday into this city of 43,000 located directly on the border with Yugoslavia.

Border police said the girl's stepmother was stopped and arrested by Yugoslav authorities as she tried to cross the border. But Elizabeth made it alone.

Her uncle, who police said fled to Switzerland a year ago, met Elizabeth at the border.

Police said he tried to keep the girl with him by claiming he was her father. But they said his documents proved otherwise.

So under an agreement between Italy and Yugoslavia on political refugees, the girl was turned over to Yugoslav officials.

There, police reported, Elizabeth rejoined her stepmother — behind bars.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and Parents' Magazine. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"101 Dalmations" — Clever takeoff on the British detective yarns with dogs playing the important parts. Fifteen puppies are dognapped and the hunt and chase is suspenseful.

"Snoopy Come Home" — Based on Charles Schulz's beloved Peanut comic strip this narrative follows Snoopy's adventures when he leaves his friends at the beach to visit his former owner, Lila, who is in the hospital. Eight new songs.

"What's Up, Doc?" — Set in San Francisco, treated with a sophisticated touch, this fast moving slapstick, nutty comedy revolves around a mixup with four identical suitcases.

"Who Says You Can't Ride a Rainbow!" — Jack Klugman plays the part of a man who adores children and loves animals. He builds a small animal farm in the middle of an industrial district in New York City. There is great opposition but the solution will delight the entire family.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"The Candidate" — A taut drama about an idealistic young lawyer running for the office of senator. The acting, direction and photography combine to give film realistic texture and adds impact to the vital theme of political disillusionment.

BORDERLINE

"Cabaret" — Set in Berlin in 1930 a zestful young American girl singer at a cabaret proclaims herself the symbol of "divine decadence". Her love affairs lead to a pregnancy where paternity is unsure. Well made film but sophisticated and bawdy with foul language and sex.

"Chato's Land" — Excellent cast, fine photography make film memorable. A posse seeking the Indian Chato after he kills the sheriff, capture and rape his woman. Chato is now the pursuer and in his way gets his revenge. Gruesome violence.

"Duck, You Suckers" — Italian made western set during the Mexican Revolution of 1913. An illiterate but shrewd Mexican peasant and a dynamite-tossing Irish revolutionary team up to rob a bank only to discover political prisoners instead of money in the vaults and they become heroes. Very violent.

"Frenzy" — Hitchcock brings us a necktie murderer who is a sexual psychopath and on the loose in London. Very suspenseful with nudity and cursing.

"Harold and Maude" — A heavy handed film about an old woman who teaches a young man how to enjoy life. For those who can laugh at funerals, old age, suicide and mental disturbance.

"Play It Again, Sam" — In this sex comedy, Woody Allen is a dedicated movie buff and as a writer lives in a fantasy world where he gets advice from his favorite actor, Humphrey Bogart, on how to solve his sex problems.

ADULTS ONLY

"Clockwork Orange" — This film hypothesizes a state where violence is the rule that can only be broken by means of Pavlovian conditioning. A London teenage gang that hates anyone different from them roam the streets and rob, rape and terrorize. A very brutal film with sex and nudity.

"Godfather" — Gripping epic gangster film filled with excessive violence. The head of Mafia leads two lives, as a kindly head of a family and then as leader of a mob whose business is killing.

"The Graduate" — A young college graduate returns to his wealthy parents home unsure of what he wants to do with his future. He becomes involved with a married woman and also with her daughter. Nudity and sex.

"Grasshopper" — A restless young woman searching for an ultimate love marries a black ex-flootball hero. Her subsequent decline from Las Vegas show girl to a two-bit hustler complete this soapopera. Language, nudity and sex scenes very strong.

"Play Misty For Me" — A terrifying suspense thriller about a radio disc jockey and an insane fan who pursues him. Many bloody deaths and some sex scenes.

"Prime Cut" — Film explores the underworld operation of the meat packing business that is actually a front for drugs and prostitution. Excessive violence, nudity and cursing.

"Where's Poppa" — A brutally frank, hard hitting black comedy is a relentless attack on momism. A monstrous mother and her long suffering son come to grips over his falling in love. Rape, nudity, many obscenities.

Amtrak Picks Eastern Route

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amtrak has approved passenger service from New York City through New England to Montreal and rejected an alternate route through upstate New York.

Amtrak President Roger Lewis said Thursday that the New England route would generate twice as much revenue as the New York route, about $2.4 million, and the favored route would serve a greater population. The selected corridor would also provide the first Amtrak service for Vermont and New Hampshire.

Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corp., set up by the federal government to run passenger trains.

Capital Selection

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Jefferson City became the state capital of Missouri in 1825, four years after Missouri became a state. It was the sixth city chosen before the capital became permanent. The first seat of government was St. Louis.

A GARAGE TAKES A BEATING

The shingled roof of this garage is all that remains intact at the James M. Hirai residence, 4386 Paradise Drive in Tiburon. It was knocked off its stilts late last night when a sportscar driven by Dr. John H. Ino of 5045 Paradise Drive left the road and struck a crucial support on one corner of the structure. Down the hill went the garage, and the 1972 Chrysler station wagon inside. Mrs. Hirai later told police she thought an earthquake had struck the area. Damage to the garage is estimated at $12,000. The station wagon was only slightly damaged. Dr. Ino's sports car was extensively damaged.

Nixon Joins Battle, Rips McGovern

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)–To judge by the curtain raiser, President Nixon has junked the script that called for him to remain above the battleand plunged into his last campaign relishing the chance to strike out at his foes.

His strategists had passed the word for months that Nixon would not don the politician's hat until Congress adjourns. Being President, they said, was the "best politics" Nixon could play.

But they did not bargain on the President, who does not like to leave the game to chance.

Less than 12 hours after he had delivered his acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention in Miami, Nixon hit the road in search of that "New American Majority."

In a 14-hour, 4,000-mile cross country swing, Nixon had Democratic opponent George McGovern on target constantly, without mentioning his name.

He spoke before the American Legion in Chicago and was applauded loudly when he chastized those – obviously meaning McGovern–who Nixon said would cut the defense budget and relegate America to the position of a "second rate power."

He also has made a major campaign issue out of amnesty for draft dodgers, challenging McGovern's more lenient position.

"I think we have had enough of running down our men who have served their country, rather than deserting it and running off to Canada," he said. "I think we ought to stand up for those who served it."

"He's in great shape," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. And Nixon looked it, speaking mostly off-the-cuff, with eloquence and emotion.

His campaign staff had done their work well, drawing out the crowds at welcoming rallies in San Diego–which Nixon calls his "lucky city" because he never lost it in an election–and on home soil in San Clemente.

Either because he is concerned about the 18-year-old vote or is seeking a landslide, Nixon made his strongest pitch to youth throughout the day.

At his appearance in Utica, Mich. to dedicate the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School, speaking to an all-white, strongly antibusing audience, Nixon invoked memories of his own youth.

With emotion he recalled his father who "only finished the fifth grade."

"He wanted to go to school but his mother died," Nixon said. "They were very poor, and he had to go to work. His greatest desire for his children was for them to get a college education because he only finished the fifth grade."

In San Diego, a town heavily dependent on the Navy, Nixon said his defeat would mean cuts in Navy strength that would make the United States second to the Russians in seapower.

"Please don't ever send a president to the negotiating table as head of the second strongest nation in the world," Nixon said.

A crowd of about 15,000 from the four California cities where Nixon has lived, invited to attend an "old neighbors" rally, turned out for a reception at the Western White House.

Nixon, obviously having enjoyed his first full day on the campaign trail, settled in for a two week stay in his oceanside villa to plan political strategy. He will fly to Hawaii next Thursday for a two-day meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and then return to San Clemente until after Labor Day.

Registration At College Continues

More than 5,500 students already have completed registrations for credit classes this fall, College of Marin announced today.

Registration will continue weekdays through Aug. 31 with one session scheduled for the last day from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in room A of the college center. Students who fail to meet the deadline will be subject to a late registration fee.

Students may add classes to their schedule through Sept. 18. Counselors are available during registration hours, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., for students who need help in planning a study program.

There are no fees to students under 21 or to those enrolled in 10 class hours or more per week.

British Televiewing

LONDON (UPI) — Most British television programs are in color, but most sets still are black and white.

Registration Set Monday

Registration for 100 College of Marin adult education classes starts Monday at 8:30 a.m. at the registrar's office on the Kentfield campus.

For the most popular classes —ceramics, creative needlecrafts, knitting and crocheting — all indications are that very early enrollment is advisable.

In previous years ceramics class entrants have lined up as early as 5 a.m.

A printer delay has caused late mailing of the class schedule booklets to the 12,000 Marin residents who requested them. Additional copies are available through the registrar's office.

Classes start Sept. 11, and mail registrations are accepted.

Bringing Prices Back Into Reach

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

If enough shoppers were determined to bring rocketing food prices back into reach, they could do it by following a few simple rules as they fill up their grocery carts.

Take beef. A nationally known food authority says that if every two weeks Americans were to forego a beef meal that they normally eat and shift to another product, this would quickly reduce demand by 3½ per cent. And the result would almost certainly be lower prices, according to the expert, since a shift of only 3 or 4 per cent can make the difference.

To bring that point home to shoppers, the government has embarked on a consumer persuasion program through a series of television spots, distributed to TV stations. It is the soft sell, the gentle nudge. No one is actually telling the housewife not to buy beef or fruits and vegetables at the peak of their prices.

But it is being suggested that she adopt money-saving practices in her shopping, that she take advantage of sales and buy foods when they are plentiful and lower in price.

In other words that she — you — shop thriftily. That you buy high-priced meat less often and look for less-expensive meats, or cheaper cuts. Or buy poultry instead.

The food industry, as well as the administration, is concerned about the high price of food, and is cooperating with the White House in directing consumer attention, through its advertising, to the day's better buys, to special sales at the meat counter and throughout the store.

Actually, this type of advertising is not very different from the usual sales appeal, except that the emphasis is stronger and more specific.

The industry, also, would like to see prices stabilized because it fears that a continuing upward trend might result in some type of government price controls on food.

The President is reported as "extremely troubled" by rising food prices. And needless to say, this is a sensitive area of the economy in an election year.

In addition to tie-in food advertising, the big food chains will have their home economist emissaries on the road speaking to consumer groups. This is not unusual either. Almost all of the major chains today have shopping advisers to speak to women's groups and, yes, even to men's groups too on shopping techniques.

The food industry has not forgotten the lesson it learned from the housewives' boycotts which spread across the nation in 1966 to protest high prices in the supermarket.

The president of the National Association of Food Chains, Clarence Adamy, recalls that "five years ago my consumer advisory committee was composed of 12 people. Today there are 73 people on that committee."

Evelyn Backer, a home economist for Safeway who covers a number of Eastern states, stresses the importance of price watching. Her suggestion is that housewives not only make out a shopping list in advance, but that they date it and mark the price opposite each item as they put it in the shopping cart.

THE $30,000 BUGAZZI

America's most expensively built luxury car was crafted by a group of young car customizers in Hollywood, who call their firm the California Show Cars Inc. Based on the Continental Mark IV, which costs $10,000 to start with, the Bugazzi undergoes almost a complete transformation. A few of the features: racing type wire wheels; two-layer application of sound-deadening, rust-proofing and fireproofing; imported glove suede upholstery, Italian marble slabs lining the doors and dashboard, a bar built into the rear seat armrest; a restyled body of steel and Gorlon, with functional running boards, and carpeted trunk compartment with chromed hand tools individually packed in vinyl cases. "What Michelangelo did in marble, we do in steel, fiberglass and aluminum," said Paul Rimmeir, president of California Show Cars Inc.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am 35, have adequate savings and life insurance, comfortable salary and company retirement program. I have $16,000 for immediate investment, what stocks would you suggest? — G.W.

A. Certainly with your well-established financial position and at your age you can afford a greater degree of risk than most older investors. Three fast growth stocks which are suitable are: Marion Laboratories, Ponderosa Systems and Tool Research & Engineering.

In fiscal 1972 — ended June 30 — sales gained 3 per cent for Marion Labs (NYSE), while net jumped 27 per cent to 95 cents a share. Company manufactures a line of ethical drugs, first-aid systems, health foods and markets health care products for others. Ponderosa (ASE) operates 88 steak houses and licenses 83 others. Beef is supplied by a wholly owned subsidiary. Revenues rose 49 per cent in the year ended Feb. 25, 1972, and in the May quarter sales moved up 47 per cent, while net income gained 62 per cent. Company is gradually purchasing licensed units, which should accelerate future growth.

Tool Research (NYSE) makes honeycomb materials for the aerospace industry and locks for use by the building trades. A substantial increase in sales and earnings should be reported for the year ended July 31. Compound average five-year growth rates are excellent — 32 per cent for Marion, 52 per cent for Tool Research and 71 per cent for Ponderosa.

Q. I am contemplating buying more shares of Consolidated Investment Trust, a closed-end fund. Keeping in mind that preservation of capital is important to me at this time, is this a wise move? — R.B.

A. In view of your investment needs, this conservative fund is an appropriate choice. The fund's investment goal, gradual growth of principal and income, is achieved through a diversified portfolio of about 50 high-grade growth stocks held over the long term. In 1967, the investment trust changed from a closed-end to open-end fund.

Beauty Salon In San Anselmo To Re-Open Under New Name

Cleva's Beauty Salon at 1501 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo will re-open Sept. 1 under a new name and new ownership.

Lana Kaleys of Mill Valley bought the beauty parlor from Cleva Houser of Fairfax and will call it "Lana's Beauty Salon."

Mrs. Houser said she wants to retire after 20 years in the beauty business. For eleven and one-half years, she was instructor and supervisor at the Marinello School of Beauty Culture in San Rafael. For the past 15 months, she had operated Cleva's Beauty Salon in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Kaleys, the new owner, has about six years of experience. She was beautician at the Tamalpais Retirement Home in Greenbrae. She was a former student of Mrs. Houser and completed a course in high styling from Roy Gackle, style director for the Marinello Systems in San Francisco. Lana Kaleys and her husband, Osvalds Kaleys, were formerly of Larkspur but recently moved to Mill Valley.

PATRICK W. (PAT) WILSON of San Anselmo has been appointed assistant vice president and manager of Western Title Guaranty Company's new Southern Marin office at 328 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Wilson was escrow officer at the company's San Rafael main office until his promotion and was with the firm previously when it ws Marin County Abstract & Title Company.

Susan W. Michaud of Tiburon has been promoted by Western Title to escrow officer and will join Wilson in Mill Valley where she has been in escrow work for the past four years.

Wilson McNear

BRAD McNEAR of The McNear Co. Inc. of San Rafael was elected treasurer of the Masonry Institute, with headquarters in San Francisco.

McNear serves on the board of directors of the Institute as a representative of Northern California Concrete Masonry Association. He will be treasurer until July of 1973.

PRESTIGE AUTO Engineering, a new auto repair firm specializing in Mercedes-Benz, Porsche and other foreign cars, opened this month at 279 Jacoby Street in San Rafael.

Owner of the firm is Vachik Sahakian, who trained in Germany and has been working with European cars for 25 years. He operated a similar service in New York for about seven years before coming to Marin, where he lives in Greenbrae. Sahakian's hobby is flying, and he is also a certified aircraft mechanic.

Duncan Gordon of William Timmer Realtor arranged the lease for Prestige Auto Engineering. The site was formerly occupied by Montessori School.

COMMUNICATIONS ACCOUNTING Promotion of 1703 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, has just opened its second office at 2680 Bayshore Frontage Road in Mountain View.

The San Rafael firm, launched in January, offers bookkeeping and accounting services, design and printing of logos, letterheads, and other specialized forms. It produces promotional material such as new product bulletins, sales brochures and mailing pieces.

A newly added service is financial analysis for any size firm including budgeting, forecasting, cash flow, and other types of specialized analysis. Stephen D. Long, spokesman, said Communications Accounting Promotion is particularly beneficial to a new company which is just getting started in business and needs help in accounting design and control.

JOHN P. GUENZA Jr. of San Rafael has been appointed an assistant vice president in the West Coast municipal bond department of Walston & Co. Inc., San Francisco.

Guenza joined Walston & Co. in 1970, after working for two other brokerage firms.

A NEW OWNER has taken over the Arco service station at 789 Redwood Highway at Alto, near Goodman Building Supply Co.

"Shelter Ridge Arco" is the new name of the service station under Roman Hasinski of Fairfax, who took over last week from John F. Astley. Astley owned the station for about two years.

Hasinski announced that his Shelter Ridge Arco will be open at all times — 24 hours, seven days a week. He has had 18 years of experience in service station, parts stores, and garages.

THE ANNUAL AUTO Show will be held Sunday afternoon at Strawberry Town and Country Village in Alto, from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Proceeds will benefit the Kidney Foundation of Northern California, Marin chapter.

Banda qualified for the finals with recipes for canned pineapple in main dishes and desserts. He is a retired Air Force colonel. Banda is one of five men and 35 women competing for top honors.

FAY POHORILES of San Rafael has joined the San Rafael office residential sales staff of Frank Howard Allen & Co. Realtors. She was formerly an employee of the Hong Kong Bank in San Francisco.

FIVE MARIN AGENTS and one from Petaluma have qualified as members of the 1972 Top Club of New York Life Insurance Company. They are Douglas J. Boswell, Arthur P. Brody, William V. Brody, and Cesare M. Nencini, all of San Rafael; F. Lowell Zellers, Mill Valley; and J. R. Wages, Petaluma.

The Top Club is comprised of New York Life's outstanding agents, and membership is based on 1971-72 sales records.

A Slight Rally By The Glamors

NEW YORK (UPI)—Glamor stocks staged a slight rally but prices on the whole moved lower in moderate trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

Selected glamor issues showed some gain after taking severe losses in stepped up profit-taking Thursday. Stock brokers said a rise in the prime lending rate at a number of major banks led to the market's fall.

There were, however, a number of big losers in the morning session. Among them, Coca-Cola fell 5 3-4 to 140 and Armstrong Corp., off 4 to 34. Armstrong was the most active issue in the first two hours, on a volume of 153,400 shares.

Prices also moved lower on the American Stock Exchange. Champion Home Builders led the list, off 1-2 at 16 5-8 on 40,700 shares.

Steels, motors and chemicals were mixed on the Big Board. Republic Steel added 3-8. Ford and American Motors each lost 1-4. Eastman Kodak recouped some of its recent losses and was up 1 5-8 to feature the chemicals.

Superior Oil dropped 2 points. Natomas added 7-8.

Airlines were mostly lower. In addition to Pan Am, American Airlines lost 1-4, National 3-8 and Flying Tiger was off 1-2.

Rails and aircrafts were mixed. United Aircraft and McDonnell Douglas gained 1-4 while Lockheed eased 1-8.

Rail Debt Refinanced To Avoid Bankruptcy

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Shareholders of the Penn Central Co., the parent firm of the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad, voted overwhelmingly today to refinance a $64 million debt owed to a group of Swiss banks.

The crucial refinancing plan is the basis of the holding company's bid to stay out of bankruptcy.

The plan was approved in an unusual two-day annual meeting held in the ballroom of a hotel here. Some 500 people filled the room Thursday, many of them shouting and screaming their complaints during a stormy five-hour meeting.

However, only about 150 quiet shareholders were on hand today when the vote was announced. The final vote showed 12,123,724 shares for the plan and 1,807,599 against.

Archibald Deb. John, chairman of the company, said the vote "postpones the maturity date of these notes. It means that we don't have to repay them and that's the most important thing."

The company went to the Swiss banksin 1969 for the loan in a desperate bid to save the railroad from financial collapse.

The Swiss banks were anxious for an agreement on the plan, and paid the $160,000 needed so the company could hold the annual meeting.

The shareholders also approved the election of 10 men to the board of directors, including Andrew Allen, a wealthy San Francisco investor who has battled the plan in the courts and at the meeting.

He said his main objection to the plan was that it called for the parent company to put up 35 per cent of the railroad's stock as collateral.

MANOLETE REMEMBERED

Tribute To A Dead Bullfighter

LINARES, Spain (UPI)— Bullfighting fans converged on this sun-scorched Andalusian town today for ceremonies commemorating an event which threw Spain into weeklong mourning 25 years ago —the death of Manolete.

Manolete was the nom de guerre of Manuel Rodriguez whose artistry and somber, brooding personality dominated the bullfighting scene in the forties. Posters of Manolete still sell well in Spain.and his picture sometimes adorns the covers of bullfighting magazines. The death of Manolete is still a theme for folk ballads.

Acts commemorating the fatal goring of Manolete in the Linares bullring Aug. 28, 1947, will highlight the weeklong San Agustin fiesta starting Saturday.

On Tuesday, a Mass will be read for Manolete. Some of Spain's top matadors will appear in a series of bullfights wearing black armbands.

One of them will be veteran Luis Miguel Dominguin who was sharing the card with Manolete on that tragic day 25 years ago.

Many aficionados still think that Dominguin's outstanding performance that day may have goaded a jealous Manolete into taking even greater risks than usual.

Dominguin was then 21 and challenging Manolete for the No. 1 spot in bullfighting. Manolette was 33 with 20 years of bullfighting and had been gored at least a score of times.

The "monstruo" — literally monster but in this sense meaning prodigy — was unlucky with his first bull, winning nothing more than polite applause for an ucinspiring performance.

Then came Dominguin witth a brilliant display of caping and sword work that had the crowd roaring its approval.

Manolette's second bull was a huge black Miura. Spain's most famous breed. It had originally been brought in to be fought by the third matador on the card but for yet unexplained reasons was switched to Manolete in a deal among bullfighters' managers.

The fatal goring occurred in the last second of the fight. As Manolette bent between the bull's horns to sink his sword into its heart, the beast's final reflexes produced a powerful lunge and its right horn ripped open Manolete's femoral artery.

He died at sunrise the next morning.

Hitchhiker Drug Charge Reduced

Felony drug charges against a Sonoma County man who attracted police attention because he was hitchhiking in the street instead of on a curb were reduced yesterday to misdemeanors.

Daniel Lewis Hurst, 27, of El Verano, earlier had been ordered bound over to superior court on charges of possessing hashish and amphetamines. The district attorney's office did not file charges but pressed misdemeanor counts of the same crimes in municipal court.

A request by Hurst that the case be dismissed because of illegal search yesterday was taken under submission by Judge David R. Baty.

Hurst was arrested in May by Sausalito police who stopped to warn him about hitchhiking and discovered an outstanding traffic warrant from San Francisco. Suspected drugs were found in his possession.

Assault Suspect Pleads Insanity

Jerry Amos Smith, 18, of Santa Venetia, who was picked up last week on a bench warrant, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a charge of assaulting a Marin County Sheriff's Deputy with a knife.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Sept. 7 in Marin Municipal Court.

Smith was arrested June 2 by sheriff's deputies who went to his home to quiet a disturbance. The officers said he fended them off with a knife which he threw at one deputy, narrowly missing him.

The two deputies said Smith surrendered only aftr being maced and tear gassed.

TRICK REFUSED

West opened the king of hearts, and South refused the first trick. West continued with the queen of hearts, and East discarded a low diamond. Since there was no particular point in holding up again, South took the ace of hearts.

Declarer could count on winning two top spades, two top clubs and three top diamonds in addition to the trick already won. How could he develop his ninth trick?

There wasn't much chanceof developing a club trick. The six missing clubs would have to divide evenly, and it would also be necessary to keep West out of the lead.

DEPENDS ON WEST

There was a far better chance of developing an additional spade trick. South had to hope that West would have the queen or jack of spades with not more than two small cards in the suit.

Declarer therefore led the seven of spades from his hand and finessed with dummy's eight. East won with the jack of spades and returned the queen of clubs.

CASHES KING

Now South took dummy's ace of spades and entered his own hand with the ace of diamonds to cash the king of spades. Fortunately for South, West had to drop the queen of spades on this trick. Now the ten of spades was good for the ninth trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ J 6 3 2
♥ 9
♦ 8 7 5 3
♣ F J 10 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have only four points in high cards, and your singleton in partner's suit is a liability. If partner had opened with one spade, you would gladly raise to two spades since then your singleton in hearts would be an asset.

College Sets Graduate Exams

Graduate record examinations will be given four times at Sonoma State College in the 1972-73 school year.

The exams are used by many schools in admitting graduate students and by many fellowship programs. The examinations include an apptitude test of general scholastic ability and advanced tests in 19 major fields of study.

Exams will be given on Oct. 28, Jan. 20, April 28 and June 16. Applications for the Oct. 28 test must be submitted by Oct. 3. Scores from that test will be reported to graduate schools in early December.

MARIN ACADEMY

New School, New Outlook

A new private high school will open its doors Sept. 6 on the grounds of the defunct San Rafael Military Academy.

Coeducational Marin Academy (no connection to the former military school) expects 75 students will be enrolled by opening day. And William McCluskey, its headmaster, hopes that number will eventually swell to 300 and include more minority and low income youngsters.

The day school at Fifth and Cottage avenues will seek to give its students "physical and mental challenges they've never had before," according to the genial 43-year-old educator.

"We're looking for the youngster who is talented and turned off by his previous educational experience," he said. "The people who come to Marin Academy don't have to have good grades, just the desire to put forth a pretty decent effort."

McCluskey, who brings 20 years experience in private school education to the post, said the academy will focus on a strong college preparatory curriculum —English, math science, foreign languages, sociology, anthropology and history.

But, in addition, the school will seek to encourage youngsters with strong interest in fields not regularly taught. This will be done through "mini-courses," periods set aside during the year when specialists in various fields work with students in subjects which most interest them, from movie-making to marine biology.

"We're not a way-out school and we're not totally traditional," the headmaster said. "In a way, we're providing a sensible middle ground for the many kids who are not geared to either completely structured or totally freewheeling institutions."

Classes will be small, with a maximum student-teacher ratio of 15 to 1, although most courses will have fewer students. Instruction will be flexible, with individual programs set up for those who need or want them.

On weekends, those at the academy will leave their books behind and have a chance to test their physical prowess in a variety of outings, from backpacking to elementary mountain climbing.

The academy was conceived some time ago by a group of Marin and San Francisco parents who saw the need for a small, private secondary school.

But a lack of available facilities hampered efforts to get the school going until the military academy announced it was closing and its buildings became available. Some of those who participated in the early planning are among the schools' 12 trustees.

WILLIAM McCLUSKEY
"Everyone has a creative bent.

The student body (60 per cent from San Francisco and the rest from Marin) will come from every race and economic level. Full and partial scholarships are still available to those who cannot afford to pay the $2,050 yearly tuition and McCluskey urged interested students who would need financial help to apply soon.

The school's faculty, selected from more than 300 applicants from across the nation, will include seven full-time and five part-time teachers chosen for their "senses of humor, dedication to kids" and ability to "enjoy what they're doing," the headmaster said. Average age is about 31. "I'm the oldest," McCluskey joked.

McCluskey wants to keep in touch with the students and will teach English this fall. In addition he said his door "will always be open" to students who want to see him. "I've never had a secretary to protect me from my students."

The headmaster is a graduate of Wesleyan University in Connecticut where he was captain of the football team and All-New England.

He began his career as the university's assistant football coach, then taught English at Tabor Academy in Massachusetts. He taught at the Northwood School in upper New York, was lower school director at Menlo School on the peninsula and most recently served as headmaster at Park Tudor School in Indianapolis for eight years.

In his last job, McCloskey said, he arrived at Park Tudor to find a "tired old campus, with only 200 students." By the time he left in June, the schools' enrollment had trebled and it had "an excellent new campus."

Everyone has a creative bent; mine is putting schools together," he said.

The headmaster is married and the father of two daughters, Megan, 16, and Katherine, 13, who will attend the academy this fall. His wife, Betsy, will serve as the school librarian.

He is convinced that most people go through life without knowing just what they are capable of accomplishing and wants the academy to be a place where students can find the challlenges needed to bring forth their best efforts.

Other officers are: Mrs. Ernest D. Mendenhall Jr. of Belvedere, vice president; Mrs. Robert E. Hunter Jr. of San Francisco, secretary and Bruce G. Duncan of San Francisco, treasurer.

McCloskey's Wife Seeks Marriage End

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Caroline MdCCloskey, 43, the wife of Vietnam War critic and Republican Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, filed divorce papers Thursday after a 23-year marriage.

The court petition for dissolution cited "irreconcilable differences" and asked for equitable distribution of communal property which includes a home in Virginia, stocks, some rural acreage and a 1929 model "A" Ford.

McCloskey also asked for custody of their two minor children,ohn, 16, and Kathleen, 13.

McCloskey won his party's primary nomination in California's 17th District in June and two days later it was announced that the couple had separated. At the time, McCloskey expressed hope for a reconcilation.

The Congressman and Korean War hero was away from home at least nine months until the New Hampshire primary campaigncg for the Republican presidential nomination in opposition to President Nixon.

During the past week, the reserve marine lieutenant colonel and holder of the Navy Cross carried his battle against Nixon and the Vietnam conflict to the GOP National Convention where he received one nomination vote.

The couple has two children who are no longer minors, Nancy, 21, and Peter, 19.

Burglary Charge Hearing Slated

A preliminary hearing has been set for next Thursday in Marin Municipal Court for two men accused of two counts of burglary in connection with thefts from Sausalito Shops.

Velton James Thomas, 21, and Richard Urruta, 22, both of San Francisco, were arrested Aug. 17. Each was carrying a bag full of objects, including champagne, shirts, a leather coat, jewelry and a beaded dress, Sausalito police said.

Viet First Lady Visiting France

PARIS (UPI)—Mme. Nguyen Van Thieu, wife of the president of South Vietnam, has arrived in Paris with her daughter for what she described as a private visit, Vietnamese sources said today.

Photographers surprised her walking down the Champs Elysees with Mme. Pham Dang Lam, wife of the chief negotiator of the South Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks.

The president's wife will make a pilgrimage to the Roman Catholic shrine at Lourdes, the Vietnamese sources said.

Standard equipment on all new VW Campmobiles for a limited time only.

We're giving away a free set of Coleman camping accessories when you buy a new '72 Volkswagen Campmobile.

The set consists of a camp stove with double burners and a lightweight aluminum stand, a double mantle lantern with a special carrying case, a 3,000 to 5,000 BTU adjustable Catalytic heater, and two long-wearing sleeping bags each padded with 3 pounds of Insul 200 polyester.

The set and the VW Campmobile are a self-contained camping unit.

Fiji Island Cruise By 2 Marin Couples

By MOLLY MARIN

Two Belvedere couples chartered a 50-foot catamaran and cruised the waters around Fiji Island for two weeks earlier this month. The yacht's skipper was a local expert, whose knowledge helped them navigate the reefs.

Dr. and Mrs. William Ferguson began their journey with a visit to Papeete, Tahiti. Dr. Ferguson is an eye specialist, and since there is no eye doctor in Papeete, he has treated a number of members of the Chinese colony, who fly to San Francisco for eye care. At each stop along the way the Fergusons were welcomed and entertained by prominent Chinese residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brash toured Tahiti, Tuamotu and Tongas before meeting the Fergusons in Fiji.

VISITING DR. AND Mrs. Eric Hannah of Mill Valley is Mrs. Hannah's niece, Miss Mary Shaw of Stratford-Upon-Avon, England. Many parties are being given in her honor.

Recently retired from her position as a school meals organizer on the Warwickshire County Council staff, Miss Shaw is an active member of Soroptimist International. She explained that membership in the organizations is by invitation and consists of only one woman in a field who has reached the top of her occupation or profession.

Her particular position involved traveling throughout her territory interviewing and organizing new staff, planning food and equipment for new buildings.

Miss Shaw will return home after Sept. 7.

MRS. ROBERT WATKINS of Belvedere has just returned from Topeka, Kan., where her second grandson, Philip Allen Green, was born in July 30. Her daughter's husband, Dr. Douglas Green, is a resident psychiatrist at the Menninger Clinic there.

THE INTERNATIONAL Eisteddfod at Llangollen, North Wales attracted Jack Du Bois of San Rafael, who stayed in the Welch town for the week-long festivites in mid-summer. Folk singing, dancing, choral and instrumental competitions drew contestants from 33 nations to the gathering. An eisteddfod is the traditional "sitting together" of the bards of Wales, a custom which goes back at least to the seventh century. The International Eisteddfod, which took place for the first time in 1947 was conceived as a Welsh contribution to international peace and goodwill through music.

DR. AND MRS. Sam Mann of Belvedere Lagoon plan a trip to Israel in November and December to visit their daughter, Mrs. Yale Roe (the former Rosalind Mann). She, her husband and four children have recently moved permanently to Jerusalem.

Roe was a vice president of a small independent TV network and manager of a UHF station in Chicago. He plans to produce documentaries for American television and go into the publishing business in Israel.

The Manns will celebrate Chanukah there and then spend a week in London.

Friends from San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Tilin, will be staying in their home during their trip.

A GARDEN RECEPTION Aug. 6 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Madden in Novato honored newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace West. Mrs. West is the former Debra Madden. Mr. and Mrs. David Martinez of Novato are the bridegroom's parents. They were married in Reno, Nev., Aug. 4. Both are graduates of Novato High School. They will live in Fairfax.

Newman Club Ceremony For San Anselmo Couple

The Newman Club Chapel on the campus of the University of California at Davis was the setting for the marriage of Christine Halsing and Edgar Maston, both of San Anselmo, at 2 p.m. Aug. 19.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Laurie Halsing of San Anselmo. Donald Fletcher of San Anselmo was the best man, and Buzz Halsing, of San Anselmo, the bride's brother, was the usher.

The reception was held at the Officers Club at McClellan Air Force Base in Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant J. Halsing of San Anselmo are the bride's parents. Her grandmother is Mrs. Jennie C. Halsing of San Rafael. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Maston of Seattle, Wash.

The bride was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and the University of California at Davis. She did graduate work at the College of Notre Dame at Belmont, and is qualified to be a Montessori teacher.

Edgar was graduated from Marin Catholic High School, and attended the College of Marin before beginning his service in the army. He was a helicopter pilot in Viet Nam, and is now stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash. He is a warrant officer.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will live in Tacoma, Wash.

Engagement Ends

FOUR RETIRED men play a game of shuffleboard to while away the hours. In some circles shuffleboard is synonymous with retirement and old age, but there is potential for a lot more activity among the nation's 20 million retired men and women, the authorities say.

Making Life Meaningful For Retired Americans

The retired American has been put on a separate cake of ice. As he drifts away from the main floe—armed with a Florida brochure and some Golden Age literature on crocheting for his wife—45,000 hours of leisure yawn ahead of him before he reaches 70. Here is the first of two articles on making retirement meaningful.

By MELVIN MADDOCKS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

He is a small man with a guarded face — a man, you would guess, with secrets from himself. But at the moment they seem to be spilling out in the desperate, chopping gestures of his calloused hands as he tries to explain: "One afternoon I was working. I had a job. For 48 years I had a job. I woke up the next morning and I had nothing to do. Just nothing."

She is a round, jolly woman: Mom. But the "children" are gone, long gone. All that remains: their wedding pictures squeezed on her tiny bureau and a box of candy or a long-distance phone call on Mother's Day. "Sometimes," she says with her sunniest smile, "I ask myself: 'Is the rest of my life going to be like this?' " She jerks her thumb toward her trailer window where three shuffleboard trophies sit on a shelf. "But when I feel useless I go play cards with someone or bake a cake. If you're busy you have that much less time to think about sad things."

Here are the faces and voices of retired America. Not necessarily typical — how can one typify 20-million Americans? — but representative. These 20 million individuals — one out of 10 in their country — constitute what one social worker has called "the least glamorous minority." "Least glamorous" and virtually invisible.

"Nonactive" Americans, to use the horrible euphemism of census takers, are a marginal group. In one of the most hypocritical of social ceremonies, they are congratulated upon their retirement and then forgotten. "You're free at last to do whatever you wish," goes the gold-watch syndrome. "Lucky you! Isn't this what you always wanted? Isn't this what we all want?"

THE RETIRED American is a person whom we put on a separate cake of ice. And as he or she drifts away from the main floe, what we do mostly is wave.

The libraries are crammed with cheerful books for the retired — Golden Years Lit. The "nonactive" American is told of gerontological Gardens of Eden —trailer parks in Florida, "sun cities" in Arizona — where he or she can live elegantly on social security. An appendix is included, suggesting hobbies with the doomed air of a hostess proposing party games: wood carving, crocheting. And for those with a few extra bills to meet, there's the chapter on "How to Raise Bees for Fun and Profit."

If retirement is an unmitigated blessing, why don't top executives rush into the happy state they urge upon their employees? It would be equally wrong to pretend it is an unmitigated curse. Retirement, at the least, is a serious challenge which has suffered from cruelly benign neglect.

What are the problems which must be resolved, both by the individual and by society, if retirement is to be "creative"?

First of all, money. The most conservative economists estimate that 25 per cent of "nonactive" Americans subsist below the poverty level. Probably the estimate should run closer to 40 per cent.

"It is tautological to speak of 'the old and the poor,' " one observer has remarked. Firtz Crumb, director of the Boston Center for Older Americans, states flatly: "The real discrimination in this country is not racial but economic." Yet the sociologists who make a business of kibitzing on government spending estimate that 10 dollars go to children for every dollar that goes to those classified as "aging."

THE 20 per cent increase in social security benefits must help. So will H.R. 15657, an act "to strengthen and improve" the Older Americans Act of 1965. The bill now before Congress authorizes appropriations of $100 million, $200 million, and $300 million for the fiscal years of 1973, 1974, and 1975. It remains to be seen whether the appropriations get approved. But this is more money than has been even talked about previously.

Let us assume — as we really can't —that a financial floor is being built for the "nonactive" American, putting him if not in the class of a retired electrical worker or a retired major-league baseball player, at least above the poverty level. What major obstacle to "creative" retirement remains once the nagging preconditions for living — a decent meal, an adequate place to sleep — are met?

The answer is a sense of purpose. We are back with the rocking chair and the shelf full of shuffleboard trophies.

There are optimists about retirement. For instance, Gordon F. Streib and Clement J. Schneider of the Cornell Study of Occupational Retirement. Their surveys suggest that there are certain gloomy myths about retirement. They find no dramatic evidence of "sudden deterioration of psychological health" due to retirement, and despite a 50 per cent drop in income, two-thirds of those surveyed judged their retirement incomes to be "enough."

But nobody can minimize the ultimate problems of the retired American — that he has been given a "roleless role." From nursery school on, he is taught the value of a "productive" life, the ideal of the "work-ethic." Then at 60 or 65 he is cut off from participation —from the "activity" he has depended upon for self-esteem. Retired women, Streib and Schneider believe, may feel an even sharper sense of uselessness than men and they live longer.

Retirement, Hemingway said, was the most loathesome word in the language. To lose what shaped the center of one's identity was, he decided, a kind of annihilation.

AGENCIES IN the public and private sectors can give the retired man or woman hot lunches and bingo games. They can supply counseling services and even hot-line referrals to each other's counseling services. They can run errands. They can, in Mr. Crumb's phrase, "provide energy supplementation." What they cannot provide is a sense of purpose in a society that tends to define "doing something" as "having a job" and "not having a job" as "being nothing."

The retired American has the dubious privilege of being the last practicing member of the free-enterprise system. He must, if he is to become anything, be self-made.

There are, to be sure, prospects. A new federal and state program is being sponsored: RSVP, standing for Retired Senior Volunteer Program. Some 75,000 Senior Volunteers are expected to be operating within a year. In 68 projects supervised by the Administration on Aging, 4,000 "nonactive" Americans are participating in the Foster Grandparents Program. The "grandparents" work four hours a day at the minimum wage, offering "care and affection to institutionalized and other needy children."

These are admirable attempts to supply what have been described as "meaningful noncompetitive roles." But the invention and development of the retirement pattern still rests primarily with the individual, with precedents that border on parody. Three case histories illustrate the approved stereotypes for braving out retirement.

George, the overage swinger: George fulfills the prophesy of the gold-watch ceremony. Ask him how he likes retirement, and he will slap you on the back and shout in your near ear that he's "having a ball." You are expected to tell him he looks 10 years younger — or else.

Franklin, the overachiever emeritus: Franklin moves past his juniors on the run, announcing as he goes that he's "twice as busy as ever before." He travels compulsively. When home, he pushes his hobbies at the pace of a growth industry. His specialty is toy furniture, agonizingly detailed, sculptured from frozen-juice cans.

To be liberated from most jobs should be liberation. But only if alternatives to common everyday work are taken as seriously as work itself. As things stand, leisure is the predicament as well as the opportunity of the future. We can no longer pretend that "creative" retirement is a spontaneous act. The solutions that individuals and society find for "creative" retirement today are likely to shape the very quality of that future.

Next: Leisure can be a time of promise.

By WALTER LOGAN

PARIS (UPI) — The odd thing about travel these days is that men flying first class are apt to turn up in blue jeans and sports shirts while those back in tourist class may be wearing coats and ties and suffering for their formality.

In the olden days when world travel was an unheard of luxury for the masses the gentry would set forth aboard an ocean liner laden with bags, trunks, valises and likely as not a covey of servants to wrestle them up and down the gangplanks.

They put on their tweedy country clothes for early morning strolls around the deck, maybe something more formal later for afternoon tea on the verandah deck and then at night into their tuxedos, or in extreme cases, white tie and tails.

Now it's the age of the jet and every Tom, Dick and Harry is flying the Atlantic with his wife and children unless they are teen-age children. If they are teen-agers they are offon some cut rate flight of their own in some of the scruffiest clothes this side of New York's East Village, which is even scruffier than Greenwich Village.

ON A FLIGHT to Athens the other day there was sitting in first class a couple from Canada. Both were wearing grimy canvas sneakers with no socks and others were wearing blue jeans. He was wearing a sports shirt with fake shoulder padding like a rugby player.

As they dabbled with the Iranian caviar and Strasbourg pate de foie gras between sips of vintage champagne they discussed at length a forthcoming cruise through the Greek Islands and whether the crew had got their yacht safely across the Atlantic in time to meet them at Piraeus.

And then there was a French couple taking off for New York. She was in a pants suit, of course, but he was something else: A pair of white goatskin loafers with Gucci's red and green surcingle and gold snaffle hit, faded denim pants and a white silk shirt unbuttoned to the navel in best European tradition.

YOU COULD tell the Americans at any airport you visited — all the men were wearing knits. Not all of them were wearing coats and ties but all of them were wearing knits. There were knit suits, knit slacks and knit shirts, mostly in loud colors.

You could also pick out Americans at various beach resorts around the Mediterranean. The women wore bikinis and were undistinguishable from Europeans. But the American men all wore boxer-type swimming trunks to the knees while the European men wore practically nothing and ran about kicking soccer balls with the side of their feet.

Another difference could be noticed in the cities. American men ventured forth in seersucker and cord suits in light colors while the Europeans wore dark colors and narrow ties. Elderly German men at a few posh luxury hotels always seemed to wear one-inch-wide black ties.

THE WEARING of the sports shirt was another characteristic that set apart the Americans. The ones seen on Americans were mostly long sleeved and in reasonably bright printed florals, gingham checks and Hawaiian prints. Europeans ran to thin, printed silk-like shirts, dark, and open as always as far as they would open.

And a footnote on the wearing of knits for travel: They were comfortable and you could sleep in them easily if you can sleep aboard planes. They did not wrinkle, they did not crease. They looked perfectly fresh the next day after being slept in and then hung on a hanger. But they were hot when the weather was hot and they were always getting little snags, snipped off with a pair of scissors from time to time while one wondered if the whole thing would unravel. It did not.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Sick Woman's Selfish Husband Should Be Told To Shape Up

DEAR HELEN:

I have been sick and unable to work for the past two months. Tim, my husband, resents this. Says I'm "putting on," though I have never complained, and was always strong and healthy before. The doctor says I was "running on nerves" and when I got "mono," and didn't take care of myself, it went into complications. I must have mostly bed rest. Can't go back to my job all next winter, probably.

Tim doesn't hold a steady job long. I used to think it was the fault of his various bosses, but he couldn't always be so unlucky. Since I've been sick, he pays no attention to me. I try to keep the house clean. He's gone a lot.

But now he's taken to bringing women home. I hear them whispering, but when he looks into my room, I pretend sleep. And then I hear ice tinkling in glasses, and many other things.

The next morning he's more downgrading than ever, as if he's daring me to challenge him. And of course I don't dare, because I can't be left alone right now. Besides, I keep thinking when I'm well again, he'll change, and I remember that I once loved him very much.

Should I just close my ears and eyes and be miserable, or — WHAT?

DEAR WHAT:

No.

Open your eyes and see what misery lies ahead if "blind hope" keeps you married to this selfish taker.

You'll recover much sooner if you eliminate the big worry in your life, so tell him to shape up fast or you'll call a lawyer.

As for being left alone while you're ill: surely a friend will help out. If not, the Health and Welfare Agency will give you temporary aid. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

When I went shopping a few days ago, I must have caught a thread in my hem, as it unraveled all the way across the back.

I was unaware of how terrible I looked as I walked around several department stores, into a lunchroom, etc., for several hours.

Helen, not one person had the courtesy to tell me my hem was hanging.

Don't you think women should be kind enough to help out a sister? A little whisper, the loan of a pin, or perhaps a needle and thread, would have saved me fromappearing ridiculous.

DEAR MRS. S:

... Perhaps because they never know whether they'll be resented as fault-finding busybodies, or appreciated as helpers.

Think now, would you walk up to a stranger and say, "Pardon me, ma'am, but your hem is hanging?" That takes the kind of courage more people should have. — H.

P.S. Read on:

DEAR HELEN:

If you notice than an unknown, well-dressed businessman has forgotten something importantas he's walking down a crowded street, is it proper to ease up and tell him, "Sir, your fly is open"? — RELUCTANT BUT CONCERNED

DEAR R BUT C:

If you're a man, yes. If you're "Ms." or "Mrs. RBC," still probably yes, unless you are easily embarrassed.

But if you are a definite "Miss," you'd better wait for a male to bail out his fellow man. — H.

Boxer Foreman Is Changed Man

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

"Who am I to tell a bird he can't fly?" shrugged the magnificently built shoulders of young George Foreman, 1968 Olympic gold medal winner and No. 2 contender for the world's heavyweight boxing title.

"I used to go around advising youngsters to 'do this' or 'don't do that,' but not any more.. Like, who am I?" he asks modestly. "My vitality and strength is God-given. But it's borrowed — it has to be paid back."

George is No. 5 in a lineup of seven brothers and sisters. Born in Texas, he says of his childhood "We were po — not poor —but po." His mother and father were divorced, but the family remained close-knit. His mothers and brothers still playfully refer to George as Monkey.

Foreman was introduced to boxing (he had played football before dropping out of school) while living at one of the Job Corps centers, which he had joined after seeing a television spot in which Johnny Unitas and Jim Brown, two of his idols, endorsed the corps. "That was enough for me."

SOON GEORGE found himself under the wing of boxing coach Doc Broadus and shortly thereafter he was the recipient of an Olympic gold medal.

In 1969, George turned pro. To date, he's had 37 professional fights and won them all. "According to the WBA, Muhammad Ali is the No. 1 contender to champ Joe Frazier. But I consider myself to be the the No. 1 contender," Foreman said.

Currently training for a September bout with Oscar Bonavena, George is on a rigorous schedule. "It's up at 6, four miles of roadwork, sparring contact and so on. Every morning I grab my legs and see if they've gone yet," he laughs and mockingly grabs for his legs. "Without these — nothing."

There is mental as well as physical preparation for each fight. "I keep my atmosphere hungry. It helps keep me on my toes. If things are too plush, too comfortable, you relax and get a false sense of strength.

"I sacrifice to be where I am," admits George. "But it's a good sacrifice. No co'tin (courting) and runnin' the streets. I was, still am, an alcoholic. But I haven't had any booze in over six years. I kind of enjoyed drinking, too."

He smiles and shrugs his shoulders again. "I also stopped smoking. That was harder than lettin' go of the booze. No I eat balanced meals and drink lots of orange juice for my vitamin C. And I feel great."

George's young wife, vivacious Adrianne, is expecting their first child in November. "I've already 'revelationed' a boy," said Foreman. "I'd like lots of kids — as many as the Lord will bless us with."

IS BOXING a brutal sport?

"I don't consider it brutal in any way. All my pain in life has come outside the ring. I've never been hurt bad because I'm always properly conditioned.

"Boxing is a job. Before the bout, you practice and plan your strategy. After the bell rings, you do your job. You execute the plan. Your opponent does the same thing. There is no personal animosity or brutality involved."

Foreman is considered a boxer-puncher, a moving hitter. "In the words of Ali (I think), 'He who hits and runs away, lives to hit another day.' "

His goal of the moment is to be the heavyweight champion of the world. "Then I'd probably retire.It's simply a matter of setting a goal, reaching it and going on to the next thing."

When not being the boxer, Foreman enjoys roughhousing with his four dogs. If time and opportunity permit, he can be found "admiring" at a local dog obedience show. "Someday I'll raise dogs," he said.

At 23, he is a wealthy man and, thanks to boxing, has gained status and respect.

While talking about being a winner, George reflects seriously, "I've always thought that peculiar. You know, the way everyone flocks around the winner — the press, well-wishers and the like all jam into his dressing room. But the winner doesn't need anything at that very moment. He's got it. I always go to the loser's dressing room."

Continuing on his present course, George Foreman will be a winner, inside or outside the ring.

Shoes In Rome

All the women in Rome — old young, rich and poor — are wearing the big-soled platform shoes, reports Vogue magazine. The shoes feature four-inch cork soles or six-inch heels, making the women tower over the men.

Newlywed Johnsons Honeymoon At Tahoe

The marriage service was at 2 p.m. at Montgomery Chapel at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Del Krelle of San Anselmo and the granddaughter of Mrs. William Fred Krelle of San Anselmo. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson of Glendale are the parents of the bridegroom.

Sandra is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and California State University, San Jose. She is employed as personnel director at Zerox Data Systems in El Segundo.

The bridegroom graduated from Glendale High School and University of the Pacific in Stockton. He gained a master's degree at the University of California at Los Angeles. He is employed as a certified public accountant with the Haskins-Sells accounting firm in Los Angeles.

After a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, the newlyweds will live in Manhattan Beach.

CLASSIC TARTAN SUIT

The traditional tartan suit by Pendleton acquires new flexibility with the 1972 layered look. Teamed with it are a wool pebble-knit sleeveless low-necked sweater and a white nylon shirt. It can be both casual and business-like.

McGovern Adviser Hits Nixon Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Abram Chayes, international adviser to Sen. George S. McGovern, says President Nixon has met more failures than successes in foreign policy. Chayes is a professor of international law at Harvard University.

He said "the administration has intensified the senseless orgy of death and destruction in Indochina in spite of its promise to end our military involvement in that war." Speaking at a news conference Thursday, he also said Nixon has "ignored the views of our friends in Europe and Japan, and been reluctant to respond to Israel's needs...."

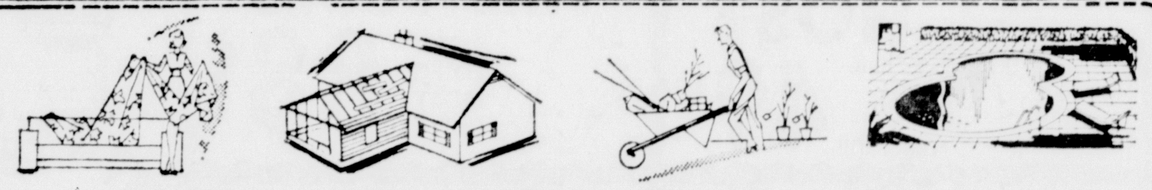
Extortion Try Lands Jail Term

Charles Michael Dobson, 21, of Tiburon, has been placed on probation for five years and sent tg jail for four months for attempting to extort $1,000 from a Corte Madera father.

Dobson, who was sentenced by Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, in Marin Superior Court, was given credit for the time he has already spent in jail.

He had earlier admitted that he had told Jack W. Foster, a partner in a landscape maintenance firm, the he would give him information about his missing daughter.

The two men worked out a written deal before Foster's daughter returned home, saying she had never heard of Dobson.



Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

It's fair-time again in Marin County. The annual Marin County Fair will open at the new Civic Center fairgrounds on Thursday, and then continue through Labor Day. And to salute that colorful event, tomorrow's edition of your Independent-Journal Marin Magazine will devote much of its space to special stories about the fair — its participants and its programs. There will be, for example, a story about a San Rafael organic gardener who harvested a bumper crop of fair ribbons last year, and who now shares some of her gardening secrets with I-J readers.

A big part of the fair, of course, is good things to eat. And Marin County's Fair provides a wide range of delicacies. There are, for instance, the tasty Greek treats prepared by the women of the Greek Orthodox Church of Marin for their food booth. If reading about their project makes you hungry, these talented women offer you the recipes from which you can turn out your own Greek pastries. Then, too, no fair could be complete without entertainment. And part of the 1972 Marin Fair will be a Dixieland jazz band, also covered in tomorrow's magazine.

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1972 23

WOMAN BUS DRIVER

By FRANK FARRARA

Thrilled with her new job as a bus driver for the Golden Gate Bridge District, she had put her songwriting talents to creating "The LBJ" song to the tune of "Alley Cat."

The district had two women drivers before her, but they had worked for the Greyhound Bus Co. before and simply switched when the district took over the system, she said.

What prompted a woman who had been a bookkeeper, cashier and motel manager, to seek a job as a bus driver? "It's something about the fact that I love to drive," Mrs. DeLaney commented. "I drove 13,078 miles in three months in a camper," she said.

Mrs. DeLaney, who started drivingbus runs last week, said some passengers were "bug-eyed," but "I have never had an unkind word."

Aware that she is a "novelty," she prepared a humorous card showing passenger reaction to a woman bus driver, with comments such as "Oh, dear. Maybe I should wait for the next bus."

She said she realized she had gained the confidence of her riders on an evening run to Petaluma and Santa Rosa when she "looked up and at least half were sound asleep."

Mrs. DeLaney said she had applied to the district in January for a job as a toll taker on the Golden Gate Bridge, butwasn't hired. Shortly afterward, "I just went down and asked them if it was possible to get a job as a bus driver."

She had been a part-time bus driver for the Novato Unified School Distirct, and later a substitute driver for the Dixie School District.

"I fell in love with the little kids," Mrs.DeLaney said. "One little girl cried on the last day, when she learned I wasn't going to drive anymore."

She said it was very important for the reporter to tell "her dear little friends that Sam won't be riding the school bus, and maybe they will soon be riding the big bus. They nicknamed me 'Sam,'" she explained.

"The other day at a stop, three young boys got on and got so excited that 'Sam' was driving," she said. Their former school bus driver, in green slacks, white blouse, green tie at the wheel of the "big bus was a surprise," she recalled.

Mrs. DeLaney said she was hired without discrimination because of age, sex, height or weight. "All they were interested in was did I want the job, need the job and was I qualified."

She said many years ago when she wanted to operate a street car in San Diego, and "you had to be five feet, four. I was only five, three-and-a-half, so I got a pair of riding boots, and I passed and got the job. That was another case of wanting to do something."

"My number then was 1112, now it's 258," she said.

Mrs. DeLaney said she wanted to be a song writer, and her first song "Living, Laughing, Loving" was recorded by the Spade Cooley band under the leadership of Smoky Rogers.

A native of Illinois, she moved to Southern California at the age of 16 with her family, then lived in Salinas, Santa Rosa "in the early 1940s" and back to Southern California.

She came to Novato six years ago and is married to Charles DeLaney, a retired electrical contractor, whom she had met while working for the health and pension department of Electrical Contractors Union in Los Angeles.

Corte Madera Rec Schedule Goes To Council

The Corte Madera Parks and Recreation Commission has unanimously recommended that the town council approve a schedule of recreation classes running from September through next June.

Commission secretary Nancy Urbani said the 21 classes include four new ones — bicycling, grooming and modeling, cake decorating and a dance "sampler" course of four folk-dancing styles.

The commission was told Wednesday night that the town's preschool play group no longer will be free, she said. Parents now will have to pay $9 for 12 meetings. The group meets at the drop-in center oppostite the town's recreation center on Mondays and Fridays.

There will be only four nonfree programs offered by the town this year — the Corte Madera Swingers (seniors), the after-school program and teen center at Granada and San Clemente Schools, and the drop-in center.

Gate Span Survey Outlines Typical Midday Bus Patron

The most typical midday passenger on Golden Gate Bridge District buses is a woman, 17 to 24 years old, riding between home and work, according to a district survey.

Jerome Kuykendall, the district's transportation developer, reported the results of the survey made between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Aug. 3 throughout Marin. Its purpose was to find out what sort of passengers have been attracted to the service "so we can figure out a way to get to those we aren't getting to," he said.

About 2,000 of the questionnaires were distributed by bus drivers, but only 218 were returned either to the drivers or by mail. The percentage response from similar questionnaires given morning and evening commuters was three times better than from the midday passengers, Kuykendall said.

Another midday survey will be made in about one month to verify the findings of the first one.

The survey found that 33 per cent of the respondents were using the service between home and work, 22 per cent to make visits elsewhere, 14 per cent to get to school, 9 per cent for shopping, 2 per cent for medical trips, 2 per cent for recreation and 19 per cent for other reasons.

A slight majority, 54 per cent, said they did not have a car available, although 36 per cent said they had two cars in their household.

Building Donation To San Marin Boys Club

The San Marin Improvement Association has donated $200 to the Novato Boys' Club's $150,000 building fund campaign, according to Diane Ryken, publicity chairman.

Directors appointed Richard B. Suttie of 152 San Felipe Way to fill a vacancy on the board Wednesday night and set the association's Halloween parade Oct. 29.

A Bee's Stinger?

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — A Hampshire schoolteacher reports that when she asked her class to describe "imagination" in brief style, one 11-year-old boy wrote: "A bee's stinger is only a fraction of an inch long. The rest of the 12 inches is imagination."

Reduced Charge In Check Case

A felony charge of possessing a check with intent to defraud against Richard D. Lipari, 27, no fixed address, was reduced yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor count.

Judge David R. Baty made the reduction after listening to evidence at a preliminary hearing and then scheduled a jury trial in municipal court for next Thursday.

Lipari is accused of having passej a stolen check in Fairfax. He was arrested Aug. 14.

"WOULDN'T YOU KNOW—?"

A huge well-located home like this is ideal for 3 children plus 2 adults - and could be enlarged. - But, the buyers will probably be just a couple who have lots of furniture and want a "rec. room downstairs" big enough for pool tables, pianos, pals, etc. Howsomever, if 5 or 6 people live here, there's plenty of room to expand under the roof. Plus an all built-in kitchen and a "knock out" yard (small, easy-care, very, very appealing).

✓HERITAGE HOME✓

3 story elegance in this massive Victorian style home of a by-gone era. The lumber baron who built this show place used only the finest construction and most beautiful wood in the paneling of the parlor, dining room and entry hall. The wood is as smooth as glass to the touch. Curved glass in many windows with beautiful etched glass abounding. The library has a working fireplace as does the parlor. Family kitchen with butler's pantry and a powder room complete the first floor. Wide staircase to the 2nd floor entry that is a wood paneled octagon shape with 4 bedrooms, 2 baths and stairs to the 3rd floor. This huge room with bath could be a master suite or children's hideaway. 3 stall garage and outdoor patio. All this plus a 3 bedroom, bath and a ½ home with large dining room on the grounds as a rental unit. $65,000.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Carbon Monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

$27,000 Holdup Haul In East Bay

EMERYVILLE (AP) — A bandit wielding a long-nosed revolver took $27,000 in small bills from a local businessman early today and then got away after the holdup victim fired all six shots from a gun he was carrying, police said.

Police in surrounding communities are combing the streets for the man, described as about 25 years old and wearing a large, floppy hat.

Officers said the businessman, whose identity was withheld, was about to make a night deposit at a local branch of the Bank of America when the predawn robbery occured.

The bandit walked up behind the man and said, "Don't turn around," before taking a brown paper bag containing the money, police said.

As the bandit fled, the businessman pursued him and fired all six shots from a .38 caliber revolver he was carrying for protection, officers said. None of the shots were believed to have found their mark, according to police, and the thief disappeared over a nearby fence.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Accidents Are Leading Cause Of Death Among The Navaho

Accidents are the leading cause of death among the Navaho Indians. Surprisingly, for the rest of the country heart disease, strokes, and cancer are higher on the list.

Falls are responsible for one of every five mishaps and, in the majority, were the result of falling from a horse. This is understandable because, to the Navaho, a horse is a source of great pride.

Pedestrian accidents were highest among the causes of death. The incidence is highest among the 25-to-34-year-olds, as it is among the general population.

Alcohol, lack of driver education, poor roads, and lax law enforcement also play a role. Vehicles accounted for 48.2 per cent of the fatalities, but were causal in only 19.3 per cent of the injuries.

LESS FREQUENT accident causes include cuts, stab wounds, burns, and contact with machinery. Animal bites are common, but are rarely fatal in contrast to the high death rates from auto accidents, drowning, fire, explosions and freezing from exposure to cold.

Dumb cane (Dieffenbachia) is a familiar house plant that originally came from tropical forests. The name is derived from the effect it has on the mouth and tongue.

One bite and the oral tissues swell and burn so severely that swallowing is impaired and speech thickened and unintelligible. It is strange that so familiar a plant is capable of causing so much pain and discomfort. One nibble will make a believer, but don't try it, take my word for it.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Johnnie L. Gentry, Jr., assistant curator of botany at the Field Museum, natives of the Upper Amazon combined the sap of dumb cane with curare to poison their arrows. In Jamaica, plantation owners, as punishment, rubbed cut stalks into the mouths of slaves.

Dumb cane belongs to the aroid family. Similar reactions ensue when related plants, such as calla lily, elephant's-ear, caladium, alocasia and some philodendrons are used.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

NEW VESSELS GROW

H. B. writes: Can a person with angina ever regain his health?

REPLY

Yes, but not until the narrowed coronary arteries develop new branches or the obstructed segments are bypassed with a vein graft. Other operations also are available to improve the coronary circulation. We also have medicines to lessen the work load of the heart and reduce its need for blood.

VIRAL INFECTION

V. F. writes: My husband has shingles. What kind of disease is this?

REPLY

Shingles is a viral infection (herpes zoster) that involves the nerve endings in the skin of one side of the body. The ensuing tiny blisters may last three weeks or more, but pain may persist for weeks or months.

CROOKED TOES

O. writes: Should crooked toes be straightened via surgery?

REPLY

Only when the distortion is causing distress. Age enters the picture because deformities of the feet are likely to cause trouble as the years pass. Early correction is advisable.

Bakers Ask Price Hike Of Bread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blaming the sale of 400 million bushels of U.S. wheat to Russia, the baking industry has requested government authorization for an immediate, across-the-board hike in bread prices.

The American Bakers Association (ABA) said Thursday that rising flour costs—averaging two-thirds of a cent per loaf— have placed in jeopardy the profits of hundreds of bakeries.

ABA General Counsel Joseph M. Creed, in a letter to director Donald Rumsfeld of the Cost of Living Council, requested a compensatory price boost to recoup higher flour costs. Creed said the increase should be authorized across the board, without the usual need for individual applications by large companies.

Creed said he also requested permission for increases by firms which would normally be blocked from such action by limitations on profit margins.

This action is needed, Creed said, because of local competitive conditions. He explained that if one baker in a local market was unable to raise prices because of profit controls, his competitors who may have sub-par profits will be forced to keep their prices down and suffer losses.

The Soviet Union, which had a poor wheat harvest, recently placed increased grain orders with the United States which, in turn, pushed domestic wheat prices higher, Creed said.

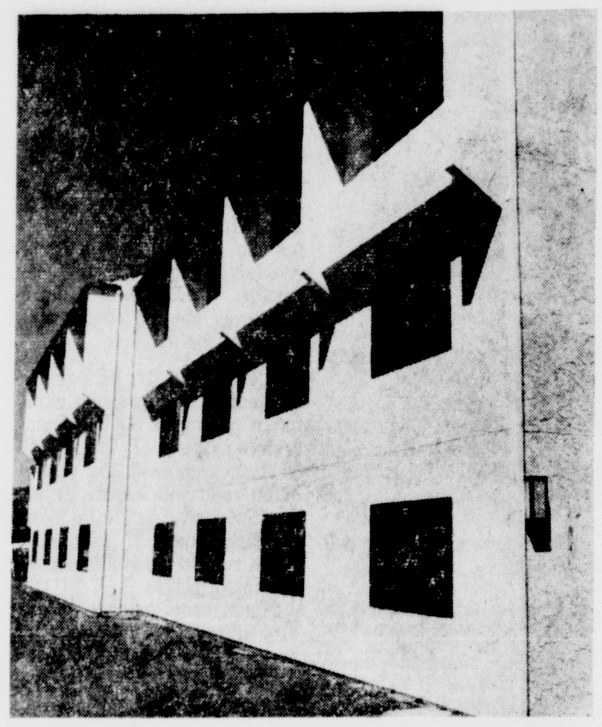
OPEN FEELING — Despite the high density, courtyards between buildings lend a feeling of openness at the residence halls. Each unit has a private entrance with room numbers in op-art style. Resident with other tastes may redesign the doors if they like. The college will provide lawn furniture kits that students may assemble for use on patios and terraces. (Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax.)

COZY LOUNGE — The main lounge in the recreation pavilion will have a cozy and casual atmosphere as students relax in front of the fireplace. Furniture has no place in the room since students will lounge on the softly carpeted steps and on fluffy pillows. Sky lights and angular ceiling give the room an aura of openness while the rustic wood paneling and fireplace lend great warmth.



CAMPUS FIRST — The new residence hall complex is the first on-campus housing for Sonoma State. The units will accommodate 8 per cent of the student body which should promote greater interest in campus activities. The halls will be open for public tours Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. A festive atmosphere is planned with wine tasting and music.

A New Atmosphere For Student Housing

Sonoma State College's $3.5 million Mediterranean-style student residence halls will open to students next month, but without that old dormitory atmosphere.

John Simmons, chairman of the housing department, sees the buildings as a "mini-city" or as a single adult community for 406 students.

The buildings will be open for public tours Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. College president Thomas H. McGrath will officially open the complex by popping a champagne bottle at 2:30 p.m.

Wine donated by Sonoma and Napa County wineries will be served and entertainment will be provided by singer Kate Wolfe, a Sonoma State student.

Simmons said students will begin moving into the complex on Sept. 5. Three applications were received for each opening and more than 200 students are already on a waiting list.

Simmons said he believes the lack of low-income housing in the area has brought the deluge of applications, but also feels that many students are anxious to live on campus and to feel more a part of the college.

Students will pay $1,200 to $1,400 per year for both room and meals.

Simmons will oversee life at the residence halls, but residents themselves will make many of the decisions.

"Right now we have a policy against residents keeping dogs, but if the majority favor dogs then we'll allow them and charge a cleaning deposit to the owners," Simmons said.

Several different types of living units are available including single units with private bath, single units with shared baths, and units for four persons including two double-occupancy bedrooms, a bathroom and livingroom.

The center also includes nine-person units that are two-story-suites with two double-occupancy bedrooms, a bath and living-room on the first floor and two doubles and a single bedroom and a second bathroom on the upper floor.

Male and female students will not be permitted to share rooms. "This was a political decision, not a moral decision," Simmons said. "If we allowed it, it would probably cost us our college president."

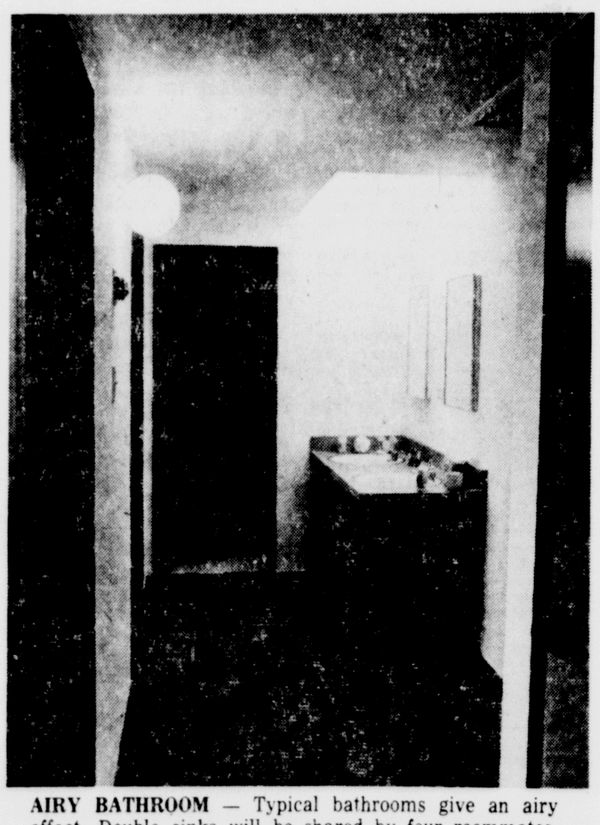
Co-educational living will be permitted, however, in the nine-person suites so long as genders do not mix in bedrooms or bathrooms.

Of the 406 residents, 100 will work within the community and receive lower rental rates. These students and a limited number of professionals will be responsible for activities, programs, budgets, purchasing, accounting, personnel arrangements, gardening, maintenance, food preparation and service.

Also included in the residential complex is the school of environmental studies so the academic segment of the college can be combined with the living units to promote a total learning atmosphere.

Three married couples will be living at the complex, although Simmons said it is designed primarily for single students. He said he hoped the next residential building project will be designed for couples.

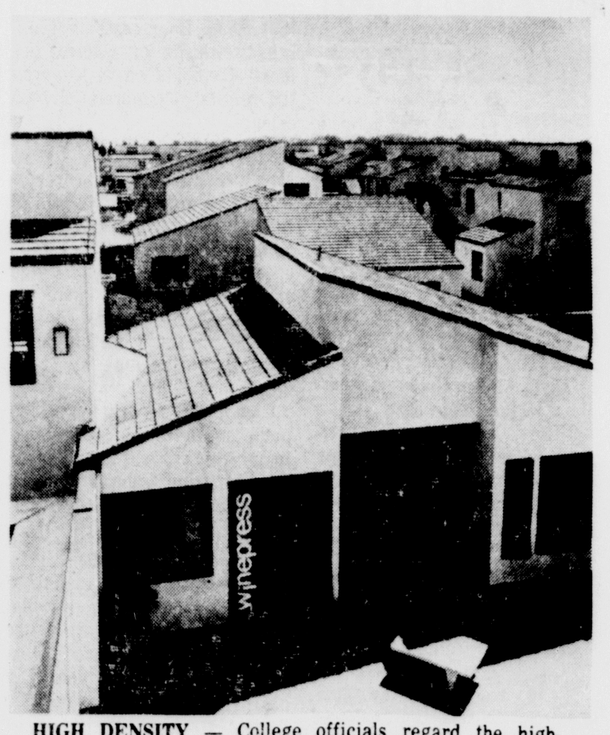
SWIM CENTER — A swimming pool adjacent to the main recreation building is expected to become a focal point during hot days this fall at the new residence halls. A second pool was in original plans for the complex, but later was deleted when construction costs increased faster than expected. The $3.5 million center will be financed solely through revenue from residents and no state tax funds were provided.



AIRY BATHROOM — Typical bathrooms give an airy effect. Double sinks will be shared by four roommates. Showers and commodes are in separate rooms for convenience.

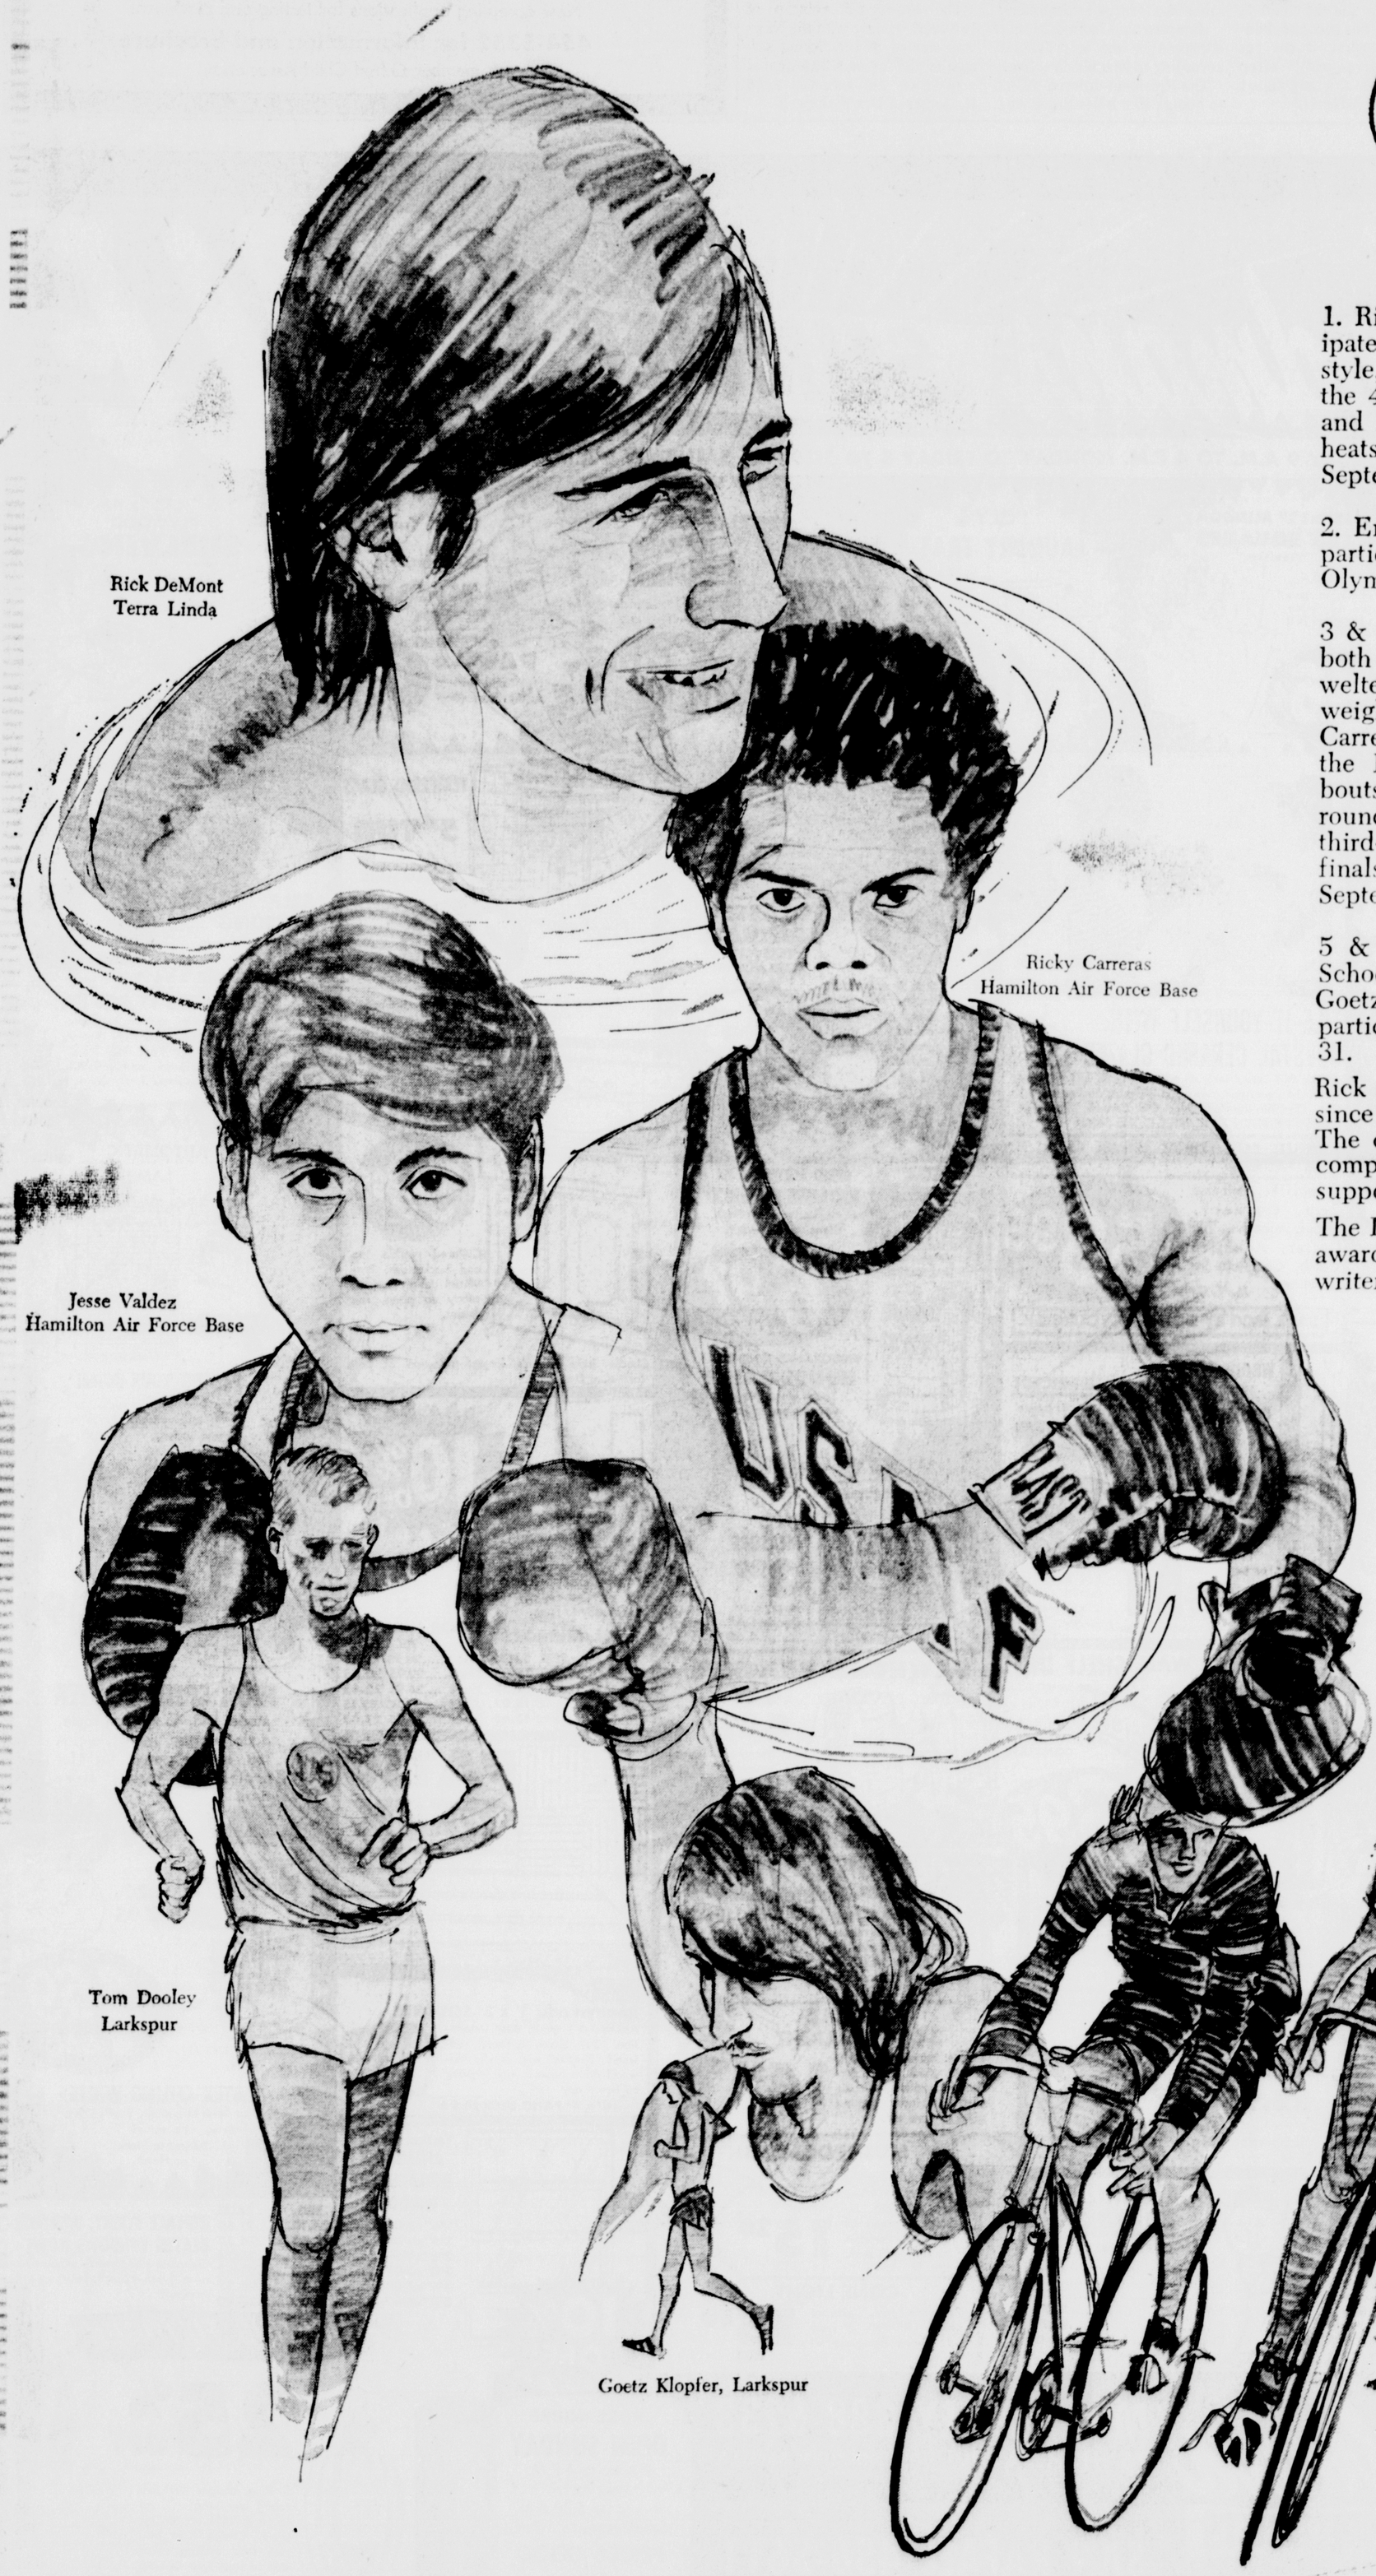
HOUSING OFFICE — The college's housing department will temporarily be included in the new residence hall complex and includes a kitchen and lounging area so students can feel at home. Lisa McAllister is one of the many Sonoma State students who are working as clean-up crews to get the building ready for occupancy on Sept. 5.

DINING HALL — John Simmons, chairman of the housing department, oversees final work on the dining hall that will serve the 406 residents of the residence halls. Meals will be served buffet style or family style depending on what the residents decide. Tables and chairs are not expected to arrive until November and Simmons expects residents will do some "innovating" to overcome the problem until then.



HIGH DENSITY — College officials regard the high-density residence halls as an experiment in close living. Students will set their own rules as they adjust to 406 people living together in close quarters. The individual buildings reflect the wine heritage of Sonoma County and have been named after wines such as Zinfandel and Pinot Noir. Other areas such as storage rooms and the four laundry rooms also reflect that trend with names like "Winepress" and "Vineyard."

Follow Marin County's Six Olympic Hopefuls in the I-J!



1. Rick DeMont, Terra Linda, swimmer. Will participate in 400-meter freestyle and 1500-meter freestyle, being the world record holder in the latter. In the 400, heats are Friday, September 1, at 10 a.m., and finals are that afternoon at 5:30. In the 1500, heats are Sunday, September 3, and finals Monday, September 4.

2. Emile Waldteufel, Mill Valley, cyclist. Will participate in 100-kilometer team road race at Olympia Park, Tuesday, August 29.

3 & 4. Ricardo (Ricky) Carreras and Jesse Valdez, both Hamilton Air Force Base, boxers. Valdez is a welterweight (147 pounds), and Carreras a bantamweight (119). Valdez is a native of Houston and Carreras is from New York City. Boxing is held at the Hall of Boxing in Olympia Park, first-round bouts are August 27-31, at 1 and 7 p.m.; second-round bouts, from September 1-3, at 1 and 7 p.m.; third-round bouts, September 4 and 5; quarter-finals, September 6; semi-finals, September 7; finals, September 9.

5 & 6. Tom Dooley, teacher at San Rafael High School, and sometime resident of Larkspur, and Goetz Klopfer, Larkspur, both race walkers, will participate in 20-kilometer walk Thursday, August 31.

Rick stands a good chance of winning a gold medal, since he has the record for the 1,500 meter distance. The other entrants are predicted to meet some stiff competition but all these Marin boys deserve our support.

The I-J will be represented in Munich by the award-winning reporter and veteran Olympic writer, Dave Beronio.

Reforms Urged To Remedy Stock Market's Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Subcommittee on Commerce and Finance, hoping to remedy the problems that brought the stock market to the brink of collapse in 1970, has urged wide-ranging reforms keyed to greater broker competition and protection for individual investors.

In a 170-page, 95,000-word report made public yesterday, the subcommittee severely criticized the performance of the securities industry and the government agency charged with regulating it —the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) —for permitting a "state of chaos" to reign on Wall Street. It threatened legislation unless "failings" are remedied voluntarily.

The report was compiled by the subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., after a year-long investigation that included testimony from 87 witnesses at 26 days of public hearings.

Many of its findings jibed closely with those of a comparable Senate panel —thus indicating the direction securities legislation may take when the new Congress convenes next January.

Among the major recommendations:

Eventual elimination of all stock certificates to reduce the crush of paper work that nearly drowned Wall Street in recent years and to thwart slick thieves, who have made trading in stolen securities a multibillion dollar business for organized crime.

Gradual abolition of fixed commission rates for securities transactions in favor of open competition for brokerage business, no matter what the size of the order.

Permission for institutional investors such as mutual funds, insurance companies and pension funds, to become stock exchange members as long as they are barred from handling business for their affiliates.

Stiffer penalties, up to a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison term, for violation of securities laws and regulations.

Establishment of a "single net capital rule" to make entry into the securities business easier for competent broker-dealers.

Creation, by Jan. 1, 1974, of uniform accounting procedures for broker-dealers and by Dec. 31, 1975, of a single national system of clearance and settlement of securities transactions, leading to an eventual "central market system."

The study grew out of passage, in December of 1970, of the Securities Investor Protection Act that was hurried through Congress in the wake of serious financial troubles on Wall Street that led to the collapse of 160 member broker firms of the New York Stock Exchange alone.

In reviewing the reasons for the paper and cash crunch that caused the crisis, the subcommittee found that both the industry and the SEC were to blame.

"The subcommittee's hearings show concretely that the (New York Stock) Exchange's failings were one of the major causes of the operational and financial breakdowns which constituted the 1967-70 crisis in the securities business," the report said. "Nor is the commission without responsibility for the 1967-70 debacle; instead of regulating or supervising the self-regularors, the commission has usually negotiated with them as if they were coordinate bodies."

The report recommended free competition on all commission rates as soon as possible and promised legislation to force such a change unless the SEC and the industry move toward that goal. Rates are fixed on order up to $300,000, and the SEC has set an April, 1974, target date for lowering that level to $100,000.

But the committee said it found "no logical justification" for allowing competitive commission rates for large institutional orders while "perpetuating rate fixing" for small investors.

It criticized the SEC's plan to allow institutional investors — now barred from stock exchange membership —to join as long as they do no more than 20 per cent of their business with affiliates. It said this would "do more harm than good" and lead to future problems, and thus recommended that institutional broker-dealers be forbidden from handling affiliate business at all. But the committee tempered this recommendation by suggesting it not become effective until after brokerage fees are negotiated above the $100,000 level.

Nixon Abolishes Quota Hirings

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has ordered an end to quota systems for minority hiring in federal employment, the Civil Service Commission reported Thursday.

Commission Chairman Robert E. Hampton said Nixon insisted that discrimination in federal employment should be rooted out, but he said there should not be a quota to determine who is hired or promoted.

Hampton said individual merit should be the only criteria, according to Nixon's directive.

The President ordered an end to quotas in a letter dated Aug. 18. Hampton released copies of the letter Thursday.

Hampton said the undesirable quota method prevents merit opportunities because job decisions are made on a strictly proportional basis.

Texan New Head Of American Legion

The 59-year-old veteran of two tours of duty with the Navy was elected at the closing session of the legion's 54th annual convention. He succeeds John H. Geiger of Des Plaines, Ill.

Matthews Tops Evans Again In Olympic Tuneup

MUNICH (UPI) —Vince Matthews, who won his spot on the U.S. track and field team fair and square, has to be resting a bit easier today.

Matthews, a 24-year-old quartermiler from Brooklyn, N.Y., wound up third in the 400 meter dash at the Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore., last month, but ever since arriving in Munich all he's heard is talk that Lee Evans, who was fourth in the Trials, would replace him in the Olympic Games.

In a special final tuneup meet Thursday night, Matthews and Evans, the defending Olympic champion and world record holder, were entered in the same heat. American team officials said there was no significance to the pairing and maybe there wasn't. Still it seemed strange.

In any event, Matthews beat Evans by a tenth of a second, 44.7 to 44.8, and if there were any doubts Vince apparently dispelled them.

The betting now is that Evans will have to content himself with running anchor on the 1,600-meter relay team and leave it up to Matthews, Wayne Collett and John Smith to carry Yank hopes in the 400.

The Matthews-Evans matchup was the most significant of the tuneup meet, although Steve Prefontaine set an American record of 8:19.4 for two miles. His time beat the listed record of 8:22.1 set by George Young four years ago, but won't ever get into the record books.

That's because Prefontaine actually competed in a 3,000 meter race. What he did was continue another 240 yards for two miles in an arrangement worked out earlier with timers and officials.

Prefontaine is America's chief hope for a distance race medal. He's listed for the 5,000-meter run — a race in which he has a career best of 13:22.8, which also is the American record.

Bob Seagren, meanwhile, had a disappointing pole vault of 17-4 3-4, which is 13 inches less than his world record. What made it worse was that he lost to West Germany's Reiner Kuretzky on fewer misses.

However, Seagren, who won his specialty four years ago in the Mexico City Games, used an old pole Thursday night. He got his world mark with a newer and more refined pole, but the International Amateur Athletic Federation has not approved it.

The tuneup meet was about the only activity of note as the countdown began for Saturday's opening ceremonies. Sunday, the action gets under way with diving, water polo, weightlifting, wrestling, soccer, pistol shooting, basketball and boxing. Track and field doesn't start until Aug. 31.

Most athletes are trying to keep busy while awaiting the opening. Today, in the main track stadium, there will be some practice runs for the opening ceremonies —usually the most colorful event of the Olympic Games. As expected, not a seat is available with a sellout of 84,000 assured.

In other news:

—The American flag finally was raised in Olympic Village in a ceremony seen by more than 1,000.

—Marilyn King of Hayward (Calif.) State was reported to have suffered a bone chip in her left ankle during a practice meet Wednesday, but she should be recovered in time for the women's pentathlon.

Hamilton Air Force Base boxers Jesse Valdez and Ricardo Carreras were given first round opponents in the draw for the Olympic boxing tournament. Valdez, a welterweight, will go against Komlan Kalipe of Togo, and Carreras, a bantamweight, will meet Timothy O'Brien of Australia.

Members of the U.S. team today selected Mrs. Olga Fikotova Connolly to carry the American Flag in tomorrow's opening ceremonies. She will compete in the discus for the fourth time as a member of the U.S. Olympic team.

Dipsea Race Is Set Sunday

The 6.8-mile Dipsea trail from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach is beloved for its matchless sylvan beauty, but Sunday morning about 11 o'clock, a thousand people will be cursing it.

Somehow, appreciation tends to be dulled after two miles of steep ascent up Cardiac Hill in the middle of a pack of sweating runners under pounding sunlight.

Some 1,400 runners of various degrees of seriousness and skill are expected to compete Sunday in the 62nd annual Dipsea race, which will start at the town clock by the bus depot in Mill Valley at 10 a.m.

The runners will have a tough time contending with each other, but probably a tougher time with the winding cross-country course featuring three steep hills.

The first part of the race is easy — a jaunt down Throckmorton Avenue into Old Mill Park — but then runners face the infamous 671 steps ascending a hill. The steps are five feet wide at the base and narrow to about two feet at the top, so runners arriving maybe 20 abreast at the base have to form a file.

NO COMPLAINTS

"We've never had any complaints about pushing or shoving at the base of the stairs," said race director John Drew. "The runners are sportsmanlike."

At the top of the steps, the trail widens along Sequoia Valley Road, giving the scratch runners their first good chance to pass the hordes of handicap runners who started ahead of them.

The trail narrows again and reaches the crest of the first hill at Windy Gap, about 750 feet up. Then the runners start a descent into Muir Woods, culminating at the shallow Muir Creek, which can be crossed easily. Along the way is the first of what Drew called three danger spots: an uneven dirt

Sports Drug Usage Blasted In Munich

Expert Says Football An Example

MUNICH (UPI)—The chief of the Olympic dope testing unit today bitterly criticized coaches who give their unknowing young charges dangerous drugs. He put U. S. football high on the list of sports in which athletes drug themselves to improve performance.

Prof. Arnold Beckett of London University said the use of amphetamines in American football was a flagrant example of athletes risking their health for professional gain and glory.

"We've had people in these laboratories who've let their hair down about the situation in the U. S. and in Canada where American football players also play. Why is it tolerated? Some people would lose their jobs if they stood out against it."

Beckett said there was virtually no sport in the Olypic Games in which the possibility of drugs being used could be excluded.

"We've even been asked to test the crews of the yachting races at Keil," he said, "though I can't offhand think of what drug would be of any use to a yachtsman."

He said the main drugs they would be looking for would be amphetamines, which lower the body's protective fatigue barrier, and ephedrine which is a stimulant. But there are a long list of other drugs which can be used, some deadly dangerous, such as strychnine.

Beckett said they were worried about the use of anabolic steroids to improve size and strength by shotputters, discus throwers and other massive athletes in the games but there was no way of testing for the hormones. In this case, Beckett said, the doctors are less worried about what the substances do to athletic performance than the danger to health.

"There should be weight classes in discus, shot and hammer," he said.

There were many questions at the news conference about the use of drugs by cyclists — there have been deaths in this sport attributed to the use of stimulants.

Beckett said all precautions were being taken —even to making sure competitors do not hide samples of "clean" urine and substitute it for their own in the tests. He said what he told was the true story of a low country cyclist who got a sample of urine and submitted it as his own.

The laboratory reported: "This cyclist has not been drugged but he is pregnant."

IN BALTIMORE

A's Hunter Vs. Oriole Cuellar

OAKLAND (AP) — Jim Hunter, the Oakland Athletics' lone serious candidate for the 20-victory circle, seeks to improve a 16-6 record tonight against the Baltimore Orioles in the opener of a three-game series.

Each club is only a half game out of the lead in its American League division. Baltimore, which sends Mike Cuellar, 12-10, to the mound, trails Detroit in the East, and Oakland has fallen a half game back of Chicago's White Sox in the West.

Five weeks ago, when the Orioles were a game behind the Tigers, the A's were enjoying the biggest margin of their long of their long tenure as West division pace setters — 8½ games over Chicago. But since then Oakland slumped to a 15-18 mark, while Chicago was compiling a hot 23-8, and the third-place Minnesota Twins gained with an 18-15 record. The Athletics were idle Thursday after ending a road trip on which they were 5-3 and which started with a pair of victories in Baltimore. Oakland will be at home now for 11 games, ending with a Labor Day doubleheader against California.

Right-fielder Reggie Jackson, who has 21 home runs and leads the A's in runs batted in with 61, has been out of action for 15 days with a rib injury. He may come off the disabled list for tonight's game.

GIANTS IN CHICAGO FOR CUB SERIES

CHICAGO (UPI) —The San Francisco Giants have to play 12 games in 13 days in a tough road trip which starts this afternoon at Wrigley Field against the Cubs.

Mustachioed Jim Willoughby (2-1) got the nod from Giants manager Charlie Fox to hurl the opener. Cubs pilot Carroll (Whitey) Lockman tabbed sinker-ball specialist Burt Hooton (7-11).

The Giant season has pretty well settled down to an attempt to catch fourth place Atlanta. The Giants are currently 1 1-2 games back of the Braves.

San Francisco was travelling Thursday.

Italian Club In 2-0 Tourney Win

VALLEJO — Don Bianchini, with a team behind him that looked like Cox's army, gave a lesson in fastball pitching last night with an overpowering two-hitter to give the Italian Club of Larkspur a 2-0 victory over Daly City in the second round of the CaliforniaJoe DiMaggio League baseball tournament at Wilson Park.

Bianchini, improving upon teammate Gene Frey's 3-1 win over Vallejo in the opening round, used the fastball almost exclusively to strikeout 11 batters and send the Marin County team into a confrontation with also-unbeaten Los Angeles tomorrow at 5:30 p.m.

Italian Club coach Al Endriss had scheduled Mark Ruggles to pitch last night, but changed his mind at the last minute. The lanky righthander from Marin Catholic gave up only singles to Rick Newman and Dennis Sims, and never knew an anxious moment.

"They were supposedly a fastball hitting club," Endriss said of Daly City. "He (Bianchini) threw mostly fastballs, moved the ball around and was really magnificent."

Wearing different colored shoes (some players had red, some black), and different colored batting helmets, even on defense, the Italian Club made up with near perfect execution what they lacked in decorum.

Shortstop Steve Sherry, a defensive standout in the Vallejo game, started the first scoring rally by being hit by a pitch to leadoff the third inning. Daryl Edralin then punched a hit-and-run single to rightfield, sending Sherry to third.

Sherry scored when the next batter, Matt Gondak, lofted a soft fly to leftcenter which was dropped by second baseman Ted Grey.

The Larkspur team put an insurance run on the scoreboard in the sixth. Gondak ledoff with a single, and wasforced at second on a ground ball to short by Bianchini. Jim Caito and Rod Long followed with consecutive singles, the

49ers Face Axe After Sunday Go

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— Nine of the 58 San Francisco Forty Niners will be cut after Sunday's battle with Denver at Candlestick Park to meet Tuesday's squad trimming deadline.

Coach Dick Nolan says he'll follow his plan and that John Brodie will quarterback the Prospectors for most of the way against the Broncos. Nolan had said he would alternate Steve Spurrier and Brodie in a starting role for four games and it's Brodie's turn.

Asked to evaluate Steve Spurrier's performance in the 17-13 loss to San Diego last week, Nolan said "he moved the club pretty well."

Karl Fires 65 For Golf Lead

And that it is, because the top eight finishers in the second round of the $100,000 L&M Open today will leave the tournament to join the $150,000 U. S. Professional Match Play championship held on the same Country Club of North Carolina course beginning Saturday.

Karl, a 27-year-old former Army cook from Endicott, N. Y., put together a brilliant string of five consecutive birdies on holes on through five, as well as four other birds against two bogeys.

Bob Barbarossa, another second-year pro, and veteran Deane Beman both fired six-under 66s.

Bunched together at four under 68 were former Wake Forest star Lanny Wadkins, rookie Chuck Thorpe, and Stockton. Napa's Ron Cerrudo had a 71.

Finley Wins Case In Federal Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal court has ruled that Emprise Corporation, which runs the concessions at 10 major league baseball parks, has violated federal antimonopoly laws.

Justice Tom C. Clark awarded Charles O. Finley, of the Oakland Athletics, $846,000 in triple damages. He estimated Finley lost $282,168 during the four seasons, 1964 through 1967, by dealing with Emprise instead of another concessionaire.

In his ruling revealed Thursday Clark, a former U.S. Supreme Court justice now serving part time on the district court, decided that selling beer and hot-dogs at baseball parks is a "unique" kind of business. The fact that Emprise has long-term contracts with 10 of the 22 major league baseball clubs gives it a dominant position, having over 50 per cent of the business, he said.

The method Emprise used to control the concessions, Clark said, is by giving substantial loans to people running baseball teams and getting long contracts—up to 100 years—in return.

When Finley bought the Kansas City Athletics he was forced to pick up the team's Philadelphia contract with Emprise, which had many years to run. Finley fought Emprise and when he moved the team to Oakland in 1967 he refused to honor the Emprise contract and signed with a local concessionaire who is giving the Athletics 37 per cent of sales, rather than 29 per cent which Emprise paid.

Zarraonandias Grab Victories In Net Tourney

Carrie Zarraonandia of San Rafael, seeded third in girls 14 singles, defeated seventh-seeded Nancy Miller of San Francisco yesterday, 6-2, 6-1, to advance to the semi-finals of the Northern California Junior Sectional tennis tournament at the Alpine Club in Portola Valley.

Carrie and her sister, Anne, teamed up to defeat Sally Harris of Atherton and Deede Steele of Menlo Park by the same score to move into the girls 16 doubles semis.

Elsewhere in tennis, Lyba Murphy of Mill Valley was scheduled to play Gwen Sondheimer of Tiburon for the singles championship today at noon in the first Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department women's tennis tournament, while Lynne Sweeney of Belvedere and Florence McIntyre of Tiburon were to meet Alice Reeve of Mill Valley and Miss Murphy for the doubles title.

Softball Results

In San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league play last night, McKee's edged Suburban Auto Blue, 7-6; Night Club defeated W. E. Joost, 10-6; Fabulous Aliens beat Cool Tool, 13-5; and the Over-the-Hillers outslugged Belly Whompers, 17-10.

Simpson, Buffalo Take On Raiders

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— O.J. Simpson comes home to the Bay Area Saturday when he leads revitalized Buffalo against unbeaten Oakland in a National Football League exhibition at the University of California stadium here.

The Bills have shown some blocking and defense in compiling a 2-1 exhibition record while Oakland has its fans dreaming of another Super Bowl shot with three consecutive victories.

The Raiders have a string of injuries and running backs Charlie Smith and Don Highsmith, wide receivers Gloster Richardson and Cliff Branch and tackle Kelvin Korver may have to sit out the contest.

Typical of the type of problems that face coach John Madden and make him the envy of other mentors is his choice of defensive backs. Willie Brown, George Atkinson, Nemiah Wilson and Jack Tatum are as good a group as anyone could ask for and Jimmy Warren filled in brilliantly last year.

Deer Kills Plunge In Marin, Sonoma

By AL GIDDINGS

Included were 1,729 applicants for the early season hunts for which 1,550 permits will be awarded, and 21,864 applied for the 17 late season hunts with 7,575 permits to be awarded.

Reported buck kills for this season show that Marin County hunters have taken 57 bucks as against 112 compared to this time last year. Tag returns from archers in the pre-season archery hunt showed that four bucks were taken as compared to seven last year. Mendocino County shows 760 bucks as taken compared to 1,099 last year. Sonoma, Lake and Napa county kills are also down.

THE NINTH annual hunt for buck antelope in Modoc, Lassen, Shasta and Siskiyou counties will open Saturday. Some 380 permits have been awarded for the hunt in which 400 hunters took 302 antelope last year. A total of 8,344 persons applied for the permits for this year's hunt. A minimum of 3,766 antelope were counted in this year's census. I've applied for this permit nine times now without being drawn.

With chances of being drawn about one in forty, my time should eventually roll around. Last year and the year before, I had my sights on the biggest antelope in Lassen County, but couldn't pull the trigger. I would have got him easily. I suppose if I ever get drawn, and the pressure's on, that old buck fever will take over.

If the buck is running, then you have a horse of another color, just compensate. If you get buck fever, you might shoot at the moon! It really takes practice and experience to become a good deer shot and hunter. If you can stay calm and cool, use your head and think, you're halfway home.

Enos Foster of Woodacre said that, last Sunday, he read the column and decided to try the Richmond Bridge for stripers. He said he got nothing, and that most of the boats out of Loch Lomond didn't connect either. It must be just you Sunday fishermen. Two anglers left Loch Lomond at 8:30 a.m. Monday, went to the Sisters using shiners, and were back at 10:30 with six fish.

If you'll check with Ray Lenci or Keith Frazier, I'll bet they took fish at the Richmond Bridge nearly each morning at dawn this week. (The tides were perfect). Try trolling or live bait, but the bait must be on the bottom. Fish the incoming rips at the Sisters or at the bridge near piling number 50. Or fish the bridge pilings out in the channel, but keep your lures on the bottom. Let the lures go under the pilings. Good grief, as it is the same guys are eating fish every day.

UP IN SONOMA COUNTY, near Timber Cove, a team of game wardens issued citations to four divers and three accomplices who acted as lookouts, and had assisted in cleaning the over-limits of abalones. How many abalones did they have? The wardens seized 50 abalones in the shell and 125 pounds of sliced abalone. The judge set bail at $10,500 or $1,500 each.

A fellow called from Santa Venetia saying he caught an all-white shark about 20 inches in length. I'm going over to look at it. If it turns out to be a small undersized sturgeon, what shall I do? Later — I checked the fish. It looks like a cross between a shark and a sturgeon. I suppose I should issue a half citation for the half of the fish that is the half of an undersized sturgeon! I guess I'll let the laboratory figure it out. The guy that caught this fish — his name is Bill Sturgis! Believe it or not!

Retread Pitchers Stand Out

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Two pitching reclamation projects dominated Thursday's light major league baseball action.

Jack Billingham strengthened Cincinnati's hold on first place in the National League West as he pitched the Redlegs to a 6-0 shutout of the Montreal Expos. Jim Lonborg of Milwaukee struggled to a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers in the nightcap of a doubleheader after the Brewers bowed, 4-1, in the opener.

There were no other contests in either league.

The 29-year-old Billingham, a distant cousin of the legendary Christy Mathewson, came to the Redlegs last Nov. 29 in an eight-player trade with Houston that centered around Joe Morgan, Cesar Geronimo, Lee May and Tommy Helms.

Lonborg suffered one bad inning—allowing three runs in the fourth—then fired blanks the rest of the way as his teammates—led by Dave May—caught up.

Potent Washington A Test For Detroit

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Schmidt, a firm believer in defense, should get a true picture of his Detroit Lions tonight.

The Lions take on the Washington Redskins in a nationally televised pre-season football game and no coach could ask for a sterner test of his defense than this summer's Redskin offense.

The Washington offense has been, in a word, awesome this spring, outscoring three opponents 108-13 in taking all three games. The only mark near that is the 103 points scored by Dallas, but the Cowboys have played four games.

The Redskins may have some added punch, too, in that Larry Brown, their star running back, may see action against the Lions. Brown has been sidelined by injuries but George Nock, acquired from the New York Jets in the off-season, has been brilliant as a reserve.

Schmidt must look at young players before next week's cutdown to 49 players but he'll also be interested in seeing how his club fares against the Redskins, who finished 9-4 last season and made the National Football League playoffs because of their best runnerup record.

Atlanta, winless in two previous exhibition games, meets Miami in the only other preseason contest scheduled for tonight.

The victory may have been a costly one for the Oilers, who lost quarterback Lynn Dickey with a dislocated hip. Dickey, who had been battling Dan Pastorini for the starting job, gained 11 yards on a first-period run when he was hit by defensive ends John Hoffman and Chuck Walker. A team physican put the hip back in place on the field and Dickey was taken to a hospital.

Dickey, a second-year man from Kansas State, had completed 7-of-10 passes for 70-yards when he was hurt.

Pastorini, a second-year man from Santa Clara, threw three touchdown passes to boost the Oilers past St. Louis. Pastorini threw a 28-yard TD pass to Ken Burrough and hit Dennis Hughes and Rhett Dawson with seven-yarders. Charlie Joiner ran four yards for another score and Ward Walsh plunged over from the three for another. Gary Cuozzo threw two TD passes for the Cardinals

In news from the camps, the New Orleans Saints traded veteran defensive end Lawrence Estes to Los Angeles for a draft choice and released Mike Walker and veteran running back Hoyle Granger.

Pittsburgh said three players —John Fuqua, Rick Sharp and Bob Adams—will be out of action for the game against Baltimmore and the Cowboys said running back Calvin Hill will miss Satuday night's game against the Jets. Jerome Barkum, the wide receiver from Jackson State who was the Jets' No. 1 draft choice, is expected to make his pro debut against the Cowboys.

Rebuilding For Petaluma Grid

After a 3-6 season in 1971, and with most of last year's stars graduated, first year Petaluma High School head varsity football coach Tony Kehl faces the unenviable task of rebuilding an entire squad.

Kehl, whose football hopefuls began two a day practices yesterday, doesn't think of this as a rebuilding season, however.

"We aren't considering this a rebuilding year. We expect to have success immediately; we plan to win more than we lose. When a coaching staff treats a season as a rebuilding year, they overlook things and perpetuate mistakes," he commented.

Helping Kehl in his quest for a north Bay League championship contender are varsity coach John Pappas, who will work with quarterbacks and receivers, assistants Paul Nobmann, working with offensive and defensive backs, Jack O'Connor, Sam Tharpe, Steve Stedman and Dave Wilson, who will all work with the offensive and defensive lines.

The Trojans will be mostly composed of juniors, up from last year's junior varsity squad which Kehl calls "as good a group of J.V.'s as I've seen since I've been coaching. But fortunaely, we have a good group of seniors to stabilize the younger players."

Leading this group of returning seniors will be number one quarterback candidate, Steve Crawford. Crawford, 6-feet-1 and 170 pounds was the backup man last year, starting the final two games of the season.

Also back this year are Tom Mercado, a split end and defensive back and linemen Dennis Govan and Bob Yamasaki, and Vick Chadwick.

Klopfer, Dooley Compete In Second Olympic Games

Race Walkers Vied In 1968 At Mexico City

(Last in a series)

Of the athletes competing in the 1972 Olympics, only a handful has been through it before. Coincidentally, two San Rafael High School physical education aides enjoy that honor.

Goetz Klopfer of Larkspur and Tom Dooley of San Carlos both veterans of the 1968 Mexico City Olympics, will take part in the 20-kilometer walk Thursday in this year's games at Munich.

Neither man is given much of a chance against a field that includes 1968 gold medal winner Viktor Goloubnichy and co-world record holders Peter Frenkel and Hans Reimann of East Germany. But that doesn't daunt their enthusiasm. "I'm happy to be going, but I'm not expecting any miracles," Klopfer said before his departure for Munich.

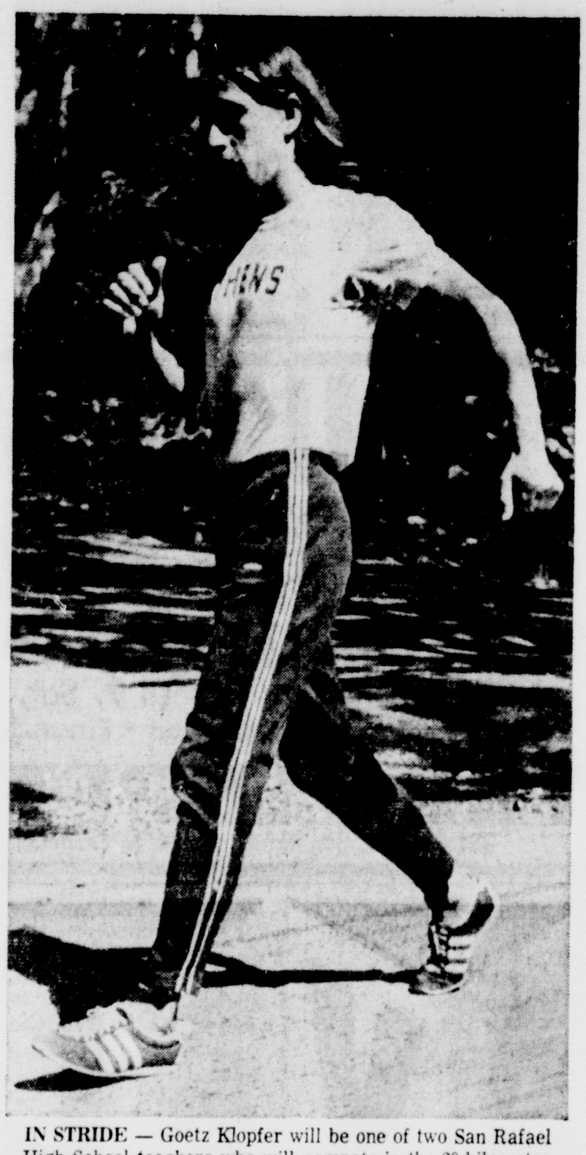
Klopfer and Dooley qualified for the 1972 games in Olympic trials July 1 at Eugene, Ore. They finished second and third behind Larry Young, who won the bronze medal in the 50-kilometer walk at Mexico City. Klopfer's qualifying time was 1:38.03, while Dooley came in at 1:39.10.

Klopfer, a 5-foot-6, 130-pounder, finished 10th at Mexico City. "That first time I was nine feet above the ground," he said. "This time, I won't be as nervous or overawed."

Klopfer, who set American records in the 30 and 25 kilometer distances, cut down on long workouts and concentrated on speed for this year's games. But it will take a lot of concentration to lower his time to the 1:26.15 that will probably be necessary to win.

In between Olympics, Dooley and Klopfer kept themselves busy, first by finishing one-two in the National Senior Amateur Athletic Union 20-kilometer walk last May in Golden Gate Park, and then by repeating the feat, except in reverse order, at the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, in August.

At the Pan Am games Klopfer, 28, was clocked in 1:37.30 over 20 kilometers, while Dooley, 26, finished at 1:38.15.



IN STRIDE — Goetz Klopfer will be one of two San Rafael High School teachers who will compete in the 20-kilometer walk in the Olympic Games in Munich. The other is Tom Dooley. Both went to the 1968 Games in Mexico City, but finished back in the pack, and will be seeking to improve their performances at Munich.

DIPSEA

BRUTAL

Next comes the brutal trek up Cardiac Hill, with runners ascending 1,200 feet over two and a quarter miles, much of it in the sun. Heat prostration is a danger on a hot day, Drew said. But this stretch provides the first prolonged opportunity for scratch runners to pass handicappers.

The crest of Cardiac Hill is marked by a lone pine tree named, appropriately enough, Lone Pine. Runners then descend sharply, 1,300 feet in a mile and a half, to Steep Ravine, the third danger spot. It is wet and slippery in foggy weather.

INSULT HILL

Before pouring it on at the stretch, however, runners are required to ascend Insult Hill. It's the smallest of the three, but doesn't seem like it after five and a half miles of running. Passing the crest at White Barn Gate, the runners have a downhill dash of a mile to the Stinson Beach Post Office. Theoretically, this is where scratch runners will finally catch handicappers for a stretch battle.

"People who have run the Dipsea before or who have worked out on the trail for several months have an advantage," said Drew. "The key to the race is being familiar with the trail."

Red Sox Recall Ex-Giant

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox recalled relief pitcher Bob Bolin Thursday from their Louisville farm club and asked waivers on reserve infielder Bob Burda. Both are former San Francisco Giants.

Bolin pitched in 12 games for the Red Sox before he was sent to Louisville on June 20. He had an 0-1 record and no saves. He appeared in 25 games at Louisville, compiling a 6-1 mark with six saves and a 1.83 earned run average. He hurled a complete game shutout in his only start.

Burda, who appeared mainly as a pinch hitter, had only 12 hits in 73 trips to the plate for Boston for a .164 average. He had two home runs and nine runs batted in.

Basketball

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Star guard Don Freeman was traded Thursday to the American Basketball Association champion Indiana Pacers from Dallas.

Freeman, a two-time ABA all-pro guard, was acquired in a cash deal of undisclosed nature and "future considerations", club Pacer officials said. Freeman is the ABA's fourth-highest all-time scorer with 8,303 points and a 22.8 per-game average, which is seventh. He ranks second in free throws with 2,184 and second in two-point field goals made.

Tennis

NEWPORT, R.I. — Second-seeded Chris Evert meets Wendy Overton and third-seeded Rosemary Casals meets Margaret Smith Court as quarter-final matches continue today in the $18,000 Virginia Slims Grass Court Tennis Tournament.

In quarter-final matches Thursday, top-seeded Billie Jean King of Palm-Aire, Fla., eliminated Pam Teegaurden of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-0, and unseeded Julie Heldman of Houston upset defending champion Kerry Melville of Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Auto Racing

ONTARIO, Calif. — Bobby Unser already has set records at six tracks in qualifying for the pole position and he appears headed for another one in the California 500.

On his first day of practice on the Ontario Motor Speedway Thursday, the Albuquerque, N.M., speedster burned up the track at 195.202 miles per hour in his Olsonite Eagle, nearly four miles an hour faster than any other driver.

Four others also surpassed the 190 m.p.h. mark Thursday to join Unser and Johnny Rutherford in the above-190 group. Going over the 190 mark Thursday were Mario Andretti, 191.574; Al Unser, 190.827, Gordon Johncock, 190.783, and Jerry Grant, 190.508.

Hockey

CHICAGO — The Chicago Black Hawks Thursday asked a federal judge to prohibit former star Bobby Hull from promoting the new Winnipeg Jets until his contract dispute is settled.

Federal judge James B. Parsons ordered both sides to appear in court today for a hearing on the issue of Hull's statements to the press.

TORONTO — Three living legends, two former greats and a hockey builder were inducted into the hockey hall of fame at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds here Thursday.

The new additions were former Detroit Red Wings superstar Gordie Howe; former Montreal Canadiens captain Jean Beliveau; Montreal and New York Ranger great Bernie 'Boom Boom' Geoffrion; Weston W. Adams, chairman of the board of the Boston Bruins; the late Reginald 'Hooley' Smith; and the late Harry 'Hap' Holmes.

The new inductees brought to 186 the number of members in the hockey hall of fame — 136 players, 43 builders and seven referees.

second of which brought Bianchini home from second.

Daly City posed its lone threat in the fifth, when Bianchini walked the leadoff man. But Edralin erased him and the next batter by turning a line drive into a double play.

Los Angeles remained the only other undefeated team in the tourney by shutting out San Francisco earlier yesterday, 2-0. Endriss named Ruggles to start against them tomorrow.

Task Force On High School Location Acts

After a year's study on what to do with the 32 acre Marin City high school site, a task force appointed by the Tamalpais High School District has come up with two recommendations:

1. That part of the site be immediately developed as a park in cooperation with the Marin City Community Services District, and

2. that the district study eventually using some of the site for a 400-student learning center and letting the rest of the acreage go for commercial development.

To be considered at Monday's 8 p.m. meeting of the district board at the Tamalpais High School student center, the recommendations come in a task force report headed by trustee Bette Wallace.

The report states that the district has invested a total of $300,000 since it bought the land in 1958. It also owns potential high school sites in Tiburon and San Geronimo, "but grade projections show all existing high schools to remain almost at present enrollment levels through 1977, except for Tamalpais High School which drops 138."

Recommending that Marin City residents have a say in their own future, the report suggests an appraisal of all district-owned sites. The existing contract with the Marin County Housing Authority should be renegotiated because the long delayed planned growth of Marin City is now going to occur before 1976, adds the report.

Also before the board Monday evening will be personnel actions on approving salaries for the 1972-73 school year for administrative assistant Edward Neumeier and special assistant Lanny Berry, and for hiring four temporary teachers to replace regular teachers on leave of absence.

The board will meet at 7:15 before the meeting to tour the recently completed walkways project and to view areas where improvements are needed.

Child Plays, Then Snake Is Killed

A Sleepy Hollow father chopped the head off a coastal diamond rattlesnake Wednesday in his backyard — minutes after his year-old son had been playing there.

Roger G. Price of 4 Dutch Valley Lane, said he found the three-foot-long poisonous snake sunning itself beside the patio deck.

Price said he immediately grabbed a hoe and cut its head off. His 3-year-old son Gregory had reported seeing a snake an hour earlier, but it couldn't be found. In the meantime Andrew, 1, had played in the yard.

Lower Speed During Smog Alerts Eyed

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The prospect of a 40-mile-per-hour speed limit on Bay Area highways during smog alerts was raised yesterday by a committee of Air Pollution Control District directors.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort suggested the speed limit, noting it would cut emissions of nitrogen oxides. Their emission from motor vehicles rises sharply with increased speed.

No formal action was taken by the alert system committee, but the district staff was asked to explore the speed limit with the state Division of Highways.

The issue was debated Wednesday at an unannounced meeting. The state's antisecret meeting law, the Ralph M. Brown Act, requires 24-hour notice of such meetings, but notices were not received by the press until yesterday.

Heavy Pollution

BONN, (AP) — Each year 3.39 million tons of sulphur dioxide and 4.5 million tons of carbon monoxide are released into the West German air, a Federal Science Ministry commission reported.

Supervisor Suggests Ferry Tax Exemption

Special state legislation should be sought to exempt the Golden Gate Bridge District from paying some $630,000 in sales tax on its new ferry fleet, Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum said yesterday.

Such an exemption would cancel the $157,500 that otherwise would be Marin County's share of the tax, as well as the state's $472,500 share.

The City of Larkspur, where the initial fleet of three vessels will be based starting in 1974, would not get a penny of sales tax revenue in any event from the purchase of the fleet. State law requires that the local share of the sales tax in this case go entirely to the county.

Wornum made his proposal to the bridge district's finance-auditing committee, which agreed to look further into it. He noted the Legislature would have time next year to pass such a measure because the first ferry will not be delivered until April, 1974.

"We're not a profit-making business anymore, God knows," Wornum said.

A state Board of Equalization official observed that no such exemption is enjoyed by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, which is slated to pay ten times more than the bridge district in sales tax on its trains alone.

Hospitalized Woman Motorist Improving

Dolores Roberta Carlson, 39, of 1295 Idleberry Road, Lucas Valley has been taken off the critical list but still remains in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital, hospital authorities reported today.

She was injured last Thursday when her eastbound car ran off the Lucas Valley Road, knocked down two county road paddle markers, a road sign and light pole before turning over and hitting a second pole, California Highway Patrol reported.

Resurfacing Bid

A $198,021 contract has been awarded Freeman Sondgroth Construction Co. of Mountain View, lowest of eight bidders, to resurface the westbound lanes of Highway 37 between Highway 101 and Atherton Avenue in Novato. The work must be finished in 60 working days.

Art-In-Park Show Slated In Petaluma

The Petaluma Art Association will present its 14th annual Art-in-the-Park Sept. 9 and 10 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Walnut Park.

Displays will include paintings, graphics, pottery, weaving and sculpture. Demonstrations will include wheel-thrown pottery, water color and oil painting, weaving and both a four-harness and a frame loom, stitchery and decoupage.

A section will be set aside this year for a children's arts and crafts display area.

Artists with work on display will include Lewis Barber, Pat and Frank Marshall, Barbara Ebbeson, Jean Noack Pratt and Marjorie Irving.

Track Their Ducks

BERLIN (AP) — East Berlin bird researchers have started placing multi-colored plastic rings around the necks of wild ducks to keep track of their movements.

Steps Proposal To Get Hearing

The San Rafael Board of Education will consider a proposal to remove the existing walk and install concrete steps at Santa Venetia School when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the district office.

He said the board will consider an implementation procedure for a personnel evaluation policy as required by the Stull Act, review the adult education program and discuss board policy regarding the transfer of teacher tenure rights.
